GIVEN SUPPORT, LAVAL ACCEPTS DEBT TALKS BID

DEADLOCK BREAKING HOPED FROM PARLEY

Lausanne Conference May Be Assured if Leaders Reach Accord.

Paris, Jan. 22 (U.P.). — Premier Pierre Laval won a vote of confidence in the Chamber of Deputies tonight and immediately announced his acceptance of the invitation of Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald, of Great Britain, for a conference on international problems.

The conference of the two government leaders, which propably will occur within a few days, presumably would be devoted chiefly to the reparations tangle, which has been intensified recently by the diametrically opposed views of France, Germany and other nations interested.

MacDonald's invitation was extended through the British Ambassador, Lord Tyrell, suggesting that Laval visit London this week-end. The French premier said, however, that the meeting would not be tomorrow and "possibly not for several days." He said he preferred Paris or Boulogne as the meeting place.

Conference Is Important.

A conference between MacDonald and Laval would be considered of utmost significance in the present reparations deadlock, as an accord between Britain and France in regard to procedure toward settlement might go far toward forcing a final agreement. Repeated attempts to reach such an accord prior to the now postponed Lausanne reparations conference were unsuccessful, resulting in a general belief that it was useless to hold the meeting.

Germany, having declared her inability to pay, is anxious for the conference to be held, and Britain also has desired to avaid a delay because of the general importance of a reparations agreement.

Laval, whose new cabinet was victorious in the Chamber by a vote of 312 to 261, reaffirmed the French reparations thesis in his final declaration prior to the vote.

"We are willing to reduce reparations only to the extent to which we receive a reduction in our debts," he declared. "In any event, we will not agree to reduce unconditional payments."

Debt Stands Vary.

Whether the French position can be reconciled with the desire of Italy for complete cancellation of war debts and the British tendency toward the same position will be a problem for the French and British premier when they meet.

Laval delayed his acceptance of the invitation until after the conclusion of the two-day debate in the Chamber of Deputies, where his majority of 51 votes was approximately or perhaps a little larger than had been expected.

Prior to the main vote of confidence the cabinet won test votes against the Radicals, the Chamber rejecting a motion against the government by a vo foet033fi rP ernment by a vote of 308 to 265.

Laval formally became foreign minister at noon, taking over the office from the retiring Aristide Briand. Briand, who appeared to be in better health than at any time in recent weeks, said he would go to his Cochere1 farm for a rest and later make a trip to the Riviera.

La Follette Relief Plan Favored in Wisconsin

Madison, Wis., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Senator Philip E. Nelson, of Maple, independent, switched to the support of the progressives in the Senate today, and with his vote the La Follette faction engrossed a $12,000,000 unemployment relief bill.

The bill, introduced by Senator Walter Polakowski, Milwaukee Socialist, as a substitute to other pending relief measures, taxes dividends, does not permit deduction of capital losses from the taxable income and levies surtax rates on 1931 incomes ranging from 1 to 30 per cent.

Southard Is Tendered Apologies of Abyssinia

Addis Ababa, Abyssinia, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—The foreign minister, the mayor and three other cabinet members called today on Addison E. Southard, the American minister, and apologized for an assault on the American by a traffic policeman last Sunday.

The policeman and several civilians are in prison as a result of the incident. Sentence will be passed later.

Grandson of President Is Home From Hospital

The 4-year-old grandson of President Hoover was taken to a hospital here two weeks ago. He is the son of Herbert Hoover, jr., an intructor at the California Institute of Technology.

World Bankers Agree On German Settlement

One Year Extension of "Stand-Still" Plan, Which Keeps Investments in Fatherland, Provided For, According to Report.

Berlin, Jan. 22 (U.P.).—The international bankers conference, considering a settlement of short-term loans "frozen" in Germany, tonight reached an agreement on practically all important questions involved.

It was understood that the accord would be "initialed" by the bankers' representatives tomorrow and then submitted to the various national banking committees for approval.

Details of the agreement published by usually well-informed sources provided for a one-year prolongation of the "stand-still" arrangement reached last summer, whereby foreign bankers with investments in Germany agreed not to withdraw them until February. The prolongation, however, might be canceled if Germany should declare a moratorium.

The agreement was said not to foresee any date for further repayment of the private debts, which are held chiefly by British and United States bankers. It has been estimated that the American interests involved total $800,000,000, while the total of Germany's private indebtedness, including obligations not covered by the stand-still agreement, is around $2,570,000,000.

A committee on which the creditors would be represented would be appointed under the agreement and it would confer with the Reichsbank every three months regarding the feasibility of repayment.

The Reichsbank could refuse to pay if German currency was endangered. The present stand-still agreement was reached at a time when withdrawals of capital from Germany threatened to cause the collapse of the Reich's currency.

The agreement also provided that the entire agreement could be canceled if the various banks of issue which have aided Germany should withdraw their rediscount credits from the Reichsbank. Furthermore, it provided for a special arrangement for redemption of short-term loans granted to German banks in cash, amounting to more than 3,000,000,000 marks (some $720,000,000).

The creditors would be allowed to demand repayment at the rate of 25 per cent of their short-term claims from the banks, semiannually, but would be obliged to invest the sum repaid in German securities which would not be marketable for five years.

A similar rule was arranged regarding short-term loans granted to private concerns, other than banks,

SWIFT ACTION BY MACDONALD SAVES CABINET

LLOYD GEORGE SAYS STROKE IS "AMAZING"

Breach in Ministry Likely to Remain Until Affair Is Aired in Parliament.

London, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Prime Minister MacDonald saved his cabinet from breaking up today with a political stroke as swift and unexpected as that with which he formed the present national government.

Divided against itself as to whether the country will have a general tariff, the ministry not only remains in existence, but will face Parliament when it opens on February 2 with the breach still unhealed.

For two days the minister argued the tariff program, but when they adjourned today it was announced officially they had been unable to reach a unanimous agreement.

Resignations Not Likely.

Ordinarily this would mean resignation of the cabinet, but Mr. MacDonald played a card which was not according to Hoyle. The ministers who found themselves unable to agree with the majority of their colleagues "are to be at liberty to express their views by speech and vote," the statement said.

This means that, if they want to, the dissident ministers may campaign up and down the country against the tariff measures to which the government, of which they are a part, intends to present to Parliament. The holdouts are Philip Snowden, now Lord Ickornshaw, and Sir Donald MacLean, a liberal, president of the Board of Education.

Nothing was said about whether they would resign if Parliament should pass a tariff bill involving a departure from the traditional British free trade policy which they represent, but it was not thought likely they would quit.

Conservatives Have Majority.

In the Commons the Conservatives have a clear majority of 325 over all other parties and it seems certain that enactment of a tariff program by a free vote early in the coming session is inevitable.

Mr. MacDonald's bold stroke in scrapping the historic principle of cabinet unity and collective responsibility naturally brought voluble protests from the Labor opposition.

George Lansbury, head of the Labor party in Parliament, called the cabinet statement the most amazing document ever issued by a British ministry and ridiculed the explanation in the statement that the cabinet's action was taken in the interests of national unity.

David Lloyd George Returns.

It was understood the tariff proposals which split the cabinet were, first, the suggestion for a general tariff of 10 to 15 per cent, levied primarily for revenue on manufactured and partly manufactured imports. It was estimated this would permit a 2½ per cent cut in the British income tax. Second, a proposal for establishment of a trade

CONGRESS ACTS TO REDUCE U. S. AND RAIL HOURS

Resolution Is Favored by Both Houses for Quiz on Feasibility.

SHORTER DAY URGED TO AID EMPLOYMENT

(United Press.)

Congress moved yesterday to spread employment by shortening the working day and week of Federal employes and railroad workers after having rejected efforts to slash the wages of Government workers.

The Senate yesterday unanimously adopted a concurrent resolution by Senator James Couzens (Republican), Michigan, directing the Interstate Commerce Commission to investigate the feasibility of legislation putting a six-hour day into effect on the railroads. The resolution goes to the House, where a strong movement to pass it was begun immediately.

The resolution is expected to aid the railroad labor executives in their pending wage negotiations with the company chiefs at Chicago. Senator Couzens told the Senate he understood the major point of difference between the executives and the brotherhoods, who have virtually agreed to a one-year 10 per cent wage cut, is the demand of the workers for a compensating arrangement, such as the six-hour day, which will put many of their jobless comrades back on the runs.

Plans Thorough Inquiry.

The House Civil Service committee decided to make a thorough and exhaustive investigation of the five-day week and a six-hour day with the idea of putting them into effect for at least some of the Government's 500,000 workers.

Industrial conditions generally will be investigated by this committee in the hope that industry will follow any governmental action. Hearings will begin soon.

These actions followed closely the refusal of House leaders to approve demands by Representative Will R. Wood (Republican), Indiana, and Harold McGugin (Republican), Kansas, for a general governmental salary cut. A proposed reduction of Federal salaries of $5,000 or more, suggested by Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, however, still is being considered.

Asks Report by December.

The Couzens resolution adopted by the Senate, and an identical one introduced in the House by Representative Robert Crosser (Democrat), Ohio, would ask the commission to make a complete inquiry and report back to Congress by next December 1.

Congress in 1916, after an historic battle, enacted the Adamson eight-hour railway bill, the railroads being the only field of private enterprise in which it has power to set hours of labor. Under that act the railroads have been reorganized and any reduction of the work day would involve many practical difficulties. It is because of many complexities that a wide inquiry is sought.

Under the Couzens-Crosser resolution, an advisory committee of employes and operators would assist the commission in working out six-hour-day plans.

HUGE U. S. RECONSTRUCTION BILL IS SIGNED BY HOOVER; START OF WORK SPEEDED

U. S. Reconstruction Fund To Tackle Trade Recapture

Dawes and Board of Finance Corporation Predict Benefits Will Flow to Every Stratum of Nation's Society and Business.

(Associated Press.)

Creation of the great "Reconstruction Finance Corporation," to be headed by blunt, purposeful Charles G. Dawes, represents a bold effort on the part of the American Government to recapture prosperity.

The Nation's leaders who have helped to create it say its benefits will be felt in every stratum of society. They look upon it as tackling problems of unemployment and depression at their root.

Backed by half a billion dollars of United States Treasury capital and authority to borrow a billion and a half more, Mr. Dawes and his fellow directors will tackle the job of getting the credit stream flowing again.

Good Government gold will be loaned to the railroads, the exporter and a long list of financial institutions in return for intrinsically valuable but now virtually unsaleable securities. The farmer will be allowed to borrow directly, giving a lien on his crops.

To show how the mammoth corporation is intended to work, the institutions that will benefit from its operations may be likened to individuals.

Suppose a wage earner, or a small business man, has his income cut in half. That is too little to support his family. His life savings are tied up in a home and in securities. The house is carrying all the mortgage it can stand and interest payments must be met.

He must, for the sake of his wife and children and to keep the home, either dispose of his nest egg or borrow money. If he disposes of the securities at present prices, he takes a terrific loss. The security he had built up for his family after his death is wiped out. There is little or no margin left to use in case of illness.

While that man may have three or four or five dependents, the finan-

Last 3 Directors of Corporation Are Agreed On.

DAWES PUSHES PREPARATIONS

Congress Is Expected to Vote Appropriation by Monday.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

The reconstruction finance bill, America's greatest peace-time economic effort, reached the White House last night at 6:03 o'clock. President Hoover signed it at 6:11 o'clock and soon afterward began a series of conferences with Democratic leaders of the House and Senate on nominations for the three Democratic members of the boards of directors.

Only the action of Congress on the necessary appropriation legislation now is needed to make the gigantic credit corporation a going concern. Leaders anticipate the appropriation bill will be passed by the House today and by the Senate Monday.

"It brings into being a powerful organization with adequate resources, able to strengthen weaknesses that may develop in our credit, banking and railway structure," the President said upon signing the bill. He anticipated it would "permit business and industry to carry on normal activity free from the fear of unexpected shock and retarding influences."

Aims to Stop Deflation.

"Its purpose is to stop deflation in agriculture and industry and thus to increase employment by the restoration of men to their normal jobs. It is not created for the aid of big industries and big banks. Such institutions are amply able to take care of themselves.

"It is created for the support of the smaller banks and financial institutions and through rendering their resources liquid, to give renewed support to business, industry and agriculture.

"It should give opportunity to mobilize the gigantic strength of our country for recovery."

At the same time the President paid tribute to the patriotism of the men in both House and Senate "who have given proof of their devotion to the welfare of their country irrespective of political affiliation."

Huge Capital Authorized.

The measure authorizes $500,000,000 of operating capital from the Federal Treasury and confers $1,500,000,000 in bonding power upon the corporation.

Technical opposition to the bill faded to a feeble sputter yesterday afternoon as the conference reports were presented in the two houses. The House took up the report at 1:30 and a few minutes before 3 o'clock final legislative action on the measure had been taken in the Senate.

As the bill went to the enrolling committee, President Hoover conferred with Charles G. Dawes, president of the new corporation; Eugene Meyer, governor of the Federal Reserve Board, and Ogden L. Mills, Undersecretary of the Treasury, on administrative details of the rehabilitation program.

Final Choices Due Today.

George L. Harrison, governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, also participated in this White House conference. Dawes, Mills, Meyer and Paul Bestor, farm loan commissioner, are the Republican members of the reconstruction directorate. The three Democratic members probably will be announced at the White House today.

Meeting in regular business session as the bill passed Congress, the board of directors of the United States Chamber of Commerce adopted a resolution commending the nonpartisan support of the reconstruction program in both House and Senate. The resolution expressed the conviction that the new credit would stimulate business and industry in every section of the country.

Those invited to the White House for the conference on the remaining directors of the corporation included Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the

CHILE NITRATE DEAL RELATED TO SENATE

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

Radical revision of the terms of the nitrate-working concession, granted the Guggenheim-National City interests in the rich deposits of the nation by the Chilean government, is expected to follow the revelations contained in the responses to the questions submitted three days ago to the Chilean government on behalf of the Senate finance committee. The Chilean Ambassador, Don Miguel Cruchaga Tocornal, yesterday received the replies to Senator Hiram Johnson's queries within 48 hours from his minister of finances, Luis Izquierdo.

The ambassador handed the responses to Assistant Secretary of State in charge of Latin-American Affairs, Francis White, and requested him to transmit the answers to the Senate committee.

It became known in financial circles in New York yesterday, that Medley G. B. Whelpley, of the National City Bank, who has been engaged in nitrate discussions in France and Germany on behalf of the Cosach, the Chilean American monopoly, has been suddenly called home and will leave for Chile immediately to take up with the Chilean government the "liberalization" of the nitrate agreement.

The replies of the Chilean finance minister brought out that the Cosach had been organized with no capital beyond the nitrate fields turned over to it by the government for exploitation, but with $265,596,601 of liabilities. Furthermore, the revenues derived from the payment of an export tax on nitrate shipments were diverted under the terms of the agreement to the Cosach company, and not to the government.

This latter clause is said to have excited considerable political opposition to the Cosach in Chilean circles where the national credit of the country has suffered a severe blow in having defaulted on the interest payment of some $450,000,000 obligations for the first time in Chile's political history.

The report clears the Cosach obligations of any direct influence on

Cold Forces First Lady To Drop Engagements

(Associated Press.)

Mrs. Herbert Hoover canceled engagements yesterday because of a slight cold. She is being attended by Dr. Joel T. Boone, the White House physician.

Mrs. Hoover showed no sign of indisposition Thursday night as she stood by the President's side in the blue room, receiving the long line of guests attending the sensational reception.

Torch Death Mystery Baffles Oklahomans

Seminole, Okla., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—A torch murder baffled Seminole County authorities tonight as the theory that a man shot to death and burned in a stolen automobile, may have been George Birdwell, outlaw lieutenant of Charles "Pretty Boy" Floyd, was abandoned.

Persons who knew Birdwell said positively the charred body, that of a man about 30 years old, 5 feet 8 inches tall and weighing about 150 pounds, was not that of the desperado's chief henchman.

Council Bluffs, Ia., Jan. 22 (A.P.). Because of the recent death of her husband, Mrs. Donald MacRae today announced her withdrawal from the contest for the Democratic nomination for United States senator.

TAX-INCREASE FIGHT BEGUN BY INDUSTRY

(Associated Press.)

Business registered vigorous opposition yesterday to the administration-sponsored tax program, with the general policy termed "wholly unwarranted" by a special committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

The committee, in a report demanding drastic reductions in expenditures to help balance the budget, objected strenuously to applying the proposed increased rates retroactively to the incomes of individuals and corporations for 1931.

"Unforeseen taxes for which no advance provision can be planned, are most burdensome and difficult to meet," the committee said. "This is doubly true of last year. • • • No retroactive taxes of any kind should be imposed. Notwithstanding the nature of the emergency, we believe other ways should and can be found to meet it."

Hostility toward a suggested 5 per cent sales tax on automobiles was voiced before President Hoover yesterday by spokesmen for the motor world, while a representative on the tobacco industry opposed before the House ways and means committee any increase in cigarette levies.

Leaders of the automobile trade added to their comment last night at a press conference, contending the sales tax would be an obstacle in the way of recovery.

"The automobile business is in a fair way to come back," commented Roy D. Chapin, of the Hudson Co., spokesman for the group, "unless arbitrarily forced to raise prices by something over which we have no control."

Alfred P. Sloan, president of General Motors, added "we are very much encouraged over the outlook," but explained an excise levy would be a blow "offsetting the accomplishments of the industry."

The opposition of the automobile world to a sales tax was expressed to President Hoover by seven of its leaders, who described the proposed 5 per cent sales tax as restrictive, discriminatory and a brake upon production.

Their views will be elaborated upon today by George Graham, vice president of the Rockne Co., who will represent the motor industry before the House ways and means committee studying tax proposals.

Kaiser Says Allies Paying for War

Wilhelm's Letter Praises American Author of Book on Blame.

Columbia, Mo., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—The allies of the World War are now paying with a "world crisis" for "their crimes in 1914 and at Versailles in 1918," former Kaiser Wilhelm has written Prof. M. H. Cochran, of the University of Missouri.

The former emperor wrote, commending Cochran's newly published book, "Germany Not Guilty in 1914," on a postal card, one side of which bore Wilhelm's full-length portrait.

"Sincerest compliments and warmest admiration for your brilliant "Germany Not Guilty," wrote the kaiser. "There is not the slightest doubt about who were the real culprits that started the World War. They stand arraigned before the tribunal of history, awaiting her verdict. The world crisis the allies are suffering from is the punishment Providence is meting out to them for their crimes in 1914 and at Versailles in 1918."

Third Subscription Call Made by U.S. Credit Body

New York, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—The National Credit Corporation, it was learned today, has issued its third call to the country's banks for 10 per cent susciptions to its debentures.

The amount requested for payment next Monday is $50,000,000, similar to the other two subscriptions, so that the corporation has now asked for $150,000,000 in funds of its authorized $500,000,000 with which it is giving aid to banking institutions.

Towns Reported Razed By Guatemala Volcano

San Salvador, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Atingua, Santa Lucia, Cotzumalhuapa and other towns in Guatemala were reported today to have been destroyed by the eruption of Acate Acatenango volcano.

San Salvador and other cities in this country were covered by clouds of dense smoke and ashes, apparently coming from the volcano. Streets and house roofs were coated with ashes.

Washington Essay Contest Termed Aid to Patriotism

Russell T. Edwards, Noted Director of National Educational Campaigns, Praises Post Competition as Help to Grownups as Well as Children.

People of the United States as well as the juniors need the good work being done by The Washington Post in the Essay Contest which is arousing so much interest in facts about George Washington, according to Russell T. Edwards, widely know director of national education campaigns.

"The people of this country need such educational campaigns much more than George Washington needs them," said Mr. Edwards last night. "In these times when we hear so much about 'isms' and cure-alls of various kinds with their unknown ingredients I want to remind you of what is considered one of the greatest tributes ever given George Washington. Oddly enough the tribute was paid to Washington by himself, although he did not consider it such, of course.

"Washington was about to address his officers when he said: 'pardon me gentlemen until I put on my spectacles. I have grown not only gray but almost blind in the service of my country.' There was a remarkable tribute to George Washington, it is true, but what a ringing sermon on patriotism; a sermon badly needed then and just about as badly needed now.

"The Post is doing the junior Washingtonians a great service by encouraging them to look further into the speeches and writings of this great man."

MONEY-BILL RECORD IS SET BY M'KELLAR

Senator Kenneth D. McKellar, of Tennessee, has established a new all-time record for money-bills introduced in one session of Congress by one member.

A tabulation of bills introduced by the Tennessee senator since the present session of Congress began reveals that if all were passed they would call for approximately $800,000,000 from the Federal Treasury over a period of years.

Senator McKellar's largest legislative day was December 9, two days after the present session began. On that day, alone, he introduced bills calling for more than $660,000,000 in specific appropriations, most of them within a period of five years.

On the floor of the Senate on January 15 Senator McKellar characterized as "wholly untrue and without foundation" a story printed in The Washington Post to the effect that he had introduced bills in the present session calling for more than $500,000,000.

One bill presented by Mr. McKellar calls for $200,000,000 for building a canal across Nicaragua. Another would authorize $150,000,000 for additional postoffices and sites. A third would require purchase of Mississippi Valley spillway lands at an estimated cost of $300,000,000. Another proposes revision of the veterans' pension system at an estimated cost of $250,000,000 for the first five years.

Under another bill the Comptroller General would be instructed to reexamine Tennessee's claims against the

2 Lifers Make Escape From Georgia Prison

Milledgeville, Ga., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Leland Harvey, long term convict who is a genius at escaping prison, and Jack Martin, another Georgia desperado who has quite a record for fleeing, broke out of the death cell at the State prison today and are free again.

They sawed the rivets off the cell, cut a hole through a partition into the hall of the main building and walked out through an open hall. It was Harvey's ninth escape and Martin's fourth. Harvey was serving 110 years for robberies, and Martin a life sentence for the slaying of E. B. Hogan, Macon, Ga., cotton broker.

Court Ruling Balks Move to Oust Long

New Orleans, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Efforts of a political enemy to oust Huey P. Long from the governor's seat in Louisiana, ran into another judicial stumbling block today.

The State supreme court dismissed litigation aimed at removing him. It was brought on the grounds that he has been duly elected to the United States Senate and therefore can not retain the governorship. The action was begun by Dr. Paul N. Cyr, regarded by some as lieutenant governor and by others, including Gov. Long, as without portfolio.

The court washed its hands of the responsibility of saying when a man is and is not a United States Senator. "His right to qualify and to function as a member of that body remains to be definitely determined by the Senate, the sole judge thereof," the opinion read.

REBELS ARE ROUTED IN SPANISH PROVINCE

Manresa, Spain, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—The Extremist revolt in Catalonia Province appeared to have collapsed tonight as troops played hide-and-seek in mountain passages to ferret out fleeing bands of insurgents.

Labor leaders told the Associated Press that Premier Azana's rigorous handling of the situation had been completely successful throughout this troubled region. High syndicalists said the strike probably would be concluded tomorrow morning.

The major development of the day was the discovery of 150 bombs in a revolutionary headquarters in nearby Berga and the arrest of seven persons who had taken refuge there. Twenty more were arrested here and many in other towns, but their exact numbers could not be ascertained.

Minor disorders were reported in Fructuoso and Delbaje where insurrectos sought refuge when driven out of other towns. Insurgents made a weak attempt to barricade a mountain top town but were easily driven out.

Two battalions of infantry, two battalions of artillery and three companies of civil guards came from surrounding towns during the day and were deployed throughout the suburbs. About 20,000 textile strikers dawdled on the streets but most stores kept open.

A tour of towns to the southwest of Manresa, all of which are closely tied up with the textile industry here, showed that conditions apparently were normal, but there was considerable unrest. Three thousand women textile workers had walked out in Igualada, but the city otherwise was quiet.

Local labor leaders expressed fears, however, that there might be more trouble next Monday when a nation-wide extremist strike is scheduled to get under way. The civil governor of Barcelona telegraphed Premier Azana that everything was quiet in the area.

Gibraltar, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—There were reports here tonight that rebellion had broken out at Malaga, Spain, and that the civil guard, reinforced by regular troops, were patroling the city.

McGarrah Is Confident U. S. Will Lead Revival

New York, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—The world is confident, said Gates W. McGarrah, chairman of the Bank of International Settlements, as he arrived in the United States today, that America will lead the way to economic recovery.

He added that in the past few months the United States had seen "a decided growth of confidence."

He called on this country to set its house in order. He said it would take the best part of a year "and then we will be headed toward improvement on a firm basis."

Wickersham Criticizes Foes of Law Revision

Chicago, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—George W. Wickersham told the American Law Institute tonight that opposition from judges and lawyers is making more difficult the institute's task of revising the Nation's civil and criminal laws.

Since its establishment in 1923, Wickersham said, the law institute has worked constantly to reduce laws to clear, accurate and logical form. Despite obstructions, he said, steady progress is being made.

HYDE PREPARES REPLY TO GLASS IN LOAN DISPUTE

SECRET DOCUMENT CAUSE OF TROUBLE

Secretary Plans to Clarify Charges Resented by Virginia Senator.

The legality of American Government loans to Europe after the armistice became the hot point of a major political controversy last night with the announcement by Secretary of Agriculture Hyde that he would reply soon to Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, on the question.

The Virginia Democrat, who was Secretary of the Treasury during 1919 and 1920, vigorously denied in the Senate on Thursday the charge that many of the post-war advances to the European powers were made by the Wilson administration without legal authority.

In a recent address in New York, Secretary Hyde reminded his audience that nearly $2,000,000,000 of the American loans were advanced by Secretaries McAdoo and Glass after the armistice "without a right to do so."

Charges Are Denounced.

The controversy rages about a secret Senate document published in December, 1921, embodying the report of an investigation by the judiciary committee into all foreign government loans up to the inauguration of President Harding.

This report, presented by former Senator James A. Reed (Democrat), of Missouri, was printed as Senate Document No. 86 of the Sixty-seventh Congress. It was soon taken out of print, however, and copies are not now available in the usual public repositories of such reports on Capitol Hill, either in the Library of Congress or in the permanent files of the Senate judiciary committee.

On page 7 this report quotes the recommendations made by the then Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Glass, to the House ways and means committee, relative to broadening the authority of the Treasury to advance Liberty Loan funds to European governments.

Demands Outlined.

Mr. Glass appeared before the committee on February 15, 1919, in connection with the then pending Victory Loan bill. He outlined the demands of several European countries for additional credits, pointing out that the four Liberty Loan acts had restricted advances to powers "then engaged in war with the enemies of the United States."

A question had arisen in the Treasury whether the armistice did not make broader authority necessary before any of the remaining funds might be advanced to foreign governments.

"For these reasons," Senator Glass then told the ways and means committee, "I urgently ask the authority to broaden the purposes for which the loans to foreign governments may be made."

At the same hearing Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Rathbone told the committee:

Loans for Commerce.

"At the present time our authority to advance is limited to the purpose of national security and defense and the prosecution of the war. The authority we ask now is to make advances for the purpose of promoting commerce."

The Senate committee report contained in Document No. 86, declares, however, that "The House ways and means committee did not agree with either Secretary McAdoo or Secretary Glass and refused to grant the authority requested."

In reviewing the Victory loan debates the report concludes:

"It is sufficient to say that the authority was not granted, but the Treasury Department continued making the loans to foreign governments for reconstruction purposes after all hostilities had ceased."

Advances Listed.

Among the advances made to Europe after the armistice, which aggregated something more than $1,500,000,000, the Senate report lists the following:

"One hundred thousand dollars of American Liberty loan money was used for the expenses of the Russian delegation at the peace conference. This with the approval of the Treasury Department.

"Twenty-six thousand dollars of America's Liberty loan money we used as expenses of the delegates from Liberia to the peace conference.

"Millions of dollars of this fund were loaned to governments not then actually in existence. Czechoslovakia was not a nation until it was created by the treaty of peace of June, 1919. Serbia had no parliamentary form of government during the time it received loans from this country.

Aid to Russian Regime.

"Money from this fund went with the approval of the Treasury Department to the aid of three de facto governments in Russia, namely, the Kerenski government, the Kolchak government and the Wrangle government. * * *

"Throughout the entire correspondence between the State Department and the Treasury Department, the President and various foreign governments, submitted to the committee, there is no record or mention that any of the departments of this Government requested an opinion from the Attorney General as to their authority to continue making loans for the purpose of the prosecution of the war after hostilities had ceased.

"In fact, there is no record showing that any legal opinion was ever asked in regard to this matter."

Taxes a Nuisance and Yet Incentive to Bigger Things

By JOHN J. DALY

FOR some mysterious reason, no one seems to be in favor of taxes. They haven't got a friend in the world. Even the men who formulate taxes blush when they mention the word.

All America, of a sudden, has risen in arms against taxes. They stand today like so many criminals before the bar of justice. Even Congress, their sire, disowns them; at least no one hears a representative bragging about taxes.

The motion picture people are against a tax on movie admissions, labeling it a nuisance tax.

The automobile manufacturers make faces at the proposals of a tax on touring, expensive enough as it is, without an additional burden on the bank roll.

The clothing industry is against a tax on cloth; the green goods men see no reason why broccoli and spinach should be taxed; the music masters, tuning up their fiddles, feverishly protest against a tax on pianos and kettle drums, though not a single voice is raised against any penalty attached to the practice of saxophone playing.

"Any tax on the sax meets with the approval of Max," is a telegram going the rounds of lobbyists for the music industry, Max being the head man of the business with its headquarters in Tin Pan Alley. This is the only instance of a sympathetic attitude toward taxes.

* * * *

ASIDE from music, which still has charms to soothe the savage breast, and may therefore be powerful enough to influence its enemies in Congress, most of the arts and industries, the sciences and the catch-as-catch-can businesses of the country are unalterably opposed to taxes. This makes it almost unanimous, because householders and noteholders feel the same way about it.

Such is the situation that confronts Congress.

In the face of all sorts of opposition, the poor House members must levy taxes. They are like the fathers of the land who must, perforce, administer disciplinary measures to their sons: It hurts the fathers, with razor-strops in their hands, more than it does the boys. At least this is what they say, as the boys yell in concert, "Oh, yeah?"

Not a representative on the Hill who would not rather reach down in his own jeans and pay taxes rather than pass them on to his constituency. With tears in their eyes, they are now singing sad songs, moanin' low. If there is any way possible in which these men could shift the burden of taxation from the shoulders of the people to their own, would they do it? Wouldn't they? And be happy. That is what they say, and they mean it. Why, then, should the country be all hopped up about taxes?

* * * *

RATHER would Congress pay, and pay, than face all this opposition to taxes. Each man in his time grows weary of groans. Yet, stern duty must be done. Taxes, being what they are, must be faced and paid.

The new tax bill, fortunately, is only a temporary measure. No tax policy is permanent. It is always subject to amendment. So, when these taxes are paid—as paid they must be—there will be others, and still others, and yet others again, all down the long corridors of time. About the only commodity in the world with an unlimited supply seems to be taxes. The very variety adds zest to life.

Without taxes, man would want but little here below—and get it. With taxes, even the ingenuity of man is taxed. Because of this trap, which gets him whichever way he moves, man's imagination is fired, and he accomplishes big things in life merely to be able to pay his taxes. It is not a question of bringing home the bacon, but the taxes.

The consolation is this: It costs a lot of money to live in a big country like this, but it's worth it.

500 ATTEND RITES FOR HOLDUP VICTIM

Special to The Washington Post.

Germantown, Md., Jan. 22.—Approximately 500 persons attended the funeral of Horace D. Waters, 79-year-old storekeeper and banker, who was killed in the course of an attempted holdup at his store in Old Germantown, Md., to pay their respects to the kindly old man, who was the friend of all in the neighborhood. The funeral service was conducted at the residence here today by Canon Arthur B. Rudd, of the Washington Cathedral, who has been called to the rectorate of the Christ Episcopal Church, at Rockville, Md.

Directors of the Farmers Banking and Trust Co., of which the deceased was a director, served as honorary pallbearers. Active pallbearers were Bowie F. Waters, Julian R. Waters, William Waters, Eugene Waters, Bache Abert and J. Hampton Jones. Most of the officials of the county were present, as well as a number of Washingtonians, including Judge John P. McMahon, of the Washington Police Court and several clerks from that court, where a daughter of Mr. Waters, Mrs. Ethel Spates, is secretary to the judges.

Police Escort Cortege.

Burial was in Neelsville Presbyterian Church Cemetery at Neelsville, Md. The funeral cortege was escorted by a detail of Montgomery County police.

Mr. Waters was fatally wounded by a negro holdup man whom he resisted while the robber was attempting to wrest a pocketbook from him. Richard A. Bennett, a clerk, was shot in the wrist. The Negro, and two others who accompanied him, escaped in a battered touring car, carrying Washington license tags.

Police are endeavoring to establish the ownership of a .32-caliber pistol found near the scene of the shooting in the belief that it may have been carried by one of the three holdup men. The actual shooting was done with a .45 automatic pistol.

State's Attorney Stedman Prescott and Chief of Police Alvie A. Moxley said today that they have no new clews to work on and that the possibility of capturing the murderers appears remote unless some new evidence is discovered.

Baltimore Detectives Aid.

Aided by two Baltimore detectives, Sergts. M. J. Dunn and William J. Flynn, Montgomery County police continued to run down clews and possibilities today but said there was little or no result.

Four colored men are being held by police in the Rockville Jail in connection with the case. Three of the men were in the store at the time of the holdup and police are not satisfied that they have told all they know about the affair. The fourth is Bud Prater, who divides his time between the Germantown neighborhood and Washington, for whom three strange Negroes were asking shortly before the time of the holdup and murder. Police believe these three men were the trio that perpetrated the outrange.

Officials are not very sanguine as to the possibilities of capturing the trio, in view of the scarcity of clews and definite information regarding their appearance.

Service Will Honor William H. Whiting

A memorial service in honor of the late William H. Whiting, for many years a vestryman of Grace Episcopal Church, will be held tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. The rector, the Rev. Meade Bolton MacBryde, will pay tribute to Mr. Whiting, using as his text: "Being dead yet speaketh." The music will be of an appropriate nature, the offertory solo, "Peace, Perfect Peace," being sung by Francis W. Hart, barytone.

GENEVA ARMS TALKS DESCRIBED AS VITAL

Importance of Accord There Is Pictured to Junior Peace Delegates.

If the Geneva disarmament conference should fail it would carry down with it the whole new structure for the preservation of peace, Will Stone, of the Foreign Policy Association, predicted yesterday at a special program for junior delegates at the Cause and Cure of War conference in the Washington Hotel.

Unless a substantial reduction of armaments can be brought about and an assurance given that existing inequalities will not be perpetuated, there is only failure ahead at Geneva, he said. The United States has a compelling obligation to use the full influence in the restoration of international confidence and understanding, he asserted.

Lawrence Duggan, of the State Department, urged the junior delegates not to be "too much disturbed by recent revolutions" in South America, as they are not a common occurrence and are directly traceable at this time to the economic pressure. The whole political, social and economic structure of Latin-American countries is undergoing a great change, he said, and American citizens should familiarize themselves with the rapid developments.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, conference leader, predicted to the younger women: "Just as my generation saw victory of another great movement—suffrage for women—so I predict that your generation will see a peace victory."

Mrs. Albert Lytle Dean, of White Plains, N. Y., presided at the sessions. Mrs. Edward P. Costigan, wife of United States Senator Costigan, of Nevada, presided at a luncheon discussion.

Gandhi Sends First Word From Prison

Bombay, India, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Since the beginning of the Nationalist campaign and the enactment of laws to control it, 798 persons, including many women, have been imprisoned in the united provinces. In Calcutta today 85 Nationalists were sentenced to from nine months to three years and a large number of additional arrests were made.

All the big markets in Bombay are still closed as a protest against Mahatma Gandhi's arrest and the government has prohibited exhibition of motion pictures of Gandhi.

The mahatma sent his first letter from the Yeroda Jail today to Miss Madeline Slade, the English girl who is one of his most devoted disciples. He said he was happy there, sharing his quarters with Vallabhai Patel, another Nationalist leader. He spins 200 yards of yarn a day, does much reading and walks for two hours every evening. "Tell all my friends at home and abroad not to worry about me," he wrote, signing the latter "Yours with love, Bapoo."

House Body Favors Treaty Limit Fleet

(Associated Press.)

An amendment to require that the fleet be built up to treaty limits was inserted by the House Naval committee yesterday in the Vinson bill.

No final vote on committee approval of the bill was reached, but Chairman Vinson said that action would come Monday.

The measure would authorize 120 ships to be built over 10 years at a cost of $616,250,000.

WETS IN HOUSE SEE TWO TEST BALLOTS

(Associated Press.)

Antiprohibitionists in the House yesterday predicted two prohibition test votes this session and said the Senate's rejection of a proposal favoring State referenda was without significance.

Representative O'Connor (Democrat), New York, told the House that votes on both the resubmission of the eighteenth amendment and modification of the Volstead act had been "pledged" and Speaker Garner said this seemed "a fair interpretation of the rules."

Garner explained, however, he had not closed his mind on this point. The drys have argued parliamentary procedure would permit only one prohibition vote, while the wets have said both votes will be permitted by the new rule under which a petition signed by 145 members can bring legislation on to the floor for a vote.

Senate Defeats Resolution.

"If the judiciary committee acts unfavorably, immediately a petition will be filed under the new discharge rule, and no time lost in bringing the matter before the House for a vote at this session," O'Connor said.

"The members of the House have no sympathy whatever with the proposition in the Senate. We do not believe that that is the proper approach to the question, we do not believe there was any criticism of the wets who voted against it."

The Senate Thursday defeated, 55 to 15, a resolution by Senator Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, saying the Senate would welcome action by the governors of the States to bring about referenda.

Committee to Hear Wet Bloc.

O'Connor recalled that Chairman Sumners set February 16 for consideration by the House judiciary committee of the wet bloc amendment to provide State control of liquor.

"We expect to vote first on resubmission and after that is over we are going to have a vote in the House on modification of the Volstead act," he said. "We have assurances that we shall have two votes. We have no doubt whatever as to what the ruling of the chair will be as to the two matters being substantially identical."

O'Connor said the amendment on which the Democratic and Republican antiprohibition groups have agreed "takes the identical language of the recommendation of the members of the Wickersham Commission."

Drys Declare Strength In Senate Not Lessened

(Associated Press.)

The Antisaloon League last night issued a statement asserting the defeat by the Senate of the Bingham resolution urging governors to call prohibition referenda "refutes wet claims of large accessions to the wet strength in the present Senate."

The statement follows:

"Boasted wet strength in the new Congress failed to materialize in the first test vote. The Senate, on Thursday, by a vote of 55 to 15, rejected the Bingham resolution, which would have recorded the Senate as welcoming any action that the governors of the several States might take in recommending to their Legislatures that action be taken to obtain the opinion of the people of the States with respect to the repeal or modification of the eighteenth amendment or the repeal or modification of the national prohibition act. The speeches of wet members in the debate admitted the constitutional impossibility of a national referendum upon the prohibition question and revealed the baseless nature of all such proposals.

Hold Resolution "Ridiculous."

"The Bingham resolution was properly characterized by members of the Senate as 'ridiculous' since it sought to have members of the United States Senate record themselves for the first time in our national history as incompetent to determine policies of legislation or judge of the merits of constitutional changes as the representatives of the people.

"The Bingham resolution invited members of the Senate to establish a precedent for evasion of such constitutional questions as the sales tax, soldier bonus, the debenture plan, the World Court, the League of Nations, the tariff, income tax and other matters by welcoming similar referenda in the States upon such questions before casting their ballots, which would eventually result in the reduction of members of the United States Senate by their own action, to a status of mere automatons lacking in courage and devoid of initiative or will, elected merely to register the result of referenda.

"The defeat of the Bingham resolution refutes wet claims of large accessions to the wet strength in the present Senate."

Senator Bingham last night said he hoped "we may be able to secure modification of the Volstead a[ct] in the not too distant future."

Adult Skeleton Found Under Annapolis Tree

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 22.—Workmen engaged in uprooting a number of decayed trees in the plot of ground around St. Anne's Episcopal Church, here, unearthed the bones of an adult human skeleton. The bones crumbled to dust when touched, and a few corroded nails were all that remained of the coffin. No attempt at identification was made.

The plot contains a number of grave markers of persons buried more than a century ago. The bones were close to the roots of a huge maple tree, said to have been planted 65 years ago.

Methodist Hymn Books Modernized

Protestant Divisions Doom 200 Old Tunes in Seeking New Ones.

Pittsburgh, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Methodists of America modernized their hymn book today. A committee of the Methodist Episcopal, Methodist Protestant and Methodist Episcopal South Churches doomed 200 old tunes to oblivion and considered new ones in their places.

After discussion, "Rock of Ages," one of the oldest hymns, was retained. Those stricken out include "Church Triumphant," "O Come With Me" and "O Perfect Life of Love."

The committee, composed of ministers, college professors and singers, reached decision after decision as one member played a piano and James R. Houghton, of Boston University, led the singing in a rich barytone voice.

ROOSEVELT IS LIKELY TO ENTER RACE SOON

Expected to Announce His Candidacy by Birthday on January 30.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt is expected to be officially entered in the race for the Democratic presidential nomination before his fiftieth birthday on January 30.

An answer to the Democrats of North Dakota, who at a convention on January 14 indorsed him, is likely to be Mr. Roosevelt's notification to the country that he is willing to make the race.

The presidential preference primary in North Dakota will be held March 15 and will be preceded by one in New Hampshire on March 8. The North Dakota law requires that a candidate must give notice of his willingness to accept the nomination before delegates can be entered for him.

Ritchie Already in Race.

The resolution of the North Dakota Democratic convention has been before Mr. Roosevelt several days. The executive office has been noncommittal regarding the governor's possible entrance into the campaign for the Presidency, but James A. Farley, State chairman, declared yesterday that the executive would "very soon" enter the race.

Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland already has tossed his hat in the arena.

Until the governor's candidacy is before the public it will not be known how many of the presidential primaries he will enter, but his proponents have said he would go into most of them where "native sons" were not entered.

Other Primaries.

After the North Dakota primary will come two on April 5, Wisconsin and New York. On April 12 there are two more, Illinois and Nebraska, and on April 26 Pennsylvania and Massachusetts signify their presidential preferences.

Other primaries are Maryland, May 2; California, May 3; South Dakota, May 3; Ohio and West Virginia, May 10; New Jersey, May 17, and Oregon, May 20.

Alabama, on May 10, and Florida, one June 7, have primaries for Democrats only. Two other States with primaries in 1928, Indiana and Michigan, since have dropped them.

Hearing of Smith's Son In Auto Death Put Off

New York, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith sat attentively on a reporter's bench in Homicide Court today while legal machinery moved to postpone the hearing for his son, Walter J. Smith, until next Friday.

The former governor's youngest son, 22 years old, is charged with suspicion of homicide as the result of fatal injuries received by Harry Wallace, 59, last Friday, when struck by the youth's automobile. The adjournment was taken at the request of counsel for the Wallace family, Arthur J. Weglein, who informed Magistrate H. Stanley Renaud he had been unable to interview some witnesses and was not ready to proceed.

Chinese Pastor Found Murdered in Chicago

Chicago, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—The Rev. H. Frank Chan, 40, pastor of the First Chinese Evangelical Church of Christ, was found hacked to death in the basement of his little red brick church in Chinatown today. The hatchet with which his skull had been crushed from behind lay near his body.

Little could be learned of the killing from the neighbors in the Chinese colony, 2 miles south of the Loop. Apparently the minister had been engrossed in writing a letter in Chinese characters at the desk of his basement room. The killer had struck a blow, and Chan had fallen from his chair. Probably he had been dead two or three days.

Farmers in Frederick To Fight Fowl Thefts

Winchester, Va., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Frederick County farmers and officers are organizing themselves to combat an apparently well-organized and centrally directed band of chicken thieves.

Robberies have been going on in wholesale fashion, and entire roosts have been rifled at a single haul. Robberies have been reported from more than a dozen communities in the northern and western sections of the county.

Mrs. Gann Ready to Leave On G. O. P. Stumping Tour

(Associated Press.)

Mrs. Dolly Gann, sister and hostess of Vice President Curtis, is going on the campaign stump next week in a regular "swing around the circle."

She is going out for "the straight Republican ticket," a phrase she has heard "Brother" Charley emphasize in campaign battles for almost half a century.

But it is not a campaign tour involving personalities, says Mrs. Gann. It is just a "straight Republican" speech-making expedition into the Central West at the invitation of Republican women's organizations.

"Of course I am going to tell of President Hoover's work," she said. "Na, I am not out speaking for brother. I will be glad to accept his greetings."

Political speech making is nothing new for Mrs. Gann, who has been by her brother's side through many a campaign. She spoke some during the 1928 campaign.

Leaving here tomorrow, Mrs. Gann will speak on Tuesday in Omaha. She then goes to Topeka, Kans.; Kansas City, Oklahoma City and Chicago. Several of the meetings will be nonpartisan.

FULL RAIL ANSWERS REQUIRED BY UNIONS

Brotherhoods Refuse to Vote Wage Cut Until All Points Are Settled.

Chicago, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—The railway unions insisted today on definite answers to every point in their unemployment relief program before answering the proposal for a 10 per cent wage reduction.

All brotherhood and union men still in Chicago, including 800 general chairmen, jammed into the banquet room of the Palmer House and heard Daniel Willard, gray-haired leader of the presidents' committee, outline the position of the employers.

He was vigorously applauded by the men and publicly praised by the labor spokesman, David B. Robertson.

Vote Must Wait.

But Mr. Robertson announced soon after the session that the labor delegates were not ready to take a vote. Several matters in the union program must be cleared up, he said, and there must be definite agreement or disagreement on each point before the men decided whether to accept voluntary 10 per cent wage reductions for one year.

One of the principal points was the stabilization of employment. The union still hoped to get further concessions. The managements committee pledged "to do whatever may be practicable" to stabilize employment on individual roads, declining, however, to name any figures or set any standards as a group. The labor delegates had asked that employment be increased to the 1930 basis.

The presidents' statement still included the remark that they did not believe the stabilization efforts could include "stand by" forces. Union leaders have indicated this was one thing they hoped to have changed before they sign any agreement.

Short Day Not Discussed.

Although they professed hope for their proposal of a commission to study the six-hour day, the labor delegates talked little of that measure. The Senate resolution calling on the Interstate Commerce Commission to make such a study was believed to have eliminated the pressure on that point.

Virtual agreement has been reached on the establishment of emergency employment bureaus at New York, Washington and Chicago. These were to be managed by regional rail executives, who were to call on heads of the various unions and brotherhoods for men.

Another point on which both sides seemed to be in accord was the establishment of a joint commission to study the proposals of retirement insurance, dismissal, wages and elective workmen's compensation.

$150,000 Suit Filed After Faro Game

Mrs. Blacklidge, Former Customs Collector, Sues Chicago Politician.

Chicago, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—The praecipe of a $150,000 damage suit against Edward R. Litsinger, prominent politician, was filed today on behalf of Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blacklidge, former collector of internal revenue here.

The praecipe divulged no details, but Gilbert Wagner, associate of David Stansbury, who filed the notice, said he believed the suit would charge libel or slander, based on Litsinger's statements following a fake faro game at Springfield, Ill., a year ago, when Litsinger said he was swindled out of $50,000 he lent Mrs. Blacklidge.

One year ago today the alleged swindle was revealed, and charges and countercharges were hurled by Mrs. Blacklidge and Litsinger, a Republican member of the board of review and friend of her late husband. Mrs. Blacklidge resigned her Federal position then, an announced she contemplated suing Litsinger.

U. S. FINANCE BILL SIGNED BY HOOVER

Democratic leader; Speaker Garner and Senator Glass, of Virginia, defender of the Federal Reserve System. The conference ended in less than an hour with an agreement on the remaining three directors.

The second vital project of the national recovery program, a bill authorizing $125,000,000 new capital for the Federal Land Bank system, also is ready for the President's consideration.

When this bill reached the White House yesterday afternoon it was sent promptly to the Treasury Department for examination by experts as to administrative details and legal constructions. The President probably will act on it today.

The reconstruction bill was carried to the White House by Representative Claude V. Parsons (Democrat), Illinois, chairman of the committee on enrolled bills, and Representative Guy E. Campbell, of Pennsylvania, ranking Republican member of the committee.

The President had left his office at 6 o'clock, but Secretary Theodore Joslin carried the bill to him in the Executive Mansion. It was signed in the President's personal study.

While awaiting the enactment of the appropriation bills, Gen. Dawes and his hastily assembled staff will push forward today in the work of locating the headquarters of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and assembling the necessary office equipment.

Mr. Dawes said yesterday the organization will be ready to function the minute it may do so under the full authority of law.

SOVIET PLANS BOOST IN LIVING CONDITION

300 Per Cent Improvement Set as Goal for Second 5-Year Schedule.

Moscow, Jan. 22 (U.P.).—A 300 per cent improvement in living conditions of the masses of Soviet Russia was established today as the government's goal in the second five-year plan.

A detailed outline of the second plan, extending up to 1937, was issued on the official anniversary of the death of Lenin, founder of the Soviet union, and for the purpose of guiding the forthcoming conference of Communist party leaders from all parts of Russia. It was issued by the powerful politburo.

The Soviet union must be fortified as a base for international socialism, the statement declared, but at the same time it said that the "successes" of the first five-year plan were possible only because of the defeat of the exiled Leon Trotzky's theory that construction of a socialistic state in one country rather than by continuous revolution throughout the world is impossible.

Would Destroy Conditions.

The outline provided for "complete liquidation of capitalist elements and classes generally by destroying the conditions which breed class differences and exploitation."

It called for a three-fold increase in consumption of food, clothes and other goods by every inhabitant of Soviet Russia.

This improvement in living standards would be achieved through further expansion and mechanization of industry, transportation, and agriculture from 1933 to 1937, giving the Soviet "the first place in Europe in the domain of technique" and the first place in the world in a series of important economic branches.

Amazing Figures Advanced.

Amazing figures were advanced as to the program for industrial expansion by 1937. Machine-building industries would be increased 3½ times, electrical energy would be increased to 100,000,000,000 kilowatt hours as compared to 17,000,000,000 scheduled for 1932, coal would be increased at least 250,000,000 tons, and iron at least 22,000,000 tons, oil production would be tripled and the Soviet would supply all of its own needs for copper and other colored metals, as well as all chemicals.

The thorny transportation problem would be met by building 30,000 kilometers of new railroads and intensified automobile and railroad improvement, as well as great aviation progress.

The Politburo ordered total mechanization of farming with the idea of harvesting more than 130,000,000 tons of grain in 1937, doubling cotton and flax production and tripling sugar beet production.

Graft Witness Under Indictment

New York, Jan. 22 (A.P.). — One Hofstadter legislative committee witness was indicted, arrested, fingerprinted and photographed today, while another lost one more phase of his battle against testifying before the inquiry board.

Each of two indictments against Deputy City Clerk James L. McCormick, 62-year-old head of the Marriage License Bureau and a Tammany leader, charged a felony and a misdemeanor growing out of McCormick's testimony before the committee, which is investigating city affairs, that he had received about $235,000 in "tips" from couples he married in the Municipal Chapel.

Meanwhile, Chief Judge Benjamin N. Cardozo, of the court of appeals, gave Samuel Seabury, committee counsel, permission to start a contempt action against State Senator John A. Hastings in the supreme court for the senator's refusal to answer a committee subpena.

amounting to about 2,000,000 marks.

In this case, however, the bankers can demand repayment at a rate of only 15 per cent semiannually.

The principal creditors may demand repayment of 10 per cent of their claims on March 1, but actual repayment can be made only in cases in which outstanding credit liens have been reduced by less than 10 per cent since October 8, 1931.

It was believed that practically nothing would actually be repaid at that date because the credit lines have been reduced by more than 10 per cent since the aforementioned date.

David Lloyd George, only recently returned from a long sea trip and awaiting an auspicious moment to get back into battle, said tonight: "I haven't the ghost of an idea what it all means. It is amazing that ministers should be given permission to vote against their own cabinet."

The official view in Downing street is that under ordinary circumstances, with party discipline in effect, today's events would have called for cabinet resignations. Under the National regime, however, party feelings must be submerged in the interest of the national welfare.

Trotzky Leases Villa on Isle.

Istanbul, Turkey, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Leon Trotzky, whom the Soviet Russians call "Judas" Trotzky, has taken a two-year lease on a villa on the Island of Prinkipo, a move which appears to discredit published reports that he intended going to Germany to live.

COAL RATE HEARINGS TO BEGIN IN CAPITAL

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 22.—Hearings being held here before examiners of the Interstate Commerce Commission on the petition of Baltimore and Washington coal dealers for a reduction of freight rates on anthracite coal will be continued in Washington on Monday.

Announcement of the change of location was made at the adjournment of the hearings today by W. B. Wilbur, who, with James J. Wilson, is conducting the hearings, which started here in the Association of Commerce Building on Wednesday.

The petitioners contend that the commission should grant them a reduction in the rates on coal shipments from the coal fields of Pennsylvania to Baltimore and Washington.

W. J. Strobel, rate expert from Washington, who testified today for the Washington dealers, said that the routes now used by the carriers from the mines to Washington were not the shortest practical routes which could be used.

Attorneys for the carriers, however, objected to this testimony on the grounds that the witness was not competent to say whether the routes he proposed were practical from the railroads' standpoint. They admitted that his shorter routes were "shorter possible routes," but not necessarily "shorter practical routes."

George W. Krause, a witness for the Davison Chemical Co., which, with the American Sugar Refining Co., has intervened on behalf of the petitioners, introduced schedules and exhibits to show that the rates on coal to Baltimore from the mines were too high with relation to the rates from the mines to New Jersey points.

REPRESENTATIVE RAINEY.

HENRY T. RAINEY, of Illinois, Democratic floor leader, is a magnificent figure in the House. His shock of white hair surmounts a broad and deep brow, beneath which gaze kindly, contemplative eyes which hold no hint of cynicism or harshness despite the many years he has been embattled in the conduct of the Nation.

He has to raise his voice above his normal tone of conversation to be heard over the clatter of typewriters in his office. He addresses his secretary as Miss Margaret and tells her to go home at the specified hour while he and Mrs. Rainey remain and finish up the mail incident to the daily tasks of every congressman.

When Congress took the Christmas recess Mr. and Mrs Rainey remained in Washington so that he could work. Sightseers had free run of the place with Congress adjourned and they filed past his office, but, at the instance of the guides stopped to see the Democratic leader at work.

"Why don't you shut your door?" he was asked.

"Well, that would disappoint a lot of persons. I'm a part of the show. I'm getting a partition fixed up in a corridor so I can have a little privacy, but people want to see this office."

The fighting spirit of the white plumed Democratic leader is symbolized not only in his fighting jaw but in the manner in which he carries his jaw. He tucks it a little into his neck as might a man about to hit the line with determination and confident his charge shall produce results.

His home is in Carrolton, Ill., and it would take a book to tell half as much of the history of Carrollton as Mr. Rainey can tell without pause or hesitation. Perhaps the flowing, black bow tie he always wears has some connection with the fact that he is one of the members of Congress who do not disclose their age in their biographies in the Congressional Directory, but records show he was born on August 20, 1860.

Mr. Rainey was born of Democratic parents. He won considerable attention as a lawyer in railroad claims cases. He made enough money to buy himself a farm. He added to it. He now has 500 acres, which is not a mean farm in his neighborhood. He raises blooded cattle, blooded hogs, and deer, and if it hadn't been for the latter he would have lost considerable money in operating his prize farm in the last few years.

Elected first to the fifty-eighth Congress he upset tradition for years as the only Democrat from his otherwise Republican territory. A member of the ways and means committee, he has achieved national distinction by way of his knowledge of tax and tariff matters. He is one of those legendary figures about whom they talk and say that if he were shut in a room entirely alone he could write an intelligible tariff bill.

LEADERS OF U. S. BUSINESS BEGIN FIGHT ON TAX BOOSTS

increase in the Federal levy upon cigarettes might result in a yield of less revenue to the Government if higher prices curtail consumption.

Parker cited a decline in smoking during the last six months, and said any additional tax burden would be passed on to the consumer.

"If there is unabated purchasing by the consumers," Parker said, "you have added to his taxation precisely as if you had reduced the income tax brackets to include the 20,000,000 consumers, or had imposed a tax on coffee or food or raiment."

Mr. Sloan, of General Motors, and six other automobile leaders who called at the White House, told President Hoover their industry considered a sales tax at this time "unfair," adding:

"We feel definitely that such a tax would put the brakes on continued volume production, thereby affecting adversely employment and the sales of industries allied with our own.

"We are willing to pay our part of any general tax, but we feel that a 5 per cent sales tax on automobiles alone is discriminatory against our industry."

Check Tax Plan Hit.

Guy H. Bloom, representing the American Institute of Bank and Commercial Stationers, contended a tax on checks "would tend to increase hoarding and tend to return the public to the use of cash payments, thereby aiding pay-roll robberies."

Similar testimony was given by Maurice Saunders, of the Lithographers National Association, and Andrew J. Kennedy, of the Amalgamated Lithographers of America, also of New York City. They estimated the use of checks would be reduced 25 per cent.

George V. La Monte, of Nutley, N. J., representing safety paper manufacturers, testified the reduced use of checks would tend to increase dangers of cash pay-roll robberies.

Opposes Radio Tax Boost.

One witness, Arthur T. Murray, of Springfield, Mass., was heard in opposition to the proposed 5 per cent tax on radios. He is president of the United American Bosch Co.

"The condition in the mind of the buyer today is such that anything meaning an increase to him would affect materially the volume of business," Murray said. "For the manufacturer to absorb the increase is asking him to increase his losses.

"I can see few things to make business better in the next eleven months and many things to make it worse. You would not get your estimated $10,000,000 in revenue, but only about $5,000,000.

"You are dealing with an industry sick almost to death. For many companies this tax would be the straw to break the camel's back."

Warning on Tobacco Levy.

Mr. Parker, of the Tobacco Merchants Association, told the committee:

"Will the industry bear this additional burden? I think it will not under the present conditions."

Parker said he spoke for the industry generally, but directed his testimony to cigarettes in particular. He opposed specifically the Mellon tax plan to increase tobacco taxes 16 per cent, and pictured the Government as being "the senior and dominant partner in the tobacco business."

"The manufacturers of tobacco products in this country have now an income substantially in excess of $125,000,000 a year," Parker said. "That, added to the $500,000,000 the Government receives, makes an aggregate income from the joint enterprise of $625,000,000, whereof you get $500,000,000, and we get $125,000,000—precisely an 80-to-20 split.

"It is solely a business between two partners, one of whom has at present $500,000,000 at stake in the proposition which may not be destroyed in the proposition, but may be jeopardized or diminished by a wrong procedure."

Parker said there has been a "significant and distressing" loss in cigarette consumption of 6,000,000,000 in the last six months of 1931, and added:

"If you go too far in your charges you will get not more but less money."

He contended an increased cigarette tax meant either unabated consumption, thereby adding to the tax paid by 20,000,000 regular cigarette smokers, or reduced consumption. He declined to suggest where the Government could best find more revenue.

Predict Burden on Farmers.

Representatives Kerr and Abernethy (Democrats), North Carolina, and Dr. Samuel H. Halley, of Lexington, Ky., joined in opposition to the proposed increase. They contended the tax would be passed on to the farmer, who is in no condition to pay it.

E. H. Naylor, of Springfield, Mass., secretary-treasurer of the Writing Paper Manufacturers Association, and Representatives Baldridge (Republican), Nebraska, and White (Republican), Ohio, opposed the proposed 2-cent tax on bank checks.

"A tax of 2 cents a check would mean a burden of approximately 1,000 per cent on the purchase price of checks," Naylor said.

Baldridge contended it would work a hardship to dairy farmers paid in small amounts by checks, while White testified the 1899 check tax had reduced the free movement of checks.

3 Kentucky Guardsmen Are Indicted in Thefts

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—The Franklin County Grand Jury today indicted W. H. Jones, jr., of Glasgow, former adjutant general of Kentucky; Albert E. Ely, Glasgow, a captain in the National Guard under Jones, and C. L. Gullett, of Salt Lick, also a captain under Jones. All were charged with embezzlement of guard funds.

TWO BILLION BOARD TO AID IN U. S. TRADE

cial institutions that are to get aid now have hundreds of thousands of dependents. Through the banks must come millions in weekly pay rolls and in loans for doing business; in them are deposited savings for the protection of many more; the insurance companies must make payments on policies which thousands more depend on for safety; the railroads must pay interest on bonds which represent the livelihood of another enormous number of people.

For institutions of that size there is now no place whatever to borrow money. The reconstruction corporation, backed by Government security, expects to have $2,000,000,000 to lend to pinched corporations.

But even with that much money, it will not be able to make loans of unlimited amount. The process will be more like a ration system, just enough going to each institution to carry it along until its earning power is back up to the safety mark.

FIGHT ON AUTO TAX WILL BEGIN TODAY

Excise Levy, Congress to Be Told, Would Set Back Recovery Efforts.

Appearing before the House ways and means committee this morning, the most important figures in the automotive industry, the Nation's largest manufacturing enterprise, will ask Congress to refrain from inflicting upon it the proposed special Federal excise tax. Such a levy, they will contend, would not only be discriminatory but would nullify the efforts they have been making for months to lead the country back to good times. In the presentation of their case, which they believe to be the most important one they have ever been called upon to make in defense of their business, they will be reinforced by representatives of the Nation's 44,000 motor-car dealers and of a number of allied industries.

A new element in opposition to the proposed special excise tax appeared on the scene yesterday when dealers from all parts of the country arrived in Washington to proclaim this new threat to their business the most serious of the last two years. The enormous business mortality among motor-car merchants in every town and city in the United States certainly would be increased by the creation of such an insurmountable obstacle to motor-car sales at this time, spokesmen for the retailers declared.

7,000 Are Forced Out.

Citing the fact that more than 7,000 dealers out of slightly more than 50,000, or 14 per cent, were forced out of business in 1931, representatives of the group made no secret of their apprehension that the number will be increased in one more profitless year.

"The dealer has fought a courageous, but losing, fight for two of the worst years in automotive history," said F. W. A. Vesper, treasurer of the National Automobile Dealers Association. "This year, his prospects seemed to justify that fight; to give him promise of profitable operation through renewed buying. There is no question but that this proposed special tax would destroy all hope of a profit in 1932."

Dealer Group Affected.

Members of the dealer group lent ready voice to the proposals made for opposing the tax at a special meeting of the directors of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce held here yesterday morning in the United States Chamber of Commerce Building. At this session, which also brought together representatives of a number of allied industries—steel, rubber, petroleum, textiles and others—a complete willingness to bear their share of any general tax increase was voiced by motordom's collective leaders.

The national budget must be balanced as a precursor of more prosperous conditions, and that probably will call for increased taxes, the industry's leaders agreed. Their opposition is not to higher taxes at this time but to special, discriminatory levies, which, in the case of the automotive field, will cripple the industry just when its condition gives promise of quick and significant improvement.

The effect of the tax on the industry's capacity to give employment will base the appeal which will be made before the House ways and means committee at 10 o'clock this morning. The industry's presentation will be made by George M. Graham, vice president of Rockne Motors, subsidiary of the Studebaker Corporation.

Witness Before Committee.

Another witness before the committee today will be a Michigan member of Congress, Representative M. J. Hart; while Representative Norton L. Lichtenwalner, of Pennsylvania, will present the spokesman of the dealers, Mr. Vesper.

Few of the most prominent figures in the industry will be missing when the hearing opens. Motor car company presidents, or chairmen, who will appear before the committee include: Alfred P. Sloan, jr., General Motors Corporation; Walter P. Chrysler, Chrysler Corporation; Roy D. Chapin, Hudson; Alvan Macauley, Packard; C. W. Nash, Nash; E. L. Cord, Auburn, and Robert B. Graham, Graham-Paige. Although unable to attend, Edsel B. Ford will be represented by W. C. Cowling.

Shoreham Building Trustees File Plea

D. C. Supreme Court Gets Petition From Holders of Mortgage Notes.

Attorneys for a group of persons holding mortgage notes secured by the released first trust on the Shoreham Building, Fifteenth and H streets northwest, yesterday petitioned the District Supreme Court to declare the released trusts "first and paramount" so that the trust that replaced them would be relegated to the background.

The petitioners, William Whal, 814 Farragut street northwest; S. Wahl, same address; Marjorie B. Robinson, 1657 Thirty-first street northwest, and Nancy Lane Rigg, of England, said that they had purchased the bonds from the Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey Co., and that they had not been paid when the first trust of $2,500,000 on the Shoreham office building had been released on July 16 of last year.

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., maker of the trust that succeeded the released trust, was named as a defendant, as were also the trustees of the bankrupt Swartzell firm, and others who served at various times as trustees.

Daniels Forecasts Democrat Victory

Former Navy Secretary Denies Seeking Governor's Chair at Raleigh.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Josephus Daniels, former Secretary of the Navy and publisher of the Raleigh (N. C.) News and Observer, today said the Democratic party in the next presidential campaign would "enjoy an overwhelming victory."

Mr. Daniels, however, does not wish to be Governor of North Carolina. He was asked about telegrams, telephone calls, and other forms of requests from North Carolina organizations and individuals, resolutions of mass meetings and suggestions from close political friends that he succeed C. Max Gardner as head of his native State's government.

"I will answer them definitely upon my return to Raleigh, but I do not desire to be Governor of North Carolina," he replied. He would not amplify his statement and waved aside any further questions as he smiled and leaned back in a comfortable chair in his room at St. Joseph's Infirmary, where he is recovering from injuries suffered in an automobile accident near here January 13.

The Copeland bill to exempt from taxation District property of the Daughters of 1812 will be reported favorably to the Senate, Senator Arthur Capper's District committee voted yesterday.

INSPECTION IS MADE OF CHEST AGENCIES

"Come and See" Committee Is Conducted Through Capital Charities.

Distinguished Washingtonians and nationally known personages, comprising a group of about 25, obtained first-hand information yesterday as to the working of Community Chest organizations on the "come and see" trip conducted by Brig. Gen. Michael J. Lenihan, chairman of the Community Chest committee.

The group, which was organized by George J. Adams working in cooperation with Gen. Lenihan, visited receiving headquarters of the District of Columbia Committee on Employment at the Messer Building, 1000 Pennsylvania avenue; the municipal wood yard, the Salvation Army emergency Lodge for homeless men at 479 C street northwest; the Holy Family Day Nursery, and the Hebrew Home for the Aged.

In the party were Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, sister of Vice President Charles Curtis; Ray Lyman Wilbur, Secretary of the Interior; Senator Robert D. Carey, Representative Hamilton Fish, Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, president of the District of Columbia Board of Commissioners; Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, member of the District of Columbia Board of Commissioners; Mrs. Cary T. Grayson, Mrs. Frank W. Mondell, Mrs. Benjamin F. Weems, Miss Anne Michelin, Miss Eleanor Preston, Miss Helen Strauss, Mrs. Charles A. Goldsmith, Miss Martha Ellis, Miss Betty Tillsbury, Mrs. Goodwin, Edward F. Colladay, Dr. Thomas E. Green, John Poole, A. Julien Brylawski, Joseph D. Kaufman, and Ross Haworth.

Escorted by a motorcycle police guard the party left the District Building at 2:30, stopping first at the Messer Building, where Linn C. Drake and Miss Adelaide Barker, head of the application bureau of the District of Columbia committee on employment, explained the work of this bureau.

From this headquarters the party went to the municipal wood yard, where Mrs. Gann, Senator Carey, Representative Fish and others took great interest in the work being done.

Seeking to find what these men received for their wood-chopping efforts the party next journey to the Salvation Army Emergency Lodge, where Ensign Gilbert Decker and Capt. Alex Adkins, of the Salvation Army, showed them through the quarters. Cleanliness characterized every portion of the emergency lodge. Motion pictures were taken at this point.

The next stop was at the Holy Family Day Nursery. Members of the party were shown through the nursery by Mother Mary Lourds, Mother Ann M. Angela, Sister M. Ursula, Sister Anna and Sister Teresa. Again the caravan traveled through several alleys in which John Ihlder pointed out the conditions.

From the alleys the next stop was made at the Hebrew Home for the Aged. Charles A. Goldsmith, president of the home; Saul Lansburgh and Maurice Maser, superintendent of the home, received the guests.

Hoover Is Termed Leader in Crisis

Secretary Hurley Addresses Commercial Club on Depression.

Chicago, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—President Hoover was described tonight by his Secretary of War, Patrick J. Hurley, as a precedent-setter in leading the Nation through a depression.

Addressing the Commercial Club of Chicago, the War Secretary said that in previous hard time periods, it had never been considered the duty of the President to undertake the direction of the Nation's commerce, industry and banking, to seek jobs for unemployed and to provide funds to care for jobless.

"All of these things," Secretary Hurley said, "have been done and are now being done by President Hoover." From the beginning of the slump, the Secretary of War added, the President has "continuously fought for the maintenance of the American standard of living." Discussing the "weaknesses in our economic system," Secretary Hurley said "one of these as it now appears, is an overconcentration of wealth in the hands of a few."

Association Urges Action on Loan Bill

St. Louis, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—The National Association of Real Estate Boards today voted to urge Congress to take immediate action on the Federal Home Loan Bank System bill, now pending in Congress.

The association also voted to appoint a committee on housing problems to cooperate with President Hoover's conference on home building and home ownership. The association tonight installed Lawrence T. Stevenson, Pittsburgh, Pa., as president for the coming year, to succeed Harry S. Kissell, Springfield, Ohio.

By the Right Rev. WILLIAM F. McDOWELL,
Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

People are likely to forget that the Community Chest is not asking any one to give to it for itself or for its own sake. Back of the Chest are all the agencies and institutions in Washington at work for welfare, for relief, for assistance and protection.

I would be glad if no one should ever think of giving to the Chest, but always of giving through the Chest to all those good and approved causes. Indeed, I think it would be well if every one, before making a gift, large or small, should carefully read the list of objects for which the Chest asks funds and to which all Chest funds are distributed.

The Chest is the efficient, economical and cooperative method of securing funds which would have to be raised by other means if the Chest did not exist. The argument for the Chest, therefore, is the argument for all the causes. The Chest sounds rather vague and abstract. The human appeal which comes year by year lies on beyond in the institutions and the human beings whom they are serving. No institution is being served. The institutions exist for service. Only human life at last is being served. If givers will clearly visualize that human appeal, the rest will be clear.

The argument for giving more is twofold. First, there is each year a bit more need. This year there is much more. Unemployment not only presents its own need, it creates needs by its very existence. Second, this year the ability of large groups to help themselves is dreadfully reduced. There is more need of help and much less power of self-help. Therefore, those who can lift are called upon to lift more. And they will do it.

Television Station Burns in New Jersey

Passaic, N. J., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Fire starting when an electric arc burst its glass vacuum tube today swept the experimental laboratories of the Forest Radio Co. and station, W2XCD, causing $65,000 damage.

Fed by oxygen gas, used to purify neon and argon gases used extensively by the laboratories, the fire spread rapidly in the frame structure. The broadcasting station, operated by Jenkins Television Co., a De Forest subsidiary, was wrecked.

MRS. JUDD CALMLY VIEWS 'BODY' TRUNK

Her Defense Counsel Loses Fight to Bar Suitcase as Evidence.

Courthouse, Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Winnie Ruth Judd sat, seemingly indifferent, in court today and eyed without apparent emotion the scarred and battered luggage in which the bodies of her two alleged victims were transported from a cottage here to Los Angeles.

In one of the trunks the body of Anne Lerol, for whose slaying Mrs. Judd is now being tried, was sent as baggage. She heard, seemingly unmoved, the fiery argument of her attorneys in an attempt to exclude as evidence a stained suitcase in which portions of the body of Hedvig Samuelson were taken to Los Angeles.

Argument Is Futile.

If Judge Howard C. Speakman's ruling, by which he denied stubborn objection of defense counsel to introduction of the suitcase, is carried out with respect to other physical evidence, the slender defendant likely will be forced to observe presentation to the jury of photographs of the dismembered body of Miss Samuelson, who was her friend.

Defense counsel Paul Schenck, Herman Lewkowitz and Joseph B. Zaversack argued against the introduction of the suitcase in an attempt to prevent setting precedent which would allow display to the jury of other and more graphic bits of evidence bearing upon the killings. More physical evidence of such nature is available in connection with the slaying and dismemberment of Miss Samuelson than in the murder of Mrs. Leroi.

Schenck argued the suitcase "contained portions of the body of Miss Samuelson, and nothing else," and was, therefore, "not inseparable from the Leroi case."

No Objection to Trunk.

"If the prosecutor is allowed to produce such evidence, then it is incumbent upon him to prove all elements of the Samuelson case, and we might as well try them both together," he said.

The objection to the suitcase was overruled, after a three-hour court recess during which opposing counsel consulted authorities.

The defense made no objection to introduction of a large black trunk, in which the body of Mrs. Leroi tacitly was admitted to have been found in Los Angeles, or of a hat box, which when discovered by police in Los Angeles, contained a pistol. Both were identified by various witnesses as having been taken to the train in Phoenix by Mrs. Judd on October 18, and to have been abandoned by her in Los Angeles the next day.

New Bantam Car Produced by Ford

Expected to Be Used to Compete With Similar Makes in Britain.

Detroit, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—The Michigan Manufacturer and Financial Record tomorrow will say:

"Unheralded publicly and without the knowledge of the thousands of workers in the River Rouge plant the Ford Motor Co. a few days ago shipped to England twelve 'bantam' four-cylinder cars bearing the Ford name plate. This strange product of the Ford Co., less than 10 feet in length from bumper to bumper, has a fender width of 55 inches, a height of 53 inches, topped off with a motor exactly 11 inches long.

"It is presumed, in the absence of any official statement by the company, that the new cars will serve as models for use in the production of a small, light, low-priced car to compete with the small cars of European production of the Austin type and that they will be made in volume at the new Ford plant in Dagenham, England, and other European points, where Ford is manufacturing cars."

Death Appeal Case Under Advisement

Review of Eight Convicted Men Held Under Heavy Guard.

Montgomery, Ala., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Life or death for eight Negroes convicted at Scottsboro for assaults on two white girls were argued in the Alabama Supreme Court today under the watchful eyes of prison guards who were sent there to thwart any attempt at demonstrations.

William F. Feagin, director of prisons, assigned them to duty in the room without consulting Attorney General Thomas E. Knight, Jr., who disclaimed any knowledge that guards were in the crowd.

Feagin explained later that his action was merely a precautionary move. Appeals of the Negroes, whose cause various organizations have championed so vigorously as to lead Chief Justice John C. Anderson to denounce "efforts to bulldoze the court," were taken under advisement by the court after arguments were completed today.

Paderewski Will Give Benefit Recital Here

New York, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Ignace Paderewski, Polish pianist, will give several benefit recitals during his present five-month concert tour of this country, it was announced today. The first will be in Washington, D. C., Monday, under sponsorship of Mrs. Herbert Hoover. Receipts will be donated to the American Red Cross.

For the benefit of the musicians' emergency aid committee, now campaigning for $300,000 for the jobless, he will appear in Madison Square Garden here February 8. There is seating capacity for 16,000.

Samuel S. Eveland, Inventor, Ends Life

Philadelphia, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Samuel S. Eveland, 63, chemist and inventor, was found shot to death today in his Overbrook home. Police pronounced it a suicide.

Recently Eveland was given credit for the perfection of a method of purifying ramie, a vegetable fiber. His name came before the United States Senate lobby committee last November, when John Holland, investigator, testified Eveland reported hearing a well-known sugar company official order a sum of money sent to one of the senators.

Indian Who Saved Teacher Gets Another U. S. Citation

Brave Describes Rescue of Girl as Duty and Discounts Praise.

"You have gained the right to a place among the famed of our Nation for this heroic act," was the citation presented to Giles Brown Wolf, a full-blooded Sioux Indian, by Charles J. Rhoads, Commissioner of Indian Affairs, for the rescue of Miss Jeredeen Burke, 19-year-old school teacher, of Ziebach County, S. Dak.

Brown Wolf was told of the plight of the young teacher, who was lost in a blizzard, by school authorities, who were searching for her.

The story told by him after the Indian agent was notified gives an insight on the stoic, modest brave who ventured the school teacher's rescue, and won the admiration of his fellow tribe members and citations from President Hoover, the Great White Father, and of the Indian Bureau.

He told the bureau in his broken English the following story:

"I got up and put on clothes, and went over to Dick Charging Eagles', about a half-mile away, and asked him to go along. I got worried about her (Miss Burke), and went down to Rattlesnake Creek. Dick got cold and went home. I was looking around and found 'em (Miss Burke) then. She was all in and didn't know where she was.

"She said, 'Can't you help me out?'

MISS JEREDEEN BURKE.

I had to help her on horse. I took her to schoolhouse and my horse walked away. I went to friend's house, got horse and sled. I helped her on sled and walked home. Pretty windy and cold."

SUSPENSION URGED OF ANTITRUST ACTS

Steiwer Proposes Plan for Restricting Production of Natural Resources.

(United Press.)

Suspension of the antitrust laws to permit agreements for restriction of production of natural resources, notably lumber, coal, oil and metals, was proposed to Congress yesterday by Senator Frederick Steiwer (Republican), Oregon.

He introduced a joint resolution to permit such emergency agreements to be made pending a final decision by Congress on the amendment of the antitrust laws.

The resolution would create a joint committee of five senators and five representatives to investigate and report to Congress whether antitrust amendments are desirable.

The temporary suspensions which Steiwer proposed to authorize would be conditioned by Federal Trade Commission approval that the agreements were in the public interest and designed to conserve resources and maintain continuity of employment.

Tariff Hearings Set Today.

This proposal was advanced at the end of a busy day, in which congressional action was completed on the President's reconstruction bill, while the Senate finance committee opened the way for one of the big partisan fights of the session. The committee decided to start hearings today on the Democratic tariff bill passed by the House.

The Senate itself passed several important bills, including an omnibus pension measure for more than 200 widows and other dependents of Civil War veterans, and a bill by Senator W. H. King (Democrat), Utah, to give men the same immigration rights as women. The King bill, which now goes to the House, would admit husbands of American citizens, the same as wives of American citizens are now admitted.

The Senate also temporarily blocked the reported pending compromise by Attorney General Mitchell of the big Government antitrust patent suit against Radio Corporation and other leading radio companies, by adopting the Blaine resolution. This calls for a full report, and directs that no action be taken until the Senate is advised.

Bankruptcy Exemption Passes.

The Hastings bill exempting building and loan associations from being adjudged bankrupts, and the Bingham resolution awarding gold medals to Harold Gatty and Wiley Post, around-the-world fliers, also were passed by the Senate.

The House insular committee carried on its hearings of Philippine independence advocates, with testimony from island leaders that "a mere grant of autonomy" will not satisfy the Filipinos. They also stated that the Filipinos were prepared to accept the consequences of a tariff against their products.

The House agriculture committee hearing on curbing of short selling heard Seibel Harris, a grain-trading expert, assert that elimination of market speculation would cause wheat prices to drop 10 to 15 cents a bushel. Bear raids can be checked, he said, under present laws.

Hope Abandoned For Mail Rate Rise

(Associated Press.)

The Postoffice Department has given up hope for obtaining postal rate increases as part of the administration's method of reducing the Treasury deficit.

F. A. Tilton, Assistant Postmaster General in charge of fiscal affairs, said yesterday the matter was "a dead issue" so far as the Postoffice Department was concerned.

Postmaster General Brown has recommended to Congress that rates on nonlocal first-class mail be increased from 2 cents to 3 cents and that the 1921 war measure rates be resumed on bulk second-class matter. Opposition has arisen on Capitol Hill to the proposed increases and approval of the legislation was considered unlikely.

Purchase of More Land For School Authorized

Purchase of two more pieces of land as additions to the site of the long-disputed site of the Fort Reno High School was authorized yesterday by the District Commissioners.

The offer of Fred Walmsley to sell four lots at 3922 Chesapeake street for $16,900 and the offer of W. A. Volkman, of 4345 Wisconsin avenue, to sell two lots nearby for $3,240 were accepted upon recommendation of Maj. H. L. Robb, Assistant Engineer Commissioner.

HOUSE GROUP HEARS APPEAL OF FILIPINOS

Independence Immediately Is Vigorously Asked of Insular Committee.

The Filipino appeal for immediate and complete independence from the United States was opened yesterday before the House committee on insular affairs by Senator Sergio Osmena, chairman of the Philippine Independence Mission, and Speaker Manuel Roxas, of the Philippine House of Representatives.

They emphasized not only the intense desire of the Filipinos for independence, but the readiness of the people to assume any and all burdens and obligations which the grant of liberty might impose upon them.

"You have completed your task," said Speaker Roxas in his presentation, "and the time has come for the United States and the Philippines to go their separate course. We want to live as Filipinos."

"This is the ninth mission which has appealed to Congress for some definite action on the matter of independence," said Senator Osmena. "Fifteen years have elapsed since the Jones law established the government which we were led to believe would result in independence. It is, therefore, our contention that the time for final action has arrived."

Addressing himself to the economic relations between the two countries, Speaker Roxas said: "The present economic relationship is an artificial one. One which may be withdrawn by the American Congress at will. It is one that was imposed on us and that we feel has stimulated our economic development along lines which we might otherwise not have followed. If we can get our immediate freedom, however, we ask for no conditions and request no concessions which the United States, out of her sense of justice, is not ready and willing to grant. Speaking for those persons who have investments in the Philippines, I would say that whether or not you should cut off your economic ties at once depends upon your sense of justice."

Committee questioning also developed from Speaker Roxas the fact that even in 1931 the Philippine budget was not only balanced but had a surplus of several million pesos. He also stated that the public debt of the Philippines is less than 48 per cent of the authorized limit of about 170,000,000 pesos and with a sinking fund on deposit in the United States of 51,000,000 pesos. The Philippine currency circulation of 108,000,000 pesos, Speaker Roxas testified, is secured by a reserve, mainly on deposit in the United States with members of the Federal Reserve system at least as large as that behind any currency in the world.

Bonds of New York Quickly Purchased

$100,000,000 Issue of City Stock Notes Will Bear 6 Per Cent.

New York, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Investors today quickly snapped up the city's new offering of $100,000,000 in 6 per cent corporate stock notes, and this sent scampering the wolf that has been sniffing at New York's doorsteps.

The banking syndicate's subscription books were closed within two hours after public offering at par of the notes, although they represented the largest piece of municipal financing to be attempted in the troubled investment market in several months.

Subscriptions received were far in excess of the amount of the issue, and bankers said allotments would favor the small investor rather than big institutions. It was understood, however, that the banking syndicate was keeping a large portion of the issue. Bidding for the bonds in the open market was fairly active, and they sold from $5 to $7.50 above the offering price of par for bonds of $1,000 face value. The bonds mature in from three to five years.

Wife Requests Police To Seek Her Husband

The wife of Louis F. Cheshire, 40 years old, of 1115 Penn street northeast, yesterday asked police to look out for her husband. She said he left home yesterday morning leaving a note for her which declared: "I am going tonight."

Mrs. Cheshire told police the man had been out of work for some time and was despondent. She fears for his safety, she said. Mr. Cheshire is stout, has light hair and gray eyes, according to the description furnished police.

JURY RECESS HALTS HAWAII INDICTMENTS

Mysterious Move Sets Back Action Until Tuesday; Causes Sensation.

Honolulu, T. H., Jan. 22 (U.P.).—A surprise move by the Oahu grand jury caused consternation here tonight and delayed the return of indictments asked against Mrs. Grace Hubbard Fortescue, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie and two Navy enlisted men until next Tuesday, at least.

The jury announced a recess until 10 a. m. Tuesday. No reason was given.

Two hours earlier the last of 28 witnesses assembled by City and County Prosecutor James Gilliland to bolster his demand that Mrs. Fortescue and the three Navy men be tried on charges of killing Joseph Kahahawai had been heard.

Reform Bill Signed.

In the interval between the closing of testimony and announcement of adjournment there had been much activity about the jury room. The jurors had called for a copy of the instructions given them when they were sworn in at the start of the year. They had summoned Judge A. M. Cristy, presiding judge of the criminal court.

While the result of the grand jury investigation was being awaited anxiously, Gov. Lawrence Judd signed the so-called police reform bill.

The executive affixed his signature immediately after it had been sent to him by territorial legislators in special session.

He quickly announced his appointments to the Police Commission created by the bill.

Maneuvers to Be Held.

The four Republicans and one Democrat chosen were:

A. D. Castro, president of the Union Trust Co.; F. D. Lowry, an official of Lewers & Cooke, Ltd.; George I. Brown, capitalist and brother of the prominent golfer; F. W. Greene, plantation manager, and E. E. Bodge, an official of the Von Hamm-Young Co. Bodge is the Democrat.

These men will appoint a chief of police, who will take over many of the duties now handled by Sheriff Patrick Gleason, an elected official. Gleason has been criticised because his officers have failed to stop numerous attacks on women in recent months.

Rumors circulated in Honolulu today that because of existing conditions here the spring maneuvers of the United States fleet might be held elsewhere Navy Department officials have announced the maneuvers would be held here as usual, but would be much shorter than originally scheduled and sailors would not be granted shore leave in Honolulu.

Banks in Norfolk Agree On Plan to Credit City

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—An arrangement with Norfolk banks has been consummated whereby the City of Norfolk will be given financial assistance necessary to meet all its current obligations and pay rolls until steps have been completed for placing its operations upon cash basis, Mayor E. Jeff Robertson announced today.

Advance in Air Travel

By H. G. WELLS

THE armament competitions of the opening decade of the twentieth century, and then the war, were tremendously stimulating to both airship and aeroplane construction. At the outset of the conflict aeroplanes were used only for reconnaissance and to mark for gunfire. By the end of the war an elaborate system of airfighting existed, and night after night great air raids—in which the big aeroplane of the Handley Page-Gotha type presently ousted the more vulnerable Zeppelin—bombed the belligerent populations behind the fighting lines.

* * * *

The peace of Versailles released the accumulated possibilities of the civil transport aeroplane. The first regular air services had already been established before the war in Germany in 1912, when rigid airships were used. By 1920 there were three British and two French companies providing cross-channel services by means of aeroplanes. The British interests were subsequently (in 1926) concentrated in Imperial Air Services, Ltd., which operates between England and France, Switzerland, Germany, and Belgium. British Empire routes were also established in Africa, the Near East, India and Australia. But the British Empire is not very happily planned for air transport. Britain has a very central maritime position, but the main air services of the future are more likely to radiate from the centers of the great land masses of our planet. By 1926 the route mileage of the world's air transport had reached 50,000, and the number of miles flown in that year along these routes was nearly 17,000,000. This progress testifies not only to great improvements in the design and construction of the machines, but also to the increase in efficiency of the internal combustion engine. In 1915 the lightest water cooled motor weighed 4 pounds per horsepower, and the lightest air cooled engine 3 pounds. Today the weights of these engines are more than halved.

* * * *

APART from transport, the aeroplane is being used for many economic and administrative purposes. Vast areas where the population is sparse and means of communication poor are being surveyed from the air. In 1925 and 1926, 120,000 square miles were mapped by aerial photography in Canada. Rivers and coast lines and routes for new roads and railways have been surveyed in the United States, and in Australia the extent and form of the Great Barrier Reef have been recorded. The forest areas of Germany, Canada and other countries are being determined in this way. Mineral resources in Africa and the United States are being investigated. Town surveys have been made in the United States and Germany. The Canadian Salmon Fisheries are being policed by aeroplanes, and cotton and other crops are being sprayed or dusted with insecticides or fungicides by low-flying machines.

* * * *

Few people before 1918 could have believed that archaeological work would ever be undertaken in an aeroplane. But thanks mainly to the energy of one man, Mr. O. G. S. Crawford—who learnt the business as an aerial photographer at Arras during the war—the aeroplane has become now a most important instrument in reconstructing the life of the past. An aerial photograph reveals details in the texture and quality of the ground which are totally invisible to a man on the surface, and the long unsuspected vestiges of ancient settlements and the prehistoric layout of the land have been elucidated to a very remarkable extent in this way.

* * * *

FROM its very beginning, civil air transport has found itself entangled amidst the narrow political boundaries of the past. An International Convention for the Regulation of Aerial Navigation was ratified by many countries in 1922. This was followed by an International Commission for Air Navigation, on which 26 were represented. The commission acts as an advisory body to the governments which send representatives on such questions as customs, licenses and certificates of airworthiness, and the establishment of lighting systems and the provision and dissemination of meteorological information—a strange complex of fiscal, legal and scientific service.

* * * *

It is plain that we are still only in the beginnings of this new age of road and air transport which the internal combustion engine has made possible. The new highroad and the airway are at about the stage the railway had reached a century ago. The actual mechanism, the automobile or the airplane, that is to say, is in existence in a working state. It is the development of the network that has now to be undertaken. Over great parts of the world the normal automobile can not yet be used because of the want of modern roads. Either it must be replaced by automobiles of a special type and toughness—like the Citroen cars used in the North African Desert and the crossing of central Asia—or it can not be used at all.

* * * *

STILL more is regular and trustworthy air travel restricted by ground conditions. Night flying and long distance can not be considered safe until invention and organization have collaborated to anticipate and deal with the at present very heavy risks of fog. But, as we shall see in the next section, conquest of fog by the development of beam wireless, and particularly of the new microrays, to which fog and rain are transparent, is close at hand. There is also needed a great effort in the development and application of meteorological science, so that the aviator may plan his route with assurance, free from the dread of adverse surprises by rain, snow, fog and tempest. Only by evolving a cosmopolitan organization can meteorology achieve that manifest task before it.

Week by week, year by year, at this point, at that, the road map and air route map of the world are being elaborated and redrawn, and every change in these maps involves political, social and economic consequences of the most fundamental order. The transport framework of a new world system is being placed together in spite of a thousand traditional antagonisms and impediments.

Congressional Funeral Parties Held Wasteful

(Associated Press.)

Representative Sumners, (Democrat (Texas), yesterday told a House committee that one way to save Government money is to stop the custom of sending House committees to funerals of members.

With mortality rates what they are, Mr. Sumners said, the expenses of these delegations mount up. He urged action on his resolution to put an end to the practice. The committee deferred the action.

GROUP AGAIN NAMES LANSBURGH AS HEAD

Directors of Merchants and Manufacturers Gather in Annual Session.

Mark Lansburgh was reelected president of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association for a third term at the annual meeting of the new board of governors of the organization yesterday. Other officers elected were James E. Colliflower, first vice president; Ford E. Young, second vice president; Gen. Anton Stephan, third vice president; Louis Levay, treasurer; Edward D. Shaw, secretary, and Ringgold Hart, general counsel.

In his report, Mr. Lansburgh pointed out that despite unsteady national economic conditions, this city has suffered less than any other in the country. He cited Federal Reserve Board reports showing that the retail trade of the department stores here in 1931 was 2 per cent below 1930, as compared to a 7.8 decrease at Baltimore, 8.9 at Richmond, and considerably larger percentages in other cities of the Nation.

Opposition was expressed by the organization to the proposal of the Postmaster General to increase the rate on first-class mail from 2 to 3 cents an ounce; to the Mapes bill, which would increase taxes here by $3,500,000, and to legislation which would curtail the 40 per cent contribution of the Federal Government to the District budget.

Among pending legislative measures approved were the Gibson bill, which would give the District a new license law; the Norton bill, which would make it compulsory for taxi operators to satisfy the Public Utilities Commission of their ability to satisfy claims adjudged against them; the King bill, extending the powers of the District Commissioners, and several measures affecting the District.

Union Will Rescind Ban On Private Funeral Cars

Chicago, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—The Livery Chauffeurs Union announced late today after a conference with public officials that it would rescind immediately its recent order barring privately owned and driven cars from funeral corteges.

The ban threatened at several times to provoke outbreaks of violence and caused an American Legion post to requisition a caisson to bear a veteran's body to the grave today in a funeral in which no hired union driven car participated.

TRANSFER OF ROBB CALLED PROMOTION

Move to Office of Chief Engineer of Army Held Preliminary.

The transfer of Maj. H. L. Robb from the post of Assistant Engineer Commissioner to the office of the Chief Engineer of the Army is in the nature of a promotion, Maj. D. A. Davison, acting Engineer Commissioner, said yesterday. While not at liberty to disclose the details, Maj. Davison said that he understood Maj. Robb is being prepared for a special and important post.

Although Maj. Robb told newspapermen yesterday morning that he knew nothing of the impending transfer, Maj. Davison stated that the District Commissioners had been aware of it for a week. He also said that he will have a hand in the choice of a successor.

The new appointee will not be a Washington man, Maj. Davison said, though beyond that he could not predict who would get the post. While efforts will be made to fill the vacancy as soon as possible, it probably will be a month or six weeks before a new Assistant Engineer Commissioner is designated by the War Department. Maj. Robb will leave within a week or ten days.

Move Causes Stir.

Maj. Davison, who is handling his own work of First Assistant Engineer Commissioner as well as acting in the place of Maj. John C. Gotwals, will also assume the duties of Maj. Robb, pending the appointment of a successor.

The sudden transfer of Maj. Robb aroused considerable comment in the District Building yesterday. While holding one of the most undesirable executive jobs in the District government, because of his supervision of school construction, Maj. Robb was considered one of the ablest men ever assigned to the Engineer Department.

It was largely through his goading of subordinates and contractors that the District's building program was brought so well up to schedule.

Maj. Robb achieved a reputation for quick thinking and quick action in emergencies, such as the collapse of the Roosevelt School steel framework and the wage controversies that have followed the passage of the Bacon-Davis act.

Reorganization Planned.

Maj. Robb has been Assistant Engineer Commissioner since July 5, 1930. He has supervised the work of the municipal architect's office and has negotiated land purchases as well as directed the building program.

Plans for a general reorganization of the Engineer Department and the reported employment of an $8,000-a-year executive are awaiting action by the Personnel Classification Board, Maj. Davison said. Until this report is received, he said he could not discuss the plans.

While Maj. Gotwals has been ordered before the Army retiring board, Maj. Davison, who called on the Engineer Commissioner this week, expressed the belief that he will not be retired. He admitted, however, that it may be some time before Maj. Gotwals is able to return to the District Building.

Beaux Arts Ball Held in New York

Kin of Early Americans Attend Brilliant Society Event.

New York, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—In settings of splendor, and costumed in silken and bejeweled elegance of Colonial times, New York society thronged the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel tonight at the Beaux Arts ball. Nearly 3,000 attended.

Many a direct lineal descendant of historical characters gathered for the colorful midnight pageant of old New York, which was the climax of the evening.

They saw Kenneth Muchison, New York architect, portraying the character of George Washington, gallantly busy in the last scene. He had to say "how-do-you-do" to 55 ladies and kiss fourteen others after his inauguration as first President of the United States.

Boy, 5, Lost in Woods, Is Found by Searchers

Wooster, Ohio, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Weak and scared, little Buddy Goodman, 5, was found late today after being lost more than 24 hours in an adventuresome journey through a woods. Buddy set out yesterday to visit his grandmother in Reevesburg, 15 miles from his home near Loudonville, southwest of here, and it was feared he had drowned in the Mohican River.

The child, lying inert from exposure and exhaustion, was found on the farm of Ed Lininger only three-fourths of a mile from his home, by one group of the more than 200 residents of the countryside, who had organized a search. He was too weak to talk, but doctors said he would recover.

Former Senator's Wife Sues Him for Divorce

Portland, Oreg., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Robert N. Stanfield, former United States Senator from Oregon, was charged with desertion by Inez Hill Stanfield, in a suit for divorce on file in circuit court here today.

Mrs. Stanfield stated her husband abandoned her more than a year ago. She asks $100 a month permanent alimony and $1,500 alimony in a lump sum, to meet obligations incurred because of her husband's alleged failure to provide properly for her maintenance and support. Mr. and Mrs. Stanfield were married September 19, 1897.

Session for Cotton In Georgia Is Refused

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Gov. Russell today declined to call an extra session of the Georgia Legislature to consider cotton acreage reduction legislation.

In a statement, he said that "after mature deliberation, and a most exhaustive study of all the plans and ideas thus far advanced," he had reached the conclusion "that the price of cotton is beyond the control of the Georgia Legislature."

SHANGHAI IS TENSE AS CLASH IS FEARED

Japanese Are Warned by British on Attitude of Powers.

Shanghai, China, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—The danger of conflict between Japanese naval forces and foreign troops of the international settlement surcharged the atmosphere with foreboding tonight.

Rear Admiral Koichi Shiosawa, commander in chief of the Japanese fleet regularly stationed in the Whangpo River, issued a virtual ultimatum today demanding the immediate suppression of anti-Japanese organizations in the foreign settlement as well as the native cities.

Simultaneously, a group of Japanese naval officers called on the editor of a Chinese language newspaper, the Republican Daily News, in the heart of the settlement and gave him until Saturday to apologize for an article offensive to them on pain of adopting "suitable measures."

Claims Tokyo Authority.

On the heels of these threats, authorities of the settlement—most of whom are British—visited Admiral Shiosawa on his flagship in the river and requested a statement of his intentions. They informed him they could not permit independent Japanese action within the foreign concessions.

He was quoted as replying that he was acting under direct order from the Japanese government instructing him to terminate anti-Japanese activities here.

He finally agreed that in the event he considered force was necessary he would first consult settlement officials.

Japanese Leader Warned.

Pointing out that the settlement is governed under an agreement among the great powers and virtually is foreign territory, the delegation warned the admiral that overt operations on his part would be sure to bring sharp reactions from American and European governments.

Nanking, China, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Former President Chiang Kai-Shek, who resigned in disgrace five weeks ago, returned in triumph today to help save the Chinese government from financial disaster.

Refusing to comment on the significance of his act, he went into conference with officials of both the Nanking and Canton factions, and they deliberated on measures which would avert another government upset and preserve China's credit.

Alleged Purse-Snatcher Caught by Ball Player

Earl Clark, professional baseball player, yesterday scored a perfect day at bat when Judge Gus A. Schuldt ordered Johnson Jones, colored, 27 years old, held for the action of the grand jury on a bond of $1,500 on a charge of robbery.

Jones grabbed the purse of Mrs. Fannie Cadel, of 1318 Kenyon street northwest, and upon an outcry raised by her, Clark set out after the man, whom he caught after a chase of several blocks. Clark, who lives at 612 Jefferson street northwest, is a player with the Boston Braves. He played sandlot baseball here for years.

Women of Long Ago Used Rouge, Says Von Oppenheim

Cosmetic Box Discovered by German Archeologist at Site of Tel Halaf, in Upper Mesopotamia, Described in Lecture Here.

Even the ladies of antiquity liked a small dab of rouge on their cheeks and perhaps a tint of appropriate coloring on their lips, if an assumption may be taken from the discovery of a cosmetic box found on the site of Tell Halaf in upper Mesopotamia.

The box was discovered by Baron Max von Oppenheim, archeologist and former German diplomat, who has excavated many art treasures of an ancient and mysterious civilization that once flourished in upper Mesopotamia.

In a lecture at the Freer Gallery of Art yesterday afternoon, Baron von Oppenheim explained his work and discoveries on the site of the old civilization that extends backward to about 4,000 years before Christ. The civilization is known as "Hittite," which was practically contemporaneous with that of Sumeria; but which in some ways developed along independent lines.

The most important discovery, he explained, was made at Tell Halaf, where a combination temple and palace was found, which was set up at about the end of the second millennium, B. C. Even at that date, he said, the building was storehouse of antiquities. The reigning prince evidently had collected statuary dating from at least 1,000 years earlier, Baron von Oppenheim said.

The second part of the archeologist's work deals with gigantic statues found in the mountains of northern Mesopotamia which probably represent the oldest monuments in the world. These statues, he believes, were broken up by Roman soldiers during one of the Mesopotamian campaigns and the stones were used for buildings.

DUTY EVASION PLAN IS BASIS OF LAWSUIT

Court Upholds Right to Bring $500,000 Action; Watering of Sugar Involved.

New York, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—An "idea" for reducing the import duty on liquid raw sugar by diluting the sugar with water just outside the 3-mile limit figured today in a $500,000 action brought by originators of the process against Refined Syrups, Inc.

The appellate division upheld the right to bring the suit despite the claim of the defendants that a "mere idea" does not have the same protection from the law as a "trade secret."

Plaintiffs in the action are Col. Edward N. Johnston, former Army Engineer, now retired, and his partner, Robert C. Cutting.

They charge that prior to July, 1930, raw sugar had been imported in a 68 per cent solution, upon which a $40 per ton duty was paid. Up to then, they alleged, this was the best-known solution for bringing in liquid sugar without loss by fermentation.

Their idea, which they asserted they divulged in confidence to a director of the company, Charles S. Payson, was to bring the 68 per cent solution to a point just outside the 3-mile limit, where pure water would be added to bring the sugar content down to slightly less than 48 per cent, thereby cutting the duty to 83 cents a ton.

They had an agreement with Payson, they charge, whereby they were to receive 25 per cent of all savings up to $500,000 and one-third of subsequent savings. They assert that Payson broke the trust, confided their "secret" to other directors, with the result that the company soon effected a half-million-dollar saving, but the plaintiffs got no commission.

They also claim to have applied for a patent on the process in May, 1930.

Hit-Run Driver Jailed After Auto Collision

Arrested by Policeman R. A. Cunningham, of the traffic bureau, on a description furnished by Dr. Hyman D. Shapiro, 4218 Sixteenth street northwest, Edward Lee Williams, colored, of 1248 Twenty-second street northwest, yesterday was sentenced to 60 days in jail on a charge of leaving after colliding, and also driving after his permit had been revoked.

Dr. Shapiro's automobile was struck at Twenty-fourth and M streets northwest, and the driver of the other car jumped and fled. On a description given by the doctor, Cunningham arrested Williams, who was identified by Dr. Shapiro as the driver of the other car.

MOVE FOR NEW CODE ON SUITS REJECTED

Resolution of Associations Is Not Accepted by Commissioners.

The District Commissioners yesterday declined to accept the proposal of the Federation of Citizens Associations and place the District government on the same plane with individuals or private corporations in cases of torts committed by its officers or agents.

Upon advice of Corporation Counsel William W. Bride, the Commissioners took no action on the resolution and merely advised the Manor Park Citizens Association, which originated the resolution and forwarded it to the District authorities, that they do not "deem it wise at the present time."

"This is a radical departure in the law," said Mr. Bride, "and I very much doubt the wisdom of such a step at the present time. Congress passed an act on June 5, 1930, giving the Commissioners of the District the power to settle claims in meritorious cases without regard to the defense of governmental function. A similar power reposes in the heads of the United States bureaus.

"Until the power thus conferred has been shown to be subject to abuse, or inefficient, the law should be permitted to remain where it is and allow a fair test of its practicability."

The law and legislation committee of the federation prepared a lengthy report on the resolution when it was introduced a few weeks ago. The report was adopted after a debate in which William A. Roberts, special assistant corporation counsel, appeared as chief opponent to the proposal.

Roof Sleeper Gets 360-Day Penalty

Youth Found Above Jewelry Store Was "Looking for Place to Wash."

An 18-year-old boy yesterday got 360 days in jail because he selected the wrong place in which to "go and wash up and sleep."

John Kaspar, of Collier, W. Va., was found by police who answered a burglar alarm from the Castleberg's jewelry store at 1004 F street northwest, in an alley adjoining the store. The boy, police said, admitted that he had climbed a pipe leading to the roof of the store, but, he said, he had only been looking for a place to wash up and sleep.

Kaspar said he did not know the place was a jewelry store when he climbed the pipe.

CHILEAN NITRATE DEAL BARED AT SENATE GROUP'S INQUIRY

the payment of bond and interest payments since it was expressly announced that "the obligations of the Chilean Government have had no practical effect on its capacity to pay the bondholders of its foreign obligations."

A corollary of the same question was thus answered:

"The elimination of the export duty on nitrate has not affected the supply of bank draft nor the suspension by Chile of payments on its foreign debt. Cosach furnishes the market with such drafts as it finds necessary to seek in order to maintain operations and pay its employes and workers in Chile."

Expense of Organizing.

The total expenses of organizing the combine amounted to the huge sum of $7,213,690. These expenses were divided into three categories, of which the last class included the fees of legal counsel, which amounted to more than $1,000,000 alone. These legal fees were divided as follows: The firm of Root, Clark & Buckner received $915,045, and the London office of Sherman & Sterling received $177,029. An unidentified firm of Chilean lawyers received $100,000.

The complete total of all obligations contracted in the last decade by Chile amounted to $296,112,000. This was divided into a group of seven loans by Kissel, Kinnicutt & Co. and Hallgarten & Co., amounting to $184,912,000. The Grace National Bank loaned $15,000,000, and the Guaranty Trust Co. and Kuhn, Loeb & Co. cooperated in a loan of $90,000,000. This was in five installments.

The next question of Senator Johnson was: Did the nitrate combine, known as Cosach, come into being with standing liabilities of $60,000,000, and who were the creditors of such debt?

Answer on Organization.

The answer:

Cosach was organized March 20, 1931, with the following liabilities, indicated in the first prospectus: outstanding bonds, issued by the companies merged into Cosach, $77,205,183.49; issues of the company, $118,487,500; other term obligations, $11,047,972.10; demand obligations, contracted in the ordinary course of business, $58,855,935.89.

The shares of the company were subscribed for by the National City Bank and by European bankers, especially for the amount of the quotas which had to be delivered to the government for payments due to it, in the years 1930 and 1931 and for the expenses of organization. Guggenheim & Co. received bonds totaling $28,790,850 for advances to the Anglo-Chilean Consolidated Nitrate Corporation, now a subsidiary of Cosach. The other bonds were delivered to the government for payments due in the years 1932 and 1933, and to various companies for their contributions of agency rights and credits due.

The question of who were the individuals or institutions which collected the $60,000,000 and to whom they were paid, was thus answered:

The $265,596,601 of obligations were paid by guaranteeing bonds issued by the participating companies and through the issuance of bonds by Cosach.

Hiatus Is Charged.

It was remarked, however, that this answer contained an important hiatus, since it made no mention of the individuals who had benefited by the payments or the companies who had participated in the payments.

Senator Johnson's next query was: "Does the Chilean government feel that the turning over to the Cosach of the public nitrate-bearing lands in any way jeopardized or impaired its capacity to pay the holders of bonds of its foreign debt?"

The answer:

The government of Chile obligated itself to turn over to the Cosach nitrate fields, which the company might select over a period of 60 years, to the extent of 150,000,000 tons of nitrate content. Cosach also being entitleld to purchase the remainder of the public nitrate fields. Up to the present moment no fields have been turned over to Cosach, and the obligation of the Chilean government to do so has had no practical effect on its capacity to pay the bondholders of its foreign obligations.

The other question was similar in content and in reply.

BRONX RENT STRIKE CLIMAXED IN RIOTING

Apartment Tenants Battle for Hours Against Eviction by Authorities.

New York, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—A two months' "rent strike" reached a riotous climax today when seven tenants of a 50-family apartment house in the Bronx fought off, for two and a half hours, city marshals who sought to evict them.

Stones were hurled from apartment windows at the 50 men from the marshal's office as they sought to move furniture to the street.

More missiles came from a nearby vacant lot, where an impromptu protest meeting was in progress.

A crowd of 3,000 to 4,000 gathered, many of them cheering the tenants, who stretched from their windows shaking fists at the marshal's men and shouting defiance at them.

Fifty patrolmen and 50 detectives, armed with riot guns and tear gas bombs, answered a riot call. They forced the crowd to retire one block in all directions from the apartment building. Several officers were injured in the melee which ensued. Eight persons were arrested. Two of them later were fined for disorderly conduct.

Several hours later, after a conference among the landlord, the tenants and several disinterested persons, a compromise settlement of the rent strike was reached, providing rent reductions of $2 to $4 per room. The removed furniture was ordered back and the tenants were given "a reasonable time" in which to pay back rent.

When the tenants began the strike two months ago they asked a 15 per cent decrease, the installation of electric refrigeration and other improvements.

In Brooklyn 60 tenants of three four-story apartment houses have declared a similar strike. They have been served with dispossess notices returnable Monday.

Police Traffic Court Crowded by Joneses

Police Traffic Court yesterday resembled a resume of the Joneses, of Washington. The clerk of the court intoned in his usual Chesterfieldian manner, "Jones, step forward." And five prisoners then being held in the docket tried to climb over the rail.

When deputy marshals had quelled what seemed to be a minor rebellion among the prisoners, it was discovered that no less than five of the men had the name of Jones. They were: Ned, James, Charles, William and Earl, and all were faced with a traffic charge.

CHURCH UNIFICATION PROGRAM ADVANCES

Archbishop of Canterbury Pushes Plan to Include Old Catholics.

London, Jan. 22 (U.P.).—The Archbishop of Canterbury made another advance today in his program for unification of the Catholic Church outside of Rome, when the lower house of the Church of England parliament unanimously approved an agreement for intercommunion with the old Catholic Church.

At the same time a split was threatened within the Church of England over the admission of nonconformists to communion at Anglican altars, but the issue was postponed after the lower house appointed a committee to consider the problem.

Brings Divisions Closer.

The intercommunion agreement, which previously was approved by the upper house, brought closer together the various divisions of the Catholic Church as distinct from the Roman Catholic Church. The Archbishop has long been attempting to unite the Church of England, the old Catholics (chiefly in Germany); the Eastern Orthodox Church and the Free Church.

Speakers described the present action as the turning point in the reunion campaign and also the first occasion of which two western churches have agreed to unite. The agreement includes the single old Catholic Church located in the United States.

It was believed the Church of England split might develop into a more serious controversy later, despite the efforts to smooth it over today.

Little Chance For Unity.

"It is most desirable to avoid disunity, but we can not see much greater chance for unity at the next session," said one member of the committee appointed to consider the question of nonconformists.

The dispute arose from the action of the upper house, consisting of bishops, which yesterday sent to the lower house, consisting of clergy and laity, a resolution favoring admission of nonconformists to the altars. After hours of debate, the general tendency of the lower house was to reject the proposal on the grounds that it is unlawful and unnecessary.

The guidance of the archbishop was sought in an effort to settle the issuefi and he said there was no necessity for an immediate decision. It was therefore postponed until the next session, when the lower house is expected to definitely reject it.

NEW YACHTS BOAST COMFORTS OF HOME

New York, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—The tang of salt water breezes and the ripple of snug cool harbors were the only things lacking as the twenty-seventh annual motorboat show was opened in Grand Central Palace tonight.

Offering built-in cabin radios, mechanical refrigeration, hot water heaters, and tiled bathrooms, 120 pleasure craft invited inspection of the nautical minded.

On the ground floor were cruisers, sailboats and huge Diesel engines. Light cruisers and runabouts were exhibited on the mezzanine, and the two floors above were devoted to small boats, accessories and outboard motors.

Increased speed and greater comfort was the keynote of all new models.

Manufacturers deprecated the cost of yachting, once termed a "millionaires' sport." One of them estimated the cost of operating a 24-foot cruiser at $350 for the season.

The show, as described by Charles A. Criqui, of Buffalo, chairman of the exhibition committee, is the "most varied, complete and interesting exposition ever presented by the association."

ILLEGAL FOREIGN LOANS.

When Senator Carter Glass, former Secretary of the Treasury, arose on the floor of the Senate and accused Secretary Hyde of disseminating falsehoods about the negotiation of postwar loans to European countries, he must have forgotten that he himself admitted before a congressional committee that the Treasury had no authority to advance money to European governments for reconstruction purposes.

Senate Document No. 86, ordered to be printed during the second session of the Sixty-seventh Congress, but never made public, may serve to refresh his memory. This document informed the Senate judiciary committee that Congress had authorized the Treasury to make loans to foreign governments only for prosecution of the war; that officials of the Treasury Department, including Secretary Glass, knew that they had no authority to make loans for other than war purposes; that approximately $1,500,000,000 was loaned to foreign governments after hostilities ceased, in spite of the fact that Congress refused to give the Secretary of the Treasury additional authority.

Money used for this purpose was raised by selling bonds to the American people and by levying taxes. American citizens purchased Liberty bonds under the impression that the proceeds would be used for prosecution of the war and for the assistance of other governments at war with America's enemies. But when the war ceased there was still available about $1,828,000,000 for lending to the allied powers.

Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo appeared before the House ways and means committee on December 12, 1918, and asked for legislation "to enlarge" the power of the Treasury so that it might "lend for other purposes than those necessitated by the war." He said Belgium, Serbia and France had "intimated" that they would like to know whether the United States would make loans for reconstruction purposes. In reply to those intimations he said:

> We have no power to consider such loans now; we have no authority to make such loans.

On December 16, 1918, Secretary McAdoo resigned and Carter Glass took his place. Secretary Glass appeared before the ways and means committee on February 15, 1919, in connection with the hearing on the victory loan bill, and made this statement:

> For these reasons I urgently ask the authority to broaden the purposes for which the loans to foreign governments may be made.

At the same hearing appeared Assistant Secretary Rathbone, who made this statement:

> At the present time our authority to advance is limited to the purpose of the national security and defense and the prosecution of the war. The authority we ask now is to make advances for the purpose of promoting commerce.

A bill for that purpose was submitted by Secretary Glass. Apparently he fully recognized at that time that he had no authority to lend this money collected from the American people through bond issues and taxation to foreign governments for other than war purposes. Congress refused to grant him additional authority to make foreign loans. Chairman Kitchin, of the ways and means committee, informed the House in an address subsequent to these hearings that "the committee was unanimous in the opinion that certainly this was not the time for the Government to loan $1,500,000,000 more to the allies, especially when we had to go and get it from taxation of the people or by selling bonds to the people."

In spite of this fact, the Treasury continued to make loans for reconstruction purposes without even asking the Attorney General whether such transactions were legal. The suppressed report to the judiciary committee says that millions of dollars' worth of products purchased with this money, raised for war purposes, found their way into Germany and Austria before peace had been concluded. Millions of dollars were loaned to Great Britain to assist that country in building up her foreign trade in competition with American enterprise. Part of the fund was used to pay the expenses of the Russian and Liberian delegations to the peace conference with Secretary Glass' approval. Some loans were made for the purpose of "increasing our influence in the European political situation at the peace conference."

For many years Americans have realized that they were swindled for the benefit of foreign governments, but realization that these funds passed to Europe without legal sanction will raise reverberations throughout the country.

TARIFF INCONSISTENCIES.

Hearings on the Democratic tariff bill will be held today before the Senate finance committee. In spite of urgent relief legislation awaiting action, the Democrats are pressing this measure forward as if they are afraid that delay would expose its weakness.

As this measure passed the House it would partially destroy the flexible provision under which duties are adjusted to meet changing conditions. After making its findings the Tariff Commission would be required to report to Congress rather than to the President. If Congress took no action within 60 days after the date of the report the rates recommended by the commission would become effective. This is a most peculiar arrangement. Could the commission "date" a report when Congress is not in session? If so, rate changes would become effective through the action of the commission alone, without Congress or the President having any opportunity to reject them. If not, then the country would have tariff flexibility only when Congress should be in session, and even then only after the expiration of 60 days.

This arrangement becomes particularly obnoxious when it is applied to changes from the free list to the dutiable list. At present the flexible provision applies only to dutiable commodities. The Democratic bill would allow changes to be made from the free list to the dutiable list and vice versa. Could not the commission make a report, with Congress in adjournment, and write entirely new duties into the law? Since authority over the country's revenue is vested in Congress only, the constitutionality of such a provision may be questioned. At any rate, it would be contrary to sound policy to allow the Tariff Commission to change articles from the free list to the dutiable list, or vice versa, without the sanction of Congress.

Senator Vandenberg has offered an amendment which provides an escape from this difficulty, and at the same time increases the flexibility of the tariff act. He would leave the flexible provision, so far as it applied to rate or classification changes for commodities already on the dutiable list, just as it stands. This class of adjustments would, therefore, be made by the commission and the President. But in addition to this the senator from Michigan would direct the Tariff Commission to recommend to Congress any desirable changes from the free and dutiable columns. His bill would protect measures designed to carry out the commission's findings by forbidding amendments that might not be germane to the items in the report.

If this arrangement is practicable as to legislative procedure it would give flexibility to both the free and dutiable lists. It might relieve Congress of the task of overhauling the tariff every few years and put the adjustment of duties on a more scientific basis. Since its reorganization a year ago the Tariff Commission has investigated production costs for 14 per cent of all dutiable imports. At that rate it could cover the whole field of imports in about seven years. Flexible changes thus effected would obviate the necessity of frequent general revisions.

More flexibility in the tariff will be welcomed, providing it does not involve any unconstitutional surrender of congressional responsibility. As the Democratic measure now stands it would either delegate the power of taxation to a Government bureau, or it would impede the process of adjusting present tariff rates. Under either interpretation the Democratic party can not stand by such a measure without making itself ridiculous.

USING CROP SURPLUS.

California has found a way to "translate a basic economic principle into a practical function for the benefit of the entire Nation." Stated more specifically, a method has been perfected to utilize excess fruit crops by turning them into staple food products on a nonprofit basis for distribution to institutions or organizations that are supported by taxation or contributions. This good work is being done by the economic conservation committee of America, with headquarters at 745 Bryant street, San Francisco.

This organization, under the executive direction of J. R. McCloskey, inaugurated its efforts in 1930, and in two years has extended its distribution, until today it reaches nearly every State in the Union as well as Alaska. Briefly, the plan of the committee is to buy up surplus crops, have them processed through arrangements with various packers at cost, packed in gallon containers and distributed directly without profit to bona fide institutions and charities which depend upon public funds for support.

At present the committee's output is limited to peach butter, prune butter, blended fruit marmalade, tomato concentrate and California sardines. Handled as these products are by the committee without profit, hospitals and relief organizations are enabled to secure them at prices very much below ordinary retail charges for similar goods. The plan has not only the support of many public men and institutions, but is commended by retail grocers' associations as a worthy effort confined to charitable institutions.

Orphan asylums have been large users of the committee's offerings, and they have been found highly useful in helping to provide at minimum cost the balanced diet so necessary for children. This scheme of using surplus food crops is one that might well be extended to other parts of the country and to other products. Vegetables in many sections are often greatly in excess of local requirements and could be utilized in similar manner for the welfare of many distant sections.

WORLD TRADE SURVEY.

The annual survey of world commerce issued by the League of Nations has just revealed the figures for 1930. The statistics are presented in dollars, metric volume, or percentages, which makes possible rapid comparisons in tracing world developments. At the top of the list is the United Kingdom, which during the first full year of depression edged the United States out of first place in world trade with a total volume of 13.44 per cent of the commerce, as compared with 12.61 per cent for this country. This was due to British imports, a heavy unfavorable balance of trade remaining against England.

After the United States followed Germany, France and Canada, the first two having increased their percentages, while Canadian, like American trade, decreased. India went from fifth to eighth place, Japan from sixth to tenth, and Italy from seventh to ninth, while Holland rose from ninth to fifth, and Belgium from tenth to sixth. Argentina remained eleventh. Most significant, perhaps, was Russia's jump from nineteenth to twelfth place. The Soviet Union, alone, showed an increase in both import and export trade, and in growth of trade it led all other countries.

In 1929 50 countries showed a trade increase index over 100. Of these only eight remained after 1930. They were Russia, Lithuania, Honduras, Newfoundland, Algeria, Tunis, Palestine and Norway. The total trade of the world fell from $68,460,000,000 in 1929 to $55,635,000,000 in 1930. The trade of Europe, even excluding Russia, fell less than that of any other continent. North America was third and South America last. The rise of Russia's wheat exports are surprising. Soviet wheat exports increased from virtually nothing in 1929 to a little more than those of the United States in 1930. Another interesting fact revealed by the survey is the increased importation of raw cotton and wool in the Balkans, as an effect of protectionism in that section.

It is claimed that the new automobiles are three years ahead of the times. Some people have been paying for the old car three years ahead of the time they could really afford it.

IMMIGRATION, 1831-1931

From the Louisville Courier-Journal.

Immigration in November, 1931, registered a new low, 3,743. Checking the record, the department discovered it was the smallest number entering the United States for exactly 100 years, since November, 1831, when 1,792 were registered. But only 1,760 of those received in November, 1931, were Europeans. That continent furnished the great majority a century ago, so European immigration for the corresponding months of 1831 and 1931 were about equal. There the similarity ceases. Nineteenth century accessions represented a net gain in population. For every one who entered last November, three aliens left and nearly half as many were deported as were admitted. A hundred years ago men predominated; three-fourths of those arriving in November were women and children and three-fifths of the women were on their way to join their husbands.

The annual influx of millions, come to work in the mills of vast cities, has dropped to the record of the pioneer era when hardy North Europeans were settling on land west of the Alleghanies. They came in sailing vessels. Crossing the ocean in a paddle-wheeled steamship was as novel and exciting as a transatlantic flight is. Half of America's population now reside in cities of 8,000 or more; only 6 per cent of the 12,000,000 inhabitants did then, and five-sixths of them within the boundaries of Greater New York, the lone city in the 100,000 class. Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and Louisville were towns; Detroit had 2,000. Chicago, Cleveland, San Francisco, St. Louis, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Milwaukee and Indianapolis didn't exist. There wasn't a State west of the Mississippi; the territory had just been purchased with Florida. Texas hadn't been admitted; California, Utah, Nevada, Arizona and New Mexico were still Mexican.

Land hunger no longer calls the peasant from his ancestral patch to acres for the taking that outrivaled a baronial estate. No wonder the word sent back home stirred ambition and started the highest spirits, the most resolute courage and strongest backs in Europe on a month's journey across the ocean to such a wilderness of promise. It lifted them from peasantry to landed proprietorship. But the land is taken up; the era long since passed. The mechanical age developed and labor was imported. Later immigrants were attracted by high wages and settled in urban colonies.

The 1831 contingent helped make America and became a part of it as they imparted something of themselves to it. Their descendants are "native American stock," jealous of their country's traditions, and put up the bars of selective immigration and quotas to preserve them. Industrial stagnation has done even more to reduce the influx. The tide ebbs. Economic conditions wouldn't have affected those early nineteenth century immigrants if they could raise the passage money. They would make the land support them. Their great-grandchildren just at present are supporting the land.

POST HASTE.

French deputies ought to know that the United States will not connect debts and reparations, as well as we understand that France has tried to rivet them together.

The American position was known to M. Laval before his visit to Washington. It was diagrammed for him here and repeated several times since his return to Paris, so France revives the "security pact" which this country rejected in 1920.

It's getting so that the French don't understand the American language any better than the Japanese.

Simulative: As busy as the British explaining why the depreciated pound has not resulted in a better trade showing.

The House committee killed the raise on letter postage. Now, what are you going to do with the saving on all those six letters?

France grants the Czechoslovaks a $25,000,000 loan. What they gave up in exchange was evidently too long to send by cable.

Dry strength in the Senate rejecting a referendum resolution by more than 3 to 1 is an added damper for House wets.

It's not very hard to figure it out that a certain money-making machine known as Tammany Hall is using Al Smith to ruin the political career of Franklin Roosevelt because the organization can't use him in their business.

The courts uphold confiscation of furnishings found in speakeasies and New York will have to resume its drinking in sawdust drab.

Germany is so taken with the moratorium idea that she is now considering a suspension of politics and elections for a year while trying to recover her economic breath. It does not make a hit with the Hitlerites.

The Ohio Pastors Association resolved that "we will never again sanction or participate in any war" and deplored the constitutional requirement of military service as a test of citizenship. A good many will agree a constitutional change may be desirable, but not one that would suit citizen pacifists.

Haiti threatens to pay off her American debt and be shed of us. Suppose this practice should be catching!

Anything may happen. A British cabinet splits and still hangs together.

Director Dawes is looking for offices. Al Smith will move the Empire State Building over here for him if he says the word, since New York doesn't seem to need it.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

THE LEFT-HANDED CHILD.

When baby demonstrates that he Left-handed much prefers to be
And reaches for his porridge spoon,
His grandpa's whiskers or the moon,
Or Auntie Mabel's earrings bright,
Don't say to him, "No, no. The right!"
Or if perchance he's throwing sand,
Don't say, "Now, use the other hand."

When baby flings his cup of milk
On grandma's Sunday gown of silk,
The dishes on his dinner tray,
Or pokes his left thumb in the eye
Of some admiring passer-by,
Don't force him to repeat his tricks
Until the right-hand notion sticks.

Just let the little south-paw toss
His silver mug the room across,
Or leave left fingerprints impressed
In gravy stains on uncle's vest;
But do not pester him or fight,
Or try to force him to the right,
For if his natural mood you check

By ROBERT QUILLEN

My dear Louise: In a world full of millions of people, your happiness and attainments will depend in large measure on the wisdom you exercise in selecting a score of them as friends.

You will be told by apostles of pep that the place you win in the world will depend wholly on your own merit, but it isn't true.

A little will depend on luck, and much will depend on what is called pull.

The people who get the ripest plums are the ones best known to the owner of the plum tree.

Have you noticed how much of our literature, whether in book form or in magazines, is provided by New Yorkers? Have you noticed that the men most written about and most used to illustrate a point and most praised in song and story are New Yorkers?

Do you know the explanation?

The usual one, which contains a measure of truth is that people of unusual merit take their talent to the best market.

But that isn't the whole or the half of it.

If you were editor of a magazine, which manuscript would you accept, assuming their merit to be equal, if one came from a stranger in Arkansas and the other from a friend with whom you dine once a week?

Believe me, my dear, there's many a flower born to blush unseen because it isn't acquainted with any of the big shots in New York.

As the decision of Hollywood determines the cut of feminine hair and selects the idols of a nation, so New York, where most of the magazines and books are printed, affords the publicity that makes fame.

Acquaintance boosts acquaintance; celebrity advertises celebrity; and the hinterland thinks two men great because each says the other is a wonder.

Meanwhile, genius in other towns is unrecognized beyond Main street because it has no friends among those who control the spotlight.

The baseball world employs scouts to search for talent; other worlds, lacking scouts, give the plums to former classmates.

The easy way to enter the door of success is to meet the man who has the key.

Make friends of the right people.

That kind of "climbing" isn't vulgar. It never is vulgar to exercise good taste. If you demand the best in choosing furniture, books and music, why be content with less when choosing friends? Only by looking up can you find friends worthy of admiration.

Select that kind, my dear, and you will always be present when the cake is cut. Love,

DAD.

Smith and Roosevelt.

Minneapolis Journal.

Alfred E. Smith is becoming the mystery man of the Democratic campaign. It grows more and more probable that he will hold the key to the convention decision when a candidate for President is nominated. If he wants Franklin D. Roosevelt, he can bring about the Roosevelt nomination. If he does not want Roosevelt, he can come pretty near naming the ultimate choice of the convention.

It has been the theory of the Roosevelt supporters that Smith is friendly. He has kept silent, they say, because as the party's leader in the last campaign it would not be proper for him to dictate the choice this year. Also, it is hinted that he is helping, by his silence, to bring into line for Roosevelt the anti-Smith elements in the party.

Maybe so, but there are developments that point in another direction. Mr. Smith's closest friends are giving their support to the "stop Roosevelt" plan of tying up delegations and preventing the New York governor's nomination. They have been building up Gov. Ritchie, and promoting "favorite son" candidacies in several States.

Waning Confidence in Roosevelt.

Topeka Capital.

Gov. Roosevelt's candidacy has come down to a lower temperature. It got off to a remarkable start, but is not maintaining its pace. He is still the leading figure and may have obtained an early momentum that can not be stopped short of the necessary two-thirds majority, but there can be no question of the growing uncertainty of Democratic leaders as to his filling the bill.

Dawes Tells 'Em.

Los Angeles Times.

Whoever it was that approached Gen. Charles G. Dawes with the proposal that he seek the Republican nomination for President in opposition to President Hoover received a characteristic reply. The Ambassador to Britain declared that any suggestion that President Hoover does not have his loyal and complete support "is an insult to me."

Former President Coolidge, in equally decisive, if somewhat more polished phrases, said the same thing some months ago.

Ambassador Dawes followed up this declaration by stating the indubitable truth that President Hoover had "made a record of accomplishment without parallel in world economic history" and that the United States has already started on the up-grade.

Congress Wields the Paring Knife.

Minneapolis Journal.

The new Congress is showing signs of an unwonted spirit of economy. Whereas the last Congress and its predecessors gave only formal adhesion to the budget and freely made independent appropriations that swelled Uncle Sam's expenditures inordinately, the present one already shows a decided tendency to give an extra trimming to a budget which the President and the budget director had already pared heroically.

The main reason Great Britain didn't join the United States in writing a note of protest to Japan over the Chinese fuss was that she was using both hands to hold down the lid on India.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Professional and Scientific Employes of Government Are Already Grossly Underpaid.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Concerning the effort on the part of some members of the present Congress to reduce the salaries of Government employes, I note in one of your recent issues that Representative Wood is reported to have spoken of these workers, inclusively, as "clerks."

Mr. Wood and others should know that the requirements of the Civil Service Commission for appointments to professional and scientific positions are most exacting, demanding years of education, training and experience, and that the entrance salaries are, for the most part, at the entirely uncommensurate rates of $2,600 and $3,200 per year.

The men who have qualified for and are holding these important positions are not clerks; they are graduates from colleges and technical schools with years of experience in their specialty to their credit, and the Government is most fortunate that their services are available for the public good at this time, because in normal times they could and would command, in private practice, double their inadequate Federal remuneration.

The suggestion, even, that this class of employes should have their salaries cut is most discouraging, and following a lengthening period during which promotions have been denied, is affecting their morale and is likely to affect their efficiency.

It is submitted that other methods to balance the budget should be sought rather than wholesale cuts in the already insufficient salaries of skilled and valuable workers, either in the professional or clerical classifications.

It occurs to the writer that the objective toward greater economy could be better effected by the imposition of higher taxes on luxuries and by an increase of postal rates from 2 cents to 3 cents on first-class mail matter, rather than by unjust and unscientific salary cuts.

CONSTRUCTION ENGINEER.

Critics of Secretary Mellon Should Employ Their Time to Better Advantage.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Reading the criticisms which some of the senators, Gov. Pinchot and Representative Fatman have been making in regard to Secretary Mellon, it seems to me they might employ their time in a better way. I certainly am glad that he does not enter into any controversy with them. Had some of them one-third his brilliancy, they might feel proud. We all know he has made a wonderful Secretary and deserves the credit and respect of us all.

A TAXPAYER.

Cut of Federal Pay Would Tend to Prolong Depression.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The lowering or raising of salaries to Government employes is more or less of a permanent nature, because dependent upon congressional action. When times were good, it is a well-known fact that Government workers were underpaid in comparison with salaries paid in private enterprises. In normal times it has been the repeated complaint that in the professional and scientific grades difficulty was experienced in obtaining and holding the better equipped and qualified workers because of the low salaries paid. Now that the depression has come it is proposed to whack off governmental salaries that only begin to look attractive when a depression is on.

There is not much of confidence to be found in the conduct of a congress or an administration that proclaims a return of prosperity but fixes wages of Government employes upon a basis of continued and future depression. It isn't very inspiring to the patient to have the doctor prescribe his favorite remedies, and at the same time mention the fact that his brother is the cheapest undertaker in town.

PRO BONO PUBLICO.

Disarmament Delegation Going on Costly Wild-Goose Chase.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I note from news items that the disarmament ship has sailed from the United States for Europe, carrying with it a large appropriation from a depleted Treasury, on a wild-goose chase which reminds us of Mr. Ford's ship sent over to stop the World War. Any one should know that disarmament by European countries is out of the question, and that this delegation and the appropriation of ours will accomplish about as much as the League of Nations did with its ultimatum to Japan, ordering that country to get out of Manchuria.

There is nothing plainer to everybody than the intention of Japan to stay in Manchuria, scraps of paper and spluttering statesmen notwithstanding. But it seems the American people still love to be humbugged and pay for it.

E. N. SIMMS.

Why Not Run Tunnels Under Circles for Trolley Cars and Automobiles?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Our circles, which have long been considered, and are, oases of beauty to the city, just now, in this automobile age, have become problems to the public; and anything but beautiful when we, the pedestrians, approach them on our walk to and from office. Why can not tunnels be built underneath them for the trolley cars and maybe also for automobiles? It would add to the comfort of every one, expedite travel, and, whereas now it is anything but pleasant to the pedestrian to take a walk, be a most enjoyable experience.

Worse problems than this one have confronted engineers, and I am sure it could be done. Besides, here is a work that will give employment to the unemployed, and add to the comfort of the residents.

SENATOR COUZENS' resolution which brought about the investigation of programs, the earnings of radio stations and so on, which the Federal Radio Commission is now making, would seem to mean that all broadcast criticism rests in the uses of the sponsors' commercial announcements, John T. Adams, of New York, president of the Adams Broadcasting Service, observed yesterday.

"Actually, it lies in the program content, program arrangement and production generally. Lazy extravagance is the real cancer in many programs; faulty commercials are only a small part of their ills.

"Public appreciation and audiences follow merit, and merit is only secured by expertly produced programs utilizing the grand talent, and so many cases now so mishandled."

Deems Taylor, by his splendid work as commentator during the Metropolitan broadcasts, is taking the "grand" out of grand opera. The average person asked regarding grand opera very frequently replies, "That's too classical for me." With Deems Taylor figuratively taking them by the hand and leading them into it, many have discovered that while considerable portions are over their heads, yet opera embodies standard favorites of all time. Mr. Taylor has a happy faculty of describing the opera without giving the impression of "high-hatting" those unfamiliar with it.

Lily Pons, coloratura soprano, will sing the part of Rosina in "The Barber of Seville," this afternoon. The second and third acts will be broadcast direct from the stage of the Metropolitan.

"Falling for a propaganda which has been carried on assiduously for months, the Senate yesterday ordered a new 'survey' of the feasibility of governmental ownership and operation of radio broadcasting. The Senate decided to act after Dill, of Washington, had charged that the commercial broadcasting companies were discriminating against educational programs.

"There is a long story back of this resolution, but that story has to do with an organization calling itself the National Committee on Education by Radio. This committee is composed chiefly of the same crowd which backs up the National Education Association in its efforts to put over a Federal Department of Education and so add thousands more tax eaters to the burden already carried by John Smith.

"The stupidity of many of the commercial programs to which Americans are subjected and the supposed superiority of British programs, under Government management, are the chief arguments used in demanding a change. But, characteristically, the national committee, &c., has a special thing it wants to put over. It wants 15 per cent of the air turned over to educational agencies of the Federal Government and the States for 'educational' broadcasting. In one of the recent bulletins of the committee William John Cooper, the United States Commissioner of Education, proposes the use of the radio in the classroom 'to furnish poor and mediocre teachers with examples of good teaching.'

"The plan as a whole will hardly commend itself to realists, for some of the facts regarding governmental broadcasting as already conducted have been published. In Great Britain, for instance, rules have been set up which make it impossible to mention plays by name if those plays are current. In Missouri, where the State has been operating a radio (WOS at Jefferson City), the administration has found the burden so great that it is getting ready to lease the station to a private operator.

"Education has been used as a cloak to cover many sins in this country and it may be that we shall be sentimental enough to permit the educational lobby to get away with this grab. But any one who thinks that it will increase the pleasure of listening to the radio is a sap."

THE "sage of Paducah," Irvin S. Cobb, will discuss "The Negro in Literature" in a talk over WRC at 6:45 o'clock. A Southerner, as well as a leading figure in American letters, Cobb is familiar with his subject. He will deal with the early spirituals and plantation songs, the present day work of Roark Bradford, and the characterizations of "Amos 'n' Andy."

About half of Mascagni's one-act opera, "Cavalleria Rusticana," will be broadcast by the Chicago Civic Opera Company tonight (WJZ, WBAL, 9 p. m.). Antonio Cortis, tenor, will sing Turridu; Augusto Beuf, baritone, Alfio; Claudia Muzio, soprano, Cantauzza, and Marie Claessens, contralto, Lucia.

A talk on "How Defective Vision Contributes to Industrial Waste" will be given by Dr. Rex B. Sheley (WMAL, 9 p. m.) as one of the educational optometry series.

An attempt will be made to broadcast a description of the salvage operations on the wreck of the Lusitania a few months hence. * * * Kate Smith will return to her native Washington, D. C., on February 6 for a week's engagement at RKO-Keith's Theater. While here she will broadcast from the studios of WMAL. * * * Gretchen Hood, soprano, and Florence Yocum, soprano, will be heard over WMAL at 9:15 o'clock tonight. * * * Raymond Clapper will substitute for Frederic William Wile tonight, WMAL, 7 o'clock. * * * The condition of the Nation's financial structure will be discussed by William R. Castle, jr., Undersecretary of State; Senator George H. Moses and Robert O. Hayward, banker, WJZ, 2 o'clock this afternoon. * * *

GEORGE HICKS, NBC announcer, has encountered a barber who advances a theory of relativity that stands to challenge the analytical mind of Einstein. The barber explained that when in a hurry to get home, he rides in the front car of the subway train, but when time is at his disposal, he takes things easy by riding in the rear car. Hicks is still trying to figure it out.

Jane CINTERPRETS the MODE

New York, Jan. 22.

MY GOODIOUS, but housework is cer-tainlee on my mind these days! You might just as well get the full benefit of my observations, too—because any minute now I may be able to get a maid (for what I can afford to pay), to take care of me and mine in the style to which I have accustomed us. Being that as eet may, I'm having a lot of fun, and finding out things every minute about how to be a lovely lady and keep your house lovely and artistic, and raise two children and a willing but well, not so efficient sister—and be the world's greatest living Fashun Cricket! Any one who would like to sympathize wit me may do so by letter, for it's still letters that make the job go 'round in this game, dahlings!

Well, ennyhow and besides, here was I making a few house aprons for mesel' and the beau'ful sister, from some of my own leaflets—when I discovered that the unbleached muslin itself that I was trying them out on made the best ones of all! Also and likewise, that one needed two different types of aprons, no more and no less, and that a really efficient house apron had to have all of these qualities: Chic and smartness. Comfort and wearability. Fit but freedom. Easy laundrability and especially ironability. And be cheap (no, I didn't say inexpensive), to buy or make, and be very easy to make if one made them.

So-o-o-o-o, what do I do? I ups and make the two types of aprons that I found I needed for housework, and ups and sketches them for you so you could make them from the sketch, and worked and worked to find style and every one of the above mentioned qualities that an apron has to have—before I made 'em.

And those two aprons illustrated have all of the above qualities, and I made 'em and wear 'em—and like it!

They cost, total for both, 30 cents. Yes They took two hours to make from my own leaflet. They take a half hour to wash and iron. And they fit like the paper on the wall—honestly, when you put them on you forget them, as far as they interfere with anything you do—all cut on the bias, you see, so that the material gives with your movements.

Not only that, but I also discovered that if you buy unbleached muslin by bolts and watch for sales, you can get it for 5 and 6 cents a yard—the two aprons together take three yards! Also I discovered that any cotton dye, boiled variety, you know, would dye unbleached muslin very well, and leave it quite washable after dry—(kids summer dresses, aprons for mother, beach pajamas for sister—all out of that bolt).

And then, belatedly, I discovered how very smart your own Dah-ray really was, and got a headache patting myself on the back with my chin up in the air

* * * *

Of course, I made a leaflet telling you exactly how to make two perfectly marvelous aprons for 30 cents! But you have to cut out today's illustrations, though, and save it until your carefully illustrated directions for making these aprons come to you in the stamped, self-addressed envelope you have sent to the Dare department of The Washington Post. And please don't overlook the fact that this same apron design makes a wonderful and chic and comfy nurse's uniform, with long sleeves or short sleeves added. Also a marvelous smock for dusty offices, made out of dark material. And a summer dress with shoulder sleeves added, for house work when one doesn't wear a dress under it. All in all, better send for that leaflet

* * * *

And, as a final word I must tell you that a famous Paris couturiere has just put house dresses and aprons into her collection! If that doesn't simply convince you—well!

Indoor—Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

When shall I plant caladium bulbs? I have six bulbs which are now in a dry state. MRS. HARRY E.

Caladiums should be potted about the 1st of March in fairly rich soil. They demand good drainage. They should be watered sparingly at first, but when the pots are filled with roots, too much cannot be given them. Liquid manure about three times a month is very beneficial. Shade the leaves from the midday sun, otherwise give them all the light possible.

Can you please tell me whether Japanese spurge is benefited by a fall mulch of decayed leaves, peat moss or sifted manure? WILLIAM F. T.

Yes.

Samuel H. E.—Spraying with lime-sulphur or with miscible oils, during warm winter weather is the most effective method of eradicating scale pests from any trees or shrubs.

I have some seeds left over from last season which may or may not be good. How can I test it to find if it is worth using? MRS. HOWARD V.

Seeds which have been left over should be tested before they are planted. A satisfactory way to test them is to sow a few seeds in small flats, labeling each kind carefully as to the nummer of seeds sown.

Please tell me whether lilacs, spireas and forsythias should be pruned before the buds begin to swell in the spring? SARAH B.

No, do not prune these bushes until after they have finished flowering, for their flower buds are formed on last autumn's growth.

I have a large palm that has outgrown its pot. Will so large a plant do well in a wooden tub such as is used for lawn decoration in summer? MRS. WILLIAM L.

Yes. Any plant will do well in a lawn tub.

Yes. Be sure to water them daily and remove all dead leaves and flowers promptly.

Daphne cneorum should be well protected in February, so that the tips of its evergreen branches, which bear the clusters of pink buds, will not be burned by the sun.

Do you know of any way to prevent the tips of the leaves of my house plants, which, of course, are quite close to the windows, from being frostbitten? JANICE K. L.

Placing newspapers between the plants and the window panes is the most practical way to protect your plants. It may seem like work but it will save the plants.

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

By ELY CULBERTSON

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

A PROBLEM IN MANAGEMENT.

BIDDING is a prediction of the number of tricks which will be taken in the play of the hand. This is especially true when the bidding of the partners has not been obstructed by adverse bids, or when the adverse bids are clearly defensive. The taking of the maximum number of tricks in a hand often depends upon the skill of the Declarer in devising a sound plan of managing his combined assets. Cards of entry to provide means of reaching a hand at the proper moment are always an essential when finesses are to be taken and later may be needed to utilize established cards in one hand upon which to discard loses in the other. A problem in trump management and the general play of the hand was recenly solved at the Cavendish Club, New York, by Mr. R. G. Sparrow, who held the South hand below:

South—Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

	♠ J 5 4 3 ♡ Q J 9 4 ◇ — ♣ J 8 4 3 2
♠ 8 7 ♡ 6 5 2 ◇ Q 10 9 5 4 ♣ Q 10 9	N W E S	♠ Q 9 6 ♡ A 8 7 ◇ J 8 7 6 2 ♣ 7 5
	♠ A K 10 2 ♡ K 10 3 ◇ A K 3 ♣ A K 6

The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
2♠	Pass	2NT(1)	Pass
3NT(2)	Pass	4♠(3)	Pass
6♠(4)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—Although North holds 5½ playing-tricks in support of his partner's bid, he must first give the minimum response of notrump to deny the possession of honor-tricks.

2—South's hand is of notrump distribution—that is, contains no long and no particularly short suit. He, therefore, bids three notrump as this may well be the trick-taking possibility of the hand opposite a bust holding.

3—North now raises the spade bid to game. He does not issue a Slam invitation because of the lack of honor-tricks.

4—South optimistically bids for Slam. He need find but little support in his partner's hand to justify his optimism.

When West led the five of diamonds and the Dummy went down, it was apparent to the Declarer that he must lose a trick to the Ace of Hearts and that the success of his contract depended upon losing no trump tricks and being able to discard his losing club on Dummy's fourth heart. This made it essential that none of Dummy's trumps be used for ruffing until the heart suit was established and the spade finesse taken. Winning the first trick with the Ace of diamonds, Mr. Sparrow then led the Ace of trumps and followed with the King of hearts. East, a good player, fathomed his plan and refused to play the Ace. The Ten of hearts was then led and overtaken with Dummy's Knave. East refused to win this trick also, although the drop of the cards convinced him that the suit was evenly divided. South now had accomplished the first part of his campaign. A small spade was led and the Ten finessed and when this card held, all that was necessary was for the Declarer to lay down the King of trumps and lead his last heart and then re-enter the Dummy and discard his losing club on the established heart. If a trump in Dummy had been carelessly used on the first lead of diamonds, East would not have won the second round of hearts and while the Declarer could have escaped the loss of a trump trick, he would have been compelled to concede a club at the end.

What Today Means to You

"AQUARIUS."

IF JANUARY 23 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:10 a. m. to 10:30 a. m., from 3 p. m. to 4:25 p. m., and from 10:15 p. m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 6:45 a. m. to 8:30 a. m., and from 7 p. m. to 8:30 p. m.

As there are no conclusive indications, an astrological forecast for January 22 is difficult to make. There are no pointers to good fortune, neither are there any shadows of decided ill luck hanging over you. The ordinary life and routine will not be broken by any special events of interest.

Children born on this January 23 will not be born under good coditions for any great material success, but a life free from tragedy and full of sunshine is revealed. They will have vivid imaginations, a ready humor and even dispositions. They will be clannishly loyal to kith and kin.

Born January 23, you are either very earnest or very gay. You do not know how to strike an emotional happy medium. Life to you is a crescendo of thrills, followed by a complete flop down to reality again.

The woman born on January 23 will clog her mind with petty details, and in time will become a typical nagger. You fight against a tendency to ingrowingness of your mind, and must leave the twilight of introspection and throw open the windows of your mind to let in some health and vitalizing rays from the outside world. As the shadows of middle age approach, you will feel yourself thwarted by life, or as having missed some essential thing which you can not find. The outlet of your feelings will be your tongue.

If a man, your monetary success in life is of an uncertain nature. No matter how great your ability to earn may be, your inability to save will be even greater. Marriage is pretty certain to take place, but its lasting success is an uncertainty. Women will not be found to be sincere friends to the man born on this date, and he will be let down many times by some one of the fair sex. Your mind reacts quickly to the powers of suggestion, and it is easy for you to suffer from imaginary ailments.

Successful people born January 23:
Richard Alsop, poet.
Silas B. Cobb, pioneer capitalists.
Russell Hinman, editor and author.
Josiah F. Willard (Johiah Flynt), author.
Holbrook Blinn, actor.

FRANCES M'DONALD

MAN'S FOLLY.

DEAR Frances McDonald: My husband, who is a generous and devoted father, has never been a faithful husband. In fact, his infidelities have been a source of constant grief to me ever since our marriage. Even his own mother has told me she does not see how I stand it. But I have, because any public discord might hurt him professionally. He is a dentist, and the women seem to make their conquests without much effort. There is always a new one. During all this, however, there has been one particular girl—a teacher—whose ideas are a bit advanced. She has several times written me concerning her feeling for my husband, inferring that if things were reversed she would set him free. Now I can hardly afford to do that as we have four children, and barely get along on what he makes, or rather what he has left after the girls get through gold digging. Besides I feel that he does not really care for her as she thinks he does. True he goes back to her every time he tires of some newer flame, but he often does not answer the phone when she calls up. Also, strange as this may seem, he shows deep concern for me. It just seems that he is incapable of being true to a wife in a world full of women crazy to flirt with a good-looking man.

Now last week this teacher wrote his mother stating that he had three years ago promised to get a divorce and marry her, and that she had broken an engagement on his promise to marry. She hinted that she intended to start some sort of action against him—which certainly would ruin his business, even is unsuccessful otherwise. This is all for spite, and the children and I would be the ones to suffer. It hurts me to the heart to know that he ever would talk of divorce to another without speaking to me first. And I feel that now I have no choice but to leave him, even though his affair with her is over—as I know it is or she would not be taking such action. His mother is all against that. She thinks we should ignore the girl, and that for the children's sake I should say nothing to him, but go on as best I can. What should I do? I am willing to abide by your opinion. I am through having any "feelings" of my own.

CARA.

I am inclined to agree with his mother. The girl will not go through with her threat. She is just experimenting in blackmail by way of diversion. I would, however, let him know all about it. Perhaps he might wake up. It is a pity that such men ever marry, and that women like you must pay for their misdeeds in heartache and regret.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

SHOES FOR COMFORT.

THE ladies should be willing to heed one of their number who has spent five years studying the feet of women. Katherine Taylor Cranor and her associates have been studying the feet of girls in the State Agricultural College of Iowa. Among her conclusions are:

"The feet of only one girl were in good condition.

"Practically every girl had some arch trouble.

"Corns, bunions and crooked toes were general.

"There were no perfect feet among the 151 college girls.

"Foot trouble is almost universal among women."

These Iowa girls do not complain that this report is libelous, for they know that all other women of their social level have about the same kind of feet.

Miss Cranor's advice to women, given in Hygeia, relates almost altogether to shoes. The deformities of the feet she reports on resulted from the kind of shoes the women wore, including their size and shape. Some of the points made were:

The shoe should be sufficiently broad to allow the toes of the foot to spread when the person is standing or walking.

(I am convinced that the biggest mistake made in selection of shoes relates to narrowness. If the shoe is too narrow at the front end the bones are crowded out of position and bunions and callouses result. If the tops are too narrow, corns and ingrowing nails result.)

The tip of the shoe should extend three-fourths of an inch beyond the tip of the great toe.

The heels should not be more than three-fourths of an inch high. If a woman has been wearing high heels, however, she must not change suddenly to a very low-heeled shoe or one that has no heel. To do this will cause pains in the calf of the leg. The adjustment should be made gradually.

Arch supports are merely crutches for ruined feet. A foot in good condition does not need support. If a person must wear an arch support, the one chosen should be appropriate to the needs of the particular foot. A person with such a crippled foot should exercise the foot muscles in the hope of overcoming the need of arch supports.

If the feet are in good condition and the shoes are properly fitted, there is no reason why a new pair of shoes should be uncomfortable.

Footprints give only a limited amount of information as to the condition of the feet and help only to a limited extent in the fitting of shoes.

At present the majority of women give little consideration to comfort or health when purchasing shoes. Style seems to be the chief consideration.

I would like to add that men's feet are nothing to brag about.

And, finally, that the custom of walking and of going in swimming barefooted in the presence of observers of both sexes will do more to cause people to wear proper shoes than will all the lecturing and preaching.

SEVEN-YEAR ITCH.

M. C. writes: There seems to be an epidemic of an itch, scabies, which is contagious and seems to have started from the beaches.

1. How long does it last?

2. What disinfectant would prevent its spreading?

I have tried several ointments and have been to several doctors.

REPLY.

There are many itching diseases and several that are caught. Scabies, or prairie itch, or seven-year itch, is the most prevalent and the most important of those which we share with our loving friends. The answers given apply to scabies.

1. The name, seven-year itch, implies that it may abide with thee.

2. Sulphur is the best agent to destroy the itch parasite. It must be used thoroughly and properly. There are different kinds of sulphur ointments. The best against itch are the searching kinds. Since the parasite gets into clothes and towels, these must receive attention. Heat will kill the parasites in clothes and towels.

$1,000 Damages Asked In Alleged Ejectment

Stephen James, president of the Interfederation Conference, and Mrs. Mae Rose James, of Linden, Md., are named defendants in a suit filed yesterday by Armor Reeside and James B. D. Reeside asking $1,000 damages for alleged ejectment from their property, which adjoins the James property.

The petition filed yesterday in Montgomery County Circuit Court alleges that the defendants "wrongfully entered upon and ejected the plaintiffs from all that lot of ground belonging to the plaintiffs" in Josephs Park, a part of Cottage Farm. The plaintiffs, through Attorney Wilson L. Townsend, claim possession of the land and damages of $1,000.

Kiwanis Club Holds Anniversary "Party"

The Alexandria Kiwanis Club held its anniversary week celebration yesterday in honor of the seventeenth birthday of Kiwanis. J. Randall Caton, jr., spoke on the history of the International Kiwanis, organized seventeen years ago in Detroit, and now having 1,800 clubs with 100,000 members.

Mr. Caton introduced a resolution opposing the elimination of the Eighth Congressional District, and another opposing increasing the membership of the City Council and the election of six of the nine proposed members from wards instead of at large. Both resolutions were approved by the meeting.

Attorney Will Examine Dynamite for Evidence

State's Attorney Alan Bowie, of Prince Georges County, will come to Washington today to examine a quantity of dynamite recently found here with a view to reopening the Brady bombing case. He will particularly look for fingerprints on the paper in which the explosive was wrapped.

The dynamite was found in a garage where Leroy Brady formerly worked. He is now serving a ten-year sentence for the bombing which killed three persons and wounded several others. He has only been tried on one of the three murder indictments against him. His brother Herman, also charged with the bombing, was freed when tried on a similar charge.

Condemnation Act Begun For Route of Boulevard

Condemnation proceedings were started yesterday by Montgomery County Commissioners to obtain the right of way for the proposed Columbia boulevard in the Woodside section. The boulevard is to connect with Brookeville road and Sixteenth street, to give egress to the East-West highway and Sixteenth street for residents of the Woodside area.

The suit, filed by the law firm of Whiteford & Cissel, counsel to the county commissioners, names Vincent Marino, Dora Marino, William Montgomery, J. Harry Cunningham and Acacia Mutual Life Association as defendants. The petition recites that the commissioners wish the property for the purpose of opening a public road, to be known as Columbia boulevard, and that no agreement as to price could be reached with defendants.

Child Is Struck by Automobile.

Clara Schmackel, 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Schmackel, of Cherrydale, Arlington County, was struck by an automobile operated by Sidney G. Schottroffer, of East Falls Church, on the Cherrydale Hill last night. The child was picked up by Mr. Schottroffer and taken to Georgetown Hospital, where it was found she was not seriously hurt.

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S ADVENTURES.
By ——

George Washington had many exciting adventures. An exciting adventure was crossing the Delaware River. On Christmas night, he, with a force of less than 2,500 men, crossed the Delaware River and marched on the British forces at Trenton in a furious snowstorm in the winter of 1776. There he surprised a body of Hessian soldiers and took a thousand prisoners and a large quantity of arms and ammunition, all with scarcely the loss of a man. It was a great victory and a Christmas long to be remembered.

"Another exciting adventure was when, on December 11, 1777, Washington proceeded with half-clad, barefooted soldiers to Valley Forge, about 20 miles northward from Philadelphia. He had about 11,000 men, but not more than 7,000 were fit for field duty. The winter that ensued was severe and the soldiers shivered with cold and starved with hunger. The Marquis de Lafayette, a rich young Frenchman, came to the relief of Washington and fought side by side with him for five years, sharing all the hunger and hardships.

"At the end of the Revolution Lord Cornwallis surrendered to Gen. Washington at Yorktown, Va. The American and French troops were drawn up in parallel columns, between which the British and German prisoners marched and laid down their arms. The siege had lasted from September 28 until October 19.

"Before the Revolution Washington had many adventures with the French and Indians who were fighting the English in America. At this time, Washington, who was fighting for the English, escaped from the Indians on a raft of floating ice. On the way back Washington had to leave his horse and come on foot with Gist and an Indian guide sent from the front. This Indian guide was in the pay of the French and he intended to murder Washington in the woods. One day he shot at him from behind a tree, but luckily did not hit him. At that time the French were enemies to George Washington, but now they liked him so well that they made a replica of Mount Vernon at their fair in Paris in the summer of 1931.

"George Washington was very strong and that is what caused him to desire adventures. If he made up his mind to a thing he was sure to do it. I would like to have the adventures George Washington had."

Among those who applied for the Washington booklet were:

Tentative Total for Next Year's Term Is Cut by $40,000.

The tentative budget for the schools of Fairfax County, Va., for the 1932-33 fiscal year, shows a decrease of approximately $40,000 from the present year. The tentative budget adopted by the county school board and which will be submitted to the County Board of Supervisors for approval, shows that next year's appropriation was estimated to be $217,982. Expenses for the current school year were estimated at approximately $258,626.

Outside of the money spent for construction the tentative budget varies only slightly from the one the school board is now operating under. It asks for small increases in the teacher pay roll, as increased enrollments during the present school terms provide supplemental increases for principals of the larger schools.

The decrease in next year's budget is due largely to the cost of building operations carried on this year at Franconia, Herndon, Cub Run and Floris. An item of $7,500 carried in the new budget is to be used for one more room at Fairview School and two additional rooms at Lee-Jackson.

$408 More Donated To Alexandria Charities

Additional donations amounting to $408, to the Alexandria United Charities, for its relief work, have been reported by Elliott F. Hoffman. In his report Mr. Hoffman says that owing to the heavy demand being made by needy people, the charities body has filled more orders for groceries and fuel than ever before in its history.

No personal solicitation is being made for funds, and those desiring to contribute to the cause are asked to send in whatever they can afford in order that the work may be continued during the remaining winter months.

$411,460 Increase Seen In Arlington's Valuation

During the past year, the report reveals, 61 new improvements were listed for an assessed valuation of $411,460. This represents more than $1,000,000 of added values to Arlington County during the year, inasmuch as the assessed value is only about one-third of actual value. At the prevailing rate of taxation of $2.50 per hundred on the assessed valuation, the new improvements for the year 1931 will produce $10,286 in tax revenue.

Time Limit Expires On Virginia Licenses

Correcting a wrong impression which appears to have been broadcast over Arlington County as a result of hundreds of calls at the sheriff's office yesterday that there had been an extension of time to February 1 to obtain automobile tags, it was plainly stated last night at the office of Sheriff Howard B. Fields that all automobiles operating with 1931 tags are now dead and operators liable to arrest. The time to obtain 1932 tags expired Friday, January 15.

Reports given out by J. V. Turner, of Falls Church, in charge of the distribution of automobile tags for Arlington County show that more tags have been purchased to date this year than that of last year.

DR. M'CLELLAN GETS FALLS CHURCH POST

New Pastor to Ask Approval of Bishops for Change About June 1.

The vestry of the historic Falls Church, at Falls Church, Va., one of the three Episcopal churches in northern Virginia with which George Washington was intimately associated, has called Dr. Stuart McClellan, of Fletcher, N. C., to the rectorship of the church. The church has been without a pastor since the resignation of the Rev. Robert Allen Castleman last spring.

Dr. McClellan is well known as the founder and originator of the "Outdoor Westminister Abbey of the South." Memorials have been erected in the churchyard at Fletcher, N. C., to the notable men and women of the South. He conducted the services at the Falls Church several weeks ago, and will return on February 21 to preach a special sermon in honor of Washington's birthday.

It has been stated that Dr. McClellan has accepted the call of the Falls Church vestry, pending the ratification by the bishops of Virginia and North Carolina. The vestry is now planning to purchase or build a suitable rectory for the church, which has not been necessary during the previous years, as the Rev. Castleman owned his own home in Falls Church.

If Dr. McClellan's transfer is approved, it was stated he plans to assume his duties in Falls Church about June 1, his wife and two sons joining him in July.

The Methodist Episcopal churches of Oakton and Vienna, Va., have issued a call to the Rev. J. M. McCauley, of Congress Heights, D. C., to fill the vacancy created by the transfer of the Rev. Ralph Wott to the Mount Olivet Church at Randallstown, Md.

2 Blazes Blamed On Incendiarists

Fires on Water Front Are Extinguished Without Serious Damage.

Two attempts at incendiarism were foiled early yesterday morning, the damage being negligible. The first discovered was in an abandoned shed on the 200 block of South Union street, oil-soaked waste from a freight car being placed against the side of the shed and ignited. The fire department extinguished the blaze quickly.

The second case was in a shed on the strand. This was discovered by Charles Devine, who extinguished it. Fire Chief James M. Duncan, jr., is investigating both fires.

This is the second attempt to burn buildings along the water front within the last two weeks, oil-soaked waste having been used in the previous case. Several years ago fires were started in the same manner on Union street. No arrests have ever been made in connection with any of these fires.

MARYLAND MAY GET WASHINGTON WATER

Tydings Introduces Bill for Delivering Supply to Suburban Area.

Washington's water supply, piped down the Potomac from Great Falls, would be made available to the Washington suburban sanitary area, in nearby Maryland, under a bill introduced in the Senate yesterday by Senator Millard E. Tydings (Democrat), Maryland.

At the request of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, the District Commissioners would be directed to deliver water to the Maryland area, connecting the District's water mains at such points as might be agred upon.

The sanitary commission was advised to obtain authority from the Maryland State Legislature to enter an agreement with the District Commissioners.

Reservations were inserted that would prohibit interchange of water where it would in any way jeopardize the District's Federal Government's water supply.

Meters would be attached to the mains inside the District, and be under jurisdiction of the District Commissioners. The Commissioners could further investigate the distribution system in nearby Maryland, and if they found wastage, curtail the supply. The water would be supplied at cost, plus 4 per cent interest.

WASHINGTON LEADS IN CATHOLIC SCHOOLS

Nearly 10,000 Pupils This Year, Growth Being in Van of Archdiocese.

Catholic parochial schools in Washington are growing more rapidly than those of any other part of the archdiocese of Baltimore, according to the annual report of the Rev. Dr. John I. Barrett, archdiocesan superintendent of education, to Archbishop Curley. On this subject the report says:

"In the Nation's Capital the Catholic school numbers continue to grow. This year Washington leads all sections of the archdiocese in growth.

"It is a fact that, comparatively speaking, our Catholic schools in Washington have grown faster than in other parts of your jurisdiction. The thought should be borne in mind that for the last several years Washington has led in increased enrollment. There is still more room for our Washington schools to spread. Each year finds our school facilities in Washington expanding.

"The schools in Washington this year have 9,129 children who are obtaining the blessed benefits of a Catholic school education. Comparing these figures with last year's, which were 8,641, we note a net increase of 488 children. There are 4,641 boys and 4,488 girls making up the Catholic school population in the city on the banks of the Potomac."

In the Archdiocese.

Concerning the schools in the archdiocese the report says:

"A glance into the past will show that ten years ago there were about 30,000 children attending our grade schools.

"This year finds the Catholic elementary schools housing more than 50,000 children. Our records show that we had, on October 10, when the school census was taken, 50,683 children in the Catholic elementary schools. These figures show, then, that our enrollment has grown more than 20,000 in the last ten years.

Surely, such a growth was not looked for when you came into our midst in November, 1921. Our present figures show there are 25,292 boys and 25,391 girls in our Catholic schools today—an increase of 1,202 children over last year."

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "O Lord, Thou art my God; I will exalt Thee, I will praise Thy name, for Thou hast done wonderful things; Thy counsels of old are faithfulness and truth" (Isiah xxv:1).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health, With Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The question, 'What is truth?' convulses the world. It is said to be the first comprehensive study of its kind made by a local church school.

New York Avenue Church and Bethlehem Chapel Are Chosen for Tomorrow.

The committee on international good will of the Washington Federation of Churches has arranged for two meetings in the interest of the approaching disarmament conference at Geneva. They will be held tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. One will take place in New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, with Dr. J. R. Sizoo presiding, the address to be delivered by Bishop William F. McDowell, the president of the federation.

The second service will be held in Bethlehem Chapel of the Episcopal Cathedral, the sermon by Bishop Freeman, being appropriate to that occasion. Various other ministers will participate in the service at New York Avenue Church.

The purpose of both of these gatherings is to express the profound interest of the Christian people of Washington in the conference and to pray for its success. The public is cordially invited to attend whichever place of worship may be more convenient. In each case the service will not continue beyond an hour.

Dr. Harris Will Speak Over Radio Tomorrow

Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, pastor of Foundry Methodist Church, will speak tomorrow morning from 10 to 10:30 o'clock in a Nation-wide broadcast over the Columbia Broadcasting System. Every Sunday morning at this hour the Columbia System selects an outstanding preacher somewhere in this broad land of ours for this service, and it is quite an honor to be on its chosen list. Dr. Harris has chosen as his subject, "Sitting Where They Sit."

Justin Lawrie, director of the choir of Foundry Church, will assist Dr. Harris in this service. Mr. Lawrie will sing a solo, and the chorus of the church will assist in the music.

Col. Wise to Discourse On "The Other Half"

"The Other Half" is the subject selected by Lieut. Col. Frank H. Wise, regional commander of the Volunteers of America, for his sermon tomorrow. Col. Wise will conduct services at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the Relief Mission at 471 Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

The musical program will be under the direction of Lieut. Charles E. Watkins, who will be assisted by Lieut. Junia Ingram.

25 Years Ago Today

The Senate yesterday passed a bill increasing the pay of members of Congress to $7,500.

The annual charity ball for the benefit of the Children's Hospital was held last night.

Charles Doolittle Walcott, director of the United States Geological Survey, was last night elected secretary of the Smithsonian Institution.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE CANDIDATES GOT THEIR CHARACTERS MIXED.

THE reporters were told that Gov. Roosevelt had arrived in town by day coach and would receive them in his $3 hotel room at once. Mr. Roosevelt made the trip from the station to the hotel in an old open flivver, and, reaching the hotel, asked the newspapermen to pardon him a few minutes while he boiled himself an egg over a gas jet. He then took off his shoes, threw himself on the bed and said: "Fire away boys!"

"What do you think of the political situation?" he was asked.

"You'll have to shoot straighter than that," he said.

"Well, then, just what do you hold to be the big issue in the campaign?" asked the scribe.

"Bread and butter and bacon and eggs!" said Mr. Roosevelt, taking off his black Stetson hat for the first time and letting several mice out of it.

"What do you think of your rivals for the nomination?" he was asked.

• • • •

THE newspapermen next sought Gov. Smith. They found him leaving a meeting of the W. C. T. U. arm in arm with Bishop Cannon.

"What's new?" asked a reporter.

"Ah reckon you all know what's new," said Al. You uns keep pretty well informed on what's going on, ah reckon."

"Do you think that the platform should have a wet plank?" he was asked.

"Ah shoah don't," replied Mr. Smith. "Ah reckon prohibition jest ain't important in parious times like we all been a-havin'."

"Is it your fear that any modification would mean the return of the saloon?" asked the reporter.

"You all took the words from mah mouth that time, Cunnel," replied the governor, whipping out a harmonica and playing "Maryland, My Maryland" with gusto.

• • • •

THE correspondents then hurried over to see Alfalfa Bill Murray in his eight-room suite at the Elysium Arms. Alfalfa Bill was giving a dinner to Wall street bankers, but received the press in the gold room. He was quite reticent, however, and begged to be excused from any interview, saying that he was not formally dressed.

"Just say at this time that I think there is no hobby in life like the raising of pomeranian puppies and the culture of orchids," he said.

"Are you a candidate for the Presidency of the United States?" he was asked bluntly.

"Have you no sense of modesty?" rebuked Alfalfa Bill, concluding the interview.

• • • •

AT THIS moment news was received that Newton Baker and Alfred Ritchie were in the lobby downstairs. The reporters hastened there.

"Gentlemen," began the newspapermen. "What do you think should be the issues in this campaign?"

"You'll have to waif for my radd-eo talk," said Gov. Ritchie, tilting his derby over one ear.

"Scram!" said Mr. Baker out of the side of his mouth.

• • • •

CAN YOU REMEMBER—

Away back when you didn't believe the movie picture house barker when he said "Plenty of good seats inside without waiting?"

• • • •

"The mother-in-law is going with us," whispered Pete the Penguin, as he tooled his car out of the driveway this morning. "In other words the car is to have buzzard control."

• • • •

Probably the railroads will be put back on their feet in time for the Presidential candidates to be snapped riding in the engine cabs.

CROWDS HAIL DANCE OF MARTHA GRAHAM

To the tumultous applause of Washington lovers of the dance, Martha Graham, premiere danceuse, made her local debut yesterday afternoon at the National Theater. Appearing with Miss Graham, and adding background especially accentuating the novelty of the interpretations was a company of fifteen, accompanied by Louis Horst, at the piano; Hugo Bergamasco, flutist, and Emil Spitzer, oboeist.

The several numbers of Miss Graham's program dealt principally with the emotions rather than with any special effort to dramatize an incident.

Two dances of sorrow and six portrayals of primitive religious rituals are drawn with force. Satirical interpretive numbers around tragedy, comedy, pessimism and optimism were done with an acute sense of the "eternal fitness of things."

Closing Offering Significant.

Her closing offering, with the assistance of the entire company, is one of particular significance at this time, "Heretic," depicting the forces of intolerance. This interpretation alone should suffice to stamp Miss Graham as one of the greatest interpretive dancers of America.

Throughout her entire performance, Miss Graham has presented an entirely new and novel type of the choreographic art, a form which may take some time to become entirely appreciated in all its fullness.

What others have done for painting, sculpture, and even architecture, Miss Graham has done for the dance—a pronounced withdrawal from the traditional forms of the art, projecting it in a new tempo that at times accentuates the staccato at the expense of free-flowing rhythm.

Dancing Is Novelty.

While there may be a question as to the permanency of this modernistic interpretive dancing, on the grounds of its being too mechanical, it is a novelty that will well repay a witnessing. Even the jerking of the arms, the stamping of the feet, the mad rushes, and the sudden stops hold the spectator, oblivious to the general lack of a rhythmic sequence of movements, entranced by the unusual spectacle upon the stage.

There is a certain grace and beauty in this modernistic choreography, the same sort of grace and beauty that fascinates in watching the operation of an intricately constructed machine. Yet under a surface of mechanism, a definite vitality is present, a dynamic being hedged round about by forces, either not understandable or unknown.

Truly Miss Graham is a great artist, and rightfully deserves the approbation she has received. An innovation, whether or not on the stage, should never be condemned without a hearing, and Miss Graham has a type of dancing that is distinctively her own which merits the attention of the conscientious followers of terpsichore.

Arlington to Fight Redistricting Plan

A committee from the Arlington County Civic Federation, composed of President Robert N. Anderson, William D. Medley, Walter U. Varney, Mrs. Alice W. Semones and Mrs. Ruby G. Simpson will go to Richmond to protest any solution of the redistricting problem, now before the General Assembly, which will in any way affect the Eighth Congressional District except to enlarge it.

This action was taken at a meeting of the executive committee at the home of Mrs. Simpson, at Cherrydale, last night.

The committee from the federation will be supported by a like committee from the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce and other organizations in the county. The date of the hearing will be announced. Other bodies which have filed protests are the Arlington County Board, the supervisors of Fairfax County, and the City Council of the City of Alexandria.

Baby Girl Born in Auto En Route to Hospital

A 20-mile race with the stork was lost last night when an eight-pound baby girl was born to Mrs. John T. Rawlings, 27 years old, of Duley Station, Md., as she was being rushed to Garfield Hospital by her husband.

The race began shortly after 11 o'clock. Mr. Rawlings placed his wife in the rear seat of his automobile and headed for Washington at a 60-mile-an-hour pace. The child was born at Forestville, 10 miles from their home.

The trip was continued and mother and daughter were reported at "doing fine" at an early hour this morning.

THE NEW CINEMA OFFERINGS

COLUMBIA

"DR. JEKYLL AND MR. HYDE." Paramount picturization of the story by Robert Louis Stevenson, adapted to the screen by Samuel Hoffenstein and Percy Heath, featuring Fredric March, Miriam Hopkins and Rose Hobart, supported by Holmes Herbert, Halliwell Hobbs, Edgar Norton, Arnold Lucy, Col. MacDonnell and Tempe Pigott. Directed by Rouben Mamoulian. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

By NELSON B. BELL.

Taking its place as one of the most hideously gruesome of the cycle of "horror" pictures that is rapidly taking command of the box offices of the country—as preeminently exemplified by "Dracula" and "Frankenstein"—this new and extravagantly paced version of the famous old Robert Louis Stevenson thriller that has served as a stage vehicle for a long list of adventurous actors ranging from Richard Mansfield to Thomas E. Shea, in the minds of the soberly thoughtful will add much to the prestige of Frederic March as an actor of wide versatility and conspicuous power.

When he is impersonating the ominous character of Mr. Hyde, it is virtually impossible to perceive anything of Mr. March in the character, beyond an occasional tone of voice or inflection of speech, so monstrously has his terrifying disguise been contrived. This, by all odds, is the most exaggeratedly repulsive figure I have ever seen come out of Mr. Stevenson's fictional duality of character during many years of professional theatergoing. Count Dracula was an agreeable and genial gentleman by comparison and even the soulless monster created by Frankenstein was not so fearful an object.

On the side of virtue and uprightness, the Messrs. Hoffenstein and Heath, the latest adapters of the Stevenson imaginative tale of the young scientist who succeeded too well in segregating the two sides of his nature—the evil and the good—have gone no less to extremes. Dr. Jekyll is made so profoundly admirable a young man, so desperately in love with Lady Muriel Carew—although not averse, either, to some degree of favor in the eyes of Ivy Pearson, the music hall blonde from Soho—that the two embodiments of the dual personality are made to appear more vividly in contrast than ever before in the history of the theater. The melodramatic movements of the narrative, in consequence, become more than ever sensational, horrifying and cold-bloodedly brutal.

No less noteworthy than Fredric March's achievement of so tremendously repugnant a figure as Hyde, or so perfect a paragon of all the major virtues as Jekyll, is the impersonation of Ivy Pearson by Miriam Hopkins, rapidly assuming stellar stature among the most genuinely capable of the leading women recently proselyted from the stage to the studios. Miss Hopkins, by the sheer deftness of her method, plays the role of the grateful temptress and later victim of the fiend, Hyde, in a manner that is wholly unobjectionable despite its extraordinary daring.

The remainder of the supporting cast discharges its duties well, Holmes Herbert, Edgar Norton, Rose Hobart and Halliwell Hobbs all contributing effectively to the development of a fantastic and a fearful series of events.

The production is an impressive one and the photography excellently managed, save for a preponderance of moving camera shots that produce an almost bewildering sense of perpetual motion.

The supplementary attractions are a "Silly Symphony" cartoon comedy, "The Ugly Duckling," which has to do amusingly with humility and maternal gratitude, and a new issue of the Paramount Sound News, in which Senator Shepherd is accorded a resounding Bronx cheer for his support of prohibition, and Senator Tydings a real one for his spirited attack on it.

RIALTO

"HEAVEN ON EARTH." Universal picturization of the story, "Mississippi," by Ben Lucien Berman, adapted to the screen by Ray Doyle, starring Lew Ayres, supported by Anita Louise, Harry Beresford, Elizabeth Patterson and Slim Summerville. Directed by Russel Mack. Reviewed Friday evening by W. A. Whitney.

The age of steamboats and the rampages of Ol' Man River return in one of the most delightfully surprising pictures of the past few months, "Heaven and Earth," saga of the Mississippi River shanty dwellers, presents a pleasing blend of most of the elements of the earlier pictures of the locale, adding several novel turns that make for a story of ever-increasing interest.

A feud exists between the river boatmen and the dwellers of Shanty Bend and, as the result of gunplay, States learns that Capt. Lilly was responsible for his father's death. Brought up by the captain, States has learned to hate the river folk, but the revelation sends him back to his people. There he falls in love with the only marriageable girl of the place. The floods come and the houseboat is cut adrift. Into a swirling maelstrom the principals are cast but the fatherly captain, through a change of heart, effects the rescue.

Lew Ayres, cast in the role of States, fills the part with genuine youthful buoyancy and goes through the viscissitudes of his hectic career with an undaunted courage and enthusiasm. Opposite him is Anita Louise, in an unusual display of feminine ingenuousness that vividly recalls the unspoiled charm and spontaneity of the heroine in "Stark Love."

As the garrulous, yet motherly, aunt of Miss Louise is Elizabeth Patterson, from whose lips there flows much bearing on the superstitions of the river folk. The captain is played by Harry Beresford in a fatherly sort of way; so much so, in fact, that it seems almost flagrant ingratitude when Mr. Ayres leaves him. "Slim" Summerville has a wee bit of a part—but it's a knockout. You really should not miss his selling Mr. Ayres a $3 "Arizona diamond" engagement ring.

Especially commendable are the spirituals accompanying much of the action, the excellent photography in the shots of the squalid shanties and the realistic flood scenes. In all, "Heaven on Earth" is a picture that will suprise you, thrill you and entertain you.

Oswald Rabbit has gone Mother Goose! He and the girl friend do "Grandma's Pet," an excruciating burlesque of "Little Red Riding Hood," that is easily the best of that series. A Christy Walsh All-America Sportsreel, with Harry Maloney explaining the intricacies of soccer to "Pop" Warner; a comedy by the Thalians, "Running Hollywood" that is not totally without merit; and a release of the Universal News round out the bill.

British Submarine Refloated.

Ventnor, Isle of Wight, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—The British submarine Rainbow ran aground this afternoon in a dense fog off Dunnofe Point near here. It was refloated at high tide.

FOX

"CHARLIE CHAN'S CHANCE." Fox picturization of the novel by Earl Derr Biggers, adapted to the screen by Philip Klein and Barry Conners, starring Warner Oland, supported by H. B. Warner, James Kirkwood, Alexander Kirkland and Marian Nixon. Directed by John Blystone. Reviewed Friday night by Don B. Reed.

A noted author, an excellent cast and smooth direction combine here to present as enjoyable an hour's entertainment as has been flashed on the screen in months. There is nothing senastional about it all, but film runs rapidly through a highly intriguing murder mystery to a surprise solution with never a dull moment. "Charlie Chan's Chance" may safely be recommended as one of those really "satisfying" pictures.

Warner Oland, long prominent as a portrayer of Chinese roles, largely those with a villainous trend, here steps into an entirely new sort of character. As Inspector Chan, of the Honolulu police, on a visit to New York and called in to aid in a murder case, he proves an able detective, a comedian of the finest type and a thoroughly lovable personality. Quite a change for Mr. Oland, but one which the audience seemed to relish.

The story hangs on the actions of Inspector Chan, Inspector Fife, of Scotland Yard (H. B. Warner) and Inspector Flannery, of the New York police (James Kirkwood), in attempting to solve the murder of a former Scotland Yard detective, who had been on the verge of solving an old crime.

Oland, Warner and Kirkwood all win new laurels with their excellent performances, for while Oland has the best part, the others are far from slighted. Alexander Kirkland, as a suspect, and the male love interest, and Marian Nixon, involved in the case and in love with Kirkland, are prominent in a cast which includes Linda Watkins, Charles McNaughton, Herbert Bunston, Ralph Morgan and Edward Peil, sr. The last named as Li Chung, has a startling bit, splendidly done.

The stage, too, comes in for a paean or two of praise. A special feature this week, marking the farewell appearance of Les Stevens and The Diplomats, is the presentation of La Mae and Alice Louise, who do two tango numbers, well received, accompanied by The Diplomats, four members of the Fox Orchestra; a feminine piano-accordionist and a "Lady of Spain," who sang. Beautifully staged, the specialty clicked.

The Fanchon & Marco "Vacation Days" idea was rather wearisome until "Three Jacks and a Queen" began some great adagio stuff in black and white, with one of the Jacks invisible. This was followed by Kirk and Lawrence, a couple of riding fools, whose burlesque rodeo skit knocked the customers for a loop, and finally Zelda Santley, interpreting the stars of the day, Cantor, Chevalier, Helen Morgan and Garbo, who closed a show-stopping performance with her own interpretation of "Ten Cents a Dance." Lee Wilmot, Ralph Peters and Kathleen Kay, dancers and comedians, open the idea.

Auxiliary film attractions include "Dynamite," a comedy with Red Donohue and his trick mule; "Happy Days in the Tyrol," a visit on the Fox Movietone Magic Carpet, and an issue of Fox Movietone News, the bright spot of which was a buffalo round-up in Yellowstone Park.

PALACE

"THIS RECKLESS AGE." Paramount picturization of Lewis Beach's play, adapted to the screen and directed by Frank Tuttle, featuring Richard Bennett, Frances Starr, Frances Dee, Charles Ruggles and Charles "Buddy" Rogers. Reviewed Friday night by Dorothea Lewis.

A simple, obvious, sentimental story made interesting through the generally fine acting of a superlative cast, that is this absurdly misnamed picture. "This Reckless Age," indeed! The blurb writers' "Youth At Its Fastest Clip," my hat! The title seems absolutely designed to keep away those who would most welcome the picture and entice persons sure to be disappointed. Strange workings, these mental gymnastics.

For this tells mildly but movingly the story of the Ingles family, father and mother, son Bradley, and daughter, Lois. And to put the publicity lads entirely in the wrong, it is pretty much father and mother's story, the story of how they sacrificed and did everything they could for Lois and Bradley only to have Lois eat her Christmas dinner away from home and Bradley decide to leave college to be married on something like a day's notice. Then it shifts around to being son and daughter's and son's sweetheart's story, when Dad finds himself so deep in trouble he apparently can't get out.

It is, as we have said, sentimental, but it's human and real. It is mild and overlong, but it's also mellow. And as for that fastest clip, there isn't a cocktail on exhibition and a New Year's party is enlivened by hide-and-go-seek, which, of course, we'll admit has its posisbilities. So those wanting orgies had best stay away.

However, with Richard Bennett, oh, so excellent, appealing and convincing as Dad; Frances Starr, sweet and believable as Mother; Buddy Rogers, exceedingly good as son, and Frances Dee, lovely and lovable, as daughter, it is an unusual family. There is that grand person, Charlie Ruggles, who, as a friend of the family, once got a medal for winning a footrace, brightens the whole affair; and Peggy Shannon, pretty and sensible, in the brief role of Bradley's pretty and sensible sweetheart.

As for the stage show, the "Hollywood Collegians" plus two feminine dancers, take up the entire time and prove themselves better electricians than musicians. Their lighting effects are unique and the huge silhouettes creating a mad shadow symphony on the backdrop, are most interesting. As far as music goes, however, they seem never to have thought kindly of eardrums.

Nor can we whole-heartedly recommend their comedy, which is so very collegiate and romperish.

There is, among the subsidiaries, an Irish travelogue as interesting as the feature, and it was right roundly and rightly applauded last night. It takes a Walter Futter's "Curiosities," a cartoon comedy, a newsreel, and an orchestral overture to complete a bill which seems considerably too long.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL.

ACCORDING to late word from Bob St. John, a close observer of the Broadway scene, metropolitan theatergoers will soon have an opportunity to learn what Julius Caesar would have been like if he hadn't been Julius Caesar at all, but Benito Mussolini, instead.

With a well-founded chuckle over "the fun I am going to have," Basil Sydney, recently seen at the Belasco with his charming wife, Mary Ellis, in "Jewel Robbery," now running in New York, yesterday disclosed to Mr. St. John that he is planning a modern dress version of Shakespeare's famous play about the old Roman warrior.

"We're going to put the Roman legions in black Fascisti shirts instead of white tunics," Mr. Sydney explained with a broad grin. "It will all be done in strictly 1932 style. And Caesar will be Mussolini, or Mussolini will be Caesar, however you may want to put it.

"It is amazing what a resemblance exists, even before you modernize it, between what Shakespeare wrote about and what is going on in Italy today. They talk constantly about dictators in "Julius Caesar" and even the salute used by the soldiers is the same as the one Mussolini has taught his Black Shirts."

Better be careful, Basil—and please pronounce it like "frazzle"—the guy has influence!

Speaking of politics creeping into our amusements—and I am not at all sure that any one was—you should have heard the rumpus that was occasioned in the Columbia yesterday afternoon when, during the unreeling of the Paramount Sound News, Senator Shepherd attempted to point out the many virtues of the prohibition law as at present constitutionalized. Boy, did the house give him a razzing! One lusty lunged objector, seated in the balcony, greeted the conclusion of the senator's remarks with a well-mouthed and soundly fashioned, "Oh, Nerts!"

Then Senator Tydings, ardent modificationist, stepped into a close-up and gave his version of all this eighteenth amendment business to a salvo of applause that would slap your ears right back against the old medulla oblongata, and don't I hope I've remembered and spelled my physiology lesson correctly!

Although perhaps a little belatedly, I am glad to be able to print this impartial survey by a professional reviewer of a pretentious undertaking by any nonprofessional group. So then:

Notwithstanding a knocking radiator, creaking floorboards and a 2-by-4 stage, the Columbia Players' performance on Thursday night of Wilde's classic, "Lady Windermere's Fan," at Wilson Teachers College, Eleventh and Harvard streets, was characterized by its smoothness, and, in view of the aforementioned handicaps, its courage.

Not a line of the pruned four acts was missed or mussed or muffed though the first act seemed overlong. Certain parts could have been played with more fire but none was played with too much, and that is more important.

Particularly to be commended are Frank Jamison, a real trouper, who not only directed the large cast and cut the lengthy lines, but also created a deliciously amusing "Tuppy," and Aurora Poston, as the notorious and mysterious Mrs. Erlynne. She played nicely throughout but carried the last act to a deft and quite brilliant conclusion. The Lady Windemere of Janet Jackson was a trifle too serene yet consistently sure. Bessie Mills was excellent as the Duchess.

Robert Miller, particularly, ably seconded by S. Allen Foster, did much to catch all the sparkle of Wilde's lines in that clever third act, and Paul Alexander did well with a difficult part, though he might have looked more the man of Mayfair without his American and boyishly unbuttoned coat.

Editor's Note: I had a good description of the fan, too, but it seems to have breezed out!

Potshots:

When Charles Spencer Chaplin comes to the screen as Napoleon, as he has declared his intention of doing, Stuart Erwin wants to know if the Battle of Waterloo is to be on the level or fought with custard pies in the old Sennett tradition. . . Helen Twelvetrees says she has never seen one of her completed pictures all the way through—oh, well, some people have all the luck. . . Betty Egan works frequently in pictures because she can scream swelly for the microphones. She probably has had a lot of experience on the boards as an offstage voice. . . Colleen Moore is said to be on the verge of tackling another comeback in the celluloids at a weekly stipend something less than the $10,000 she used to collect. . . Edith Storey, famous years ago as a Vitagraph star, is owner of a chicken ranch on Long Island. . . Another former Vitagraph star, Florence Turner, occasionally plays small parts in the flickers even yet. . . Ethel Clayton, also a former star, who up until recently was opertaing a gown shop in Hollywood, has appeared in several films of late. . . Jacqueline Logan, once a Ziegfeld decoration and later in pitchers, is appearing on the other side in British productions. . . Flora Finch, former comedy partner of John Bunny back in the old one-reel days, has returned to the West Coast film colony to attempt a comeback in character parts. . . Enid Markey, still another Vitagraph product, has been on the stage in New York of late. My last recollection of her was in the original silent production of "Tarzan of the Apes". . . Mary Astor collects $2,000 per week for being that beautiful in front of the cameras.

But why be envious? I work harder than Mary Astor, but I've got less than two million, so what of it?

Lawyer Slays Teacher, Then Jumps to Death

New York, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Yvonne Bouche, English teacher at the fashionable Finch School, was shot and killed tonight by Mourd Sallisi, Staten Island lawyer, who then jumped to his death from a window of Miss Bouche's fifth floor apartment.

Police said the double tragedy followed a quarrel resulting from Miss Bouche's rejection of Sallisi's marriage proposals.

Builders Protest Hoover Pay Edict

President Asked by Associated Contractors to Suspend Order.

The Associated General Contractors of America, which has been holding its annual convention at Milwaukee, today sent the following telegram to President Hoover urging him to suspend the Executive order of January 19 in regard to the payment of the prevailing wage rate on Government building construction:

"The Associated General Contractors of America, assembled in convention at Milwaukee, have just learned of your order of this afternoon which we feel will tend to increase the confusion already existing under the indefinite Davis-Bacon prevailing wage statute, which we fear may be declared unconstitutional. We are heartily in accord with your desire to prevent any deduction or rebating of wages paid labor. Punishment should be proportionate to the offense but not by termination of the right to continue at work.

"We believe existing confusion would be eliminated and the statute made more equitable and workable by an amendment requiring the wages which contractors must pay to be specified previous to the advertising for bids. We respectfully suggest the suspension of the above order until we have an opportunity to present the employers' viewpoint to you."

Extended Street Lighting Time Urged by Police

Declaring the present schedule of extinguishing street lights in the early hours of the morning is aiding lawbreakers and increasing the hazards of policemen on beats throughout the city, the Policemen's Association of the District of Columbia has requested that immediate action be taken in an effort to prolong the lighting of thoroughfares until daybreak.

Under the present system street lights are turned off at 6:37 a. m. Thus, residential and business sections are left in total darkness for more than half an hour.

POST'S FOOD PAGE LIKED BY READERS

Many women have responded to The Post's newest food page contest in which a prize will be given for the best letter telling "Why I Like the Saturday Food Page of The Washington Post." Although the contest was only announced last week, scores of letters have been received and some of the better of these are printed here. Others will be published later and then the prize winner will be announced.

From Mrs. Louise P. Cook, 2115 F street northwest:

"Although a business woman, I manage to give a great deal of time and thought to the planning of my meals at home. I like to cook and am always on the lookout for new recipes. Therefore the Saturday Food Page of The Washington Post is always of interest to me, and I have found some of the recipes exceptionally good.

"I should like to submit, and to pass on to other women interested in cookery, the enclosed recipe for Egg Cutlets which is one of my pet recipes. It makes an excellent luncheon dish if one does not wish to serve meat."

Cook Books Inadequate.

From Alice Kerford, Riverdale, Md.:

"Nowadays there are so many wonderful cookbooks on the market any one can cook. However, as time goes on this occupation is apt to lose its luster unless there is something new to brighten the interest. This is why I read the Saturday Food Page. The recipes contained in its columns have the framework of professional dishes plus secret and personal touches that give them flavorful and unique charm.

"Then, too, there are always new recipes by the editor and tempting foodstuffs advertised nearby to aid in compiling your market list. Schneider's "Purina Whole-Wheat Bread" suggests a change any one might like to try. "Self-Rising Washington Flour" is an appreciable step toward better baking. If Mary and John happen to see "Schindler's Fresh Roasted Peanut Butter" while mother is reading the paper, she is very apt to get a valuable idea for making nourishing school sandwiches that are both different and delicious. And if Joan sees the paper before Jim leaves for work, during the immediate future they will very likely enjoy 3 pounds of Peoples Drug Stores Candy Treat. These ads bring many new and worthwhile things to your attention.

"When a holiday approaches the hostess who takes The Post need not quake with doubts and fears. For she can be sure of finding in her Saturday issue preceding the important event a bounteous supply of helpful hints that will assure her her kitchen itinerary for that day is up to date.

"If the reader should wax ambitious the prize recipe feature of this page is a happy diversion that will while away several moments on Saturday morning, just after the dishes are washed or, while the cake is browning, with the magical chance of winning the check for $5 or an attractive book for the library."

Among those who won book prizes and honorable mentions this week were the following:

DATE PUDDING.
(Awarded Book Prize.)

1 pound dates, seeded and chopped
1 cup chopped nuts (M. B. Frazier's)
1 cup powdered sugar
3 "Rockingham" eggs, beaten separately
3 heaping teaspoonfuls Rumford baking powder
4 tablespoonfuls flour (add another half tablespoonful if mixture seems not stiff enough)

Beat yolks of eggs, add sugar, beat together until very light and fluffy; then add fruit mixed thoroughly with the flour; fold in stiffly beaten whites of eggs last. Bake 25 minutes in a sheet cake pan.

TAYLOR CAKES.

To 1 quart Orleans Molasses (golden) add 2 tablespoons soda, dissolved in hot water and let it foam, beating till foaming stops. Add 1 pint buttermilk, 1 pound brown sugar, beating well. Add 1 pint melted Crisco, 4 eggs (Rockingham, Sanitary), beaten together. Mix in ½ teaspoon ground cloves, 2 tablespoons ginger, 3 tablespoons cinnamon. Thicken with 2½ to 3 quarts Sanico Flour, enough to make a batter quite hard to stir.

Put into a stone jar or other container and cover well with layers of muslin and paper. When wanted, drop by teaspoons, not too close together, on greased pans, and bake ten minutes in hot oven.

This batter will keep several months in cool weather.

Delicious Broccoli Recipe Wins $5 for Mrs. W. L. Hill

MRS. WILLIAM L. HILL,

Leafy Vegetable Contains Many Beneficial Constituents.

One of those vegetables so overcrowded with vitamins and other beneficial constituents that we must partake of it is the subject of a recipe which took The Post's $5 award this week.

The prize went to Mrs. William L. Hill, of 1434 Harvard street northwest, for her culinary method of attacking leafy broccoli, and converting it into a dining room masterpiece.

Mrs. Hill creates a sauce which with the broccoli makes a pleasant and palatable dish. To be eligible for the award recipes must use products advertised on The Post food page. The formula follows.

Sauce.

½ cup Land O'Lakes Butter (standard)
½ tablespoon vinegar
2 egg yolks
¼ teaspoon salt.
Few grains cayenne

Divide butter in three parts. One part in saucepan with vinegar and egg yolks. Put saucepan in pan hot water and stir with wire whisk. Add second piece butter; when thick third piece. Remove from fire. Add salt and pepper.

Chocolate Briefs.

An easy way to make chocolate marshmallows is to remove the sugar from prepared marshmallows, dip them in melted sweet chocolate, and lay on wax paper until coating hardens.

When time is short, frost the top of the cake with melted sweet chocolate, or spread first with marshmallow whip and pour over a layer of melted bitter chocolate.

WHAT FOOD TO BUY FOR DEFERRED USE

Fruits With Canned Pits Are Not Advisable to Purchase in Quantity at Present.

An obliging, high-ranking executive of one of Washington's powerful chain store concerns took time from his busy routine one day this week to talk to Mrs. Justa Housewife about things she wanted to know about the present food market.

"Shall I buy supplies for several weeks or months, of canned goods and staples now so low in price, or is there any possibility that prices will be lower?" Mrs. Housewife asked. "Or will present prices continue so that I need not be in a hurry to take advantage of them?"

"Prices can not go any lower," the executive said, directly. "Any change from now on undoubtedly will have an upward trend. We expect upward changes within the next several months."

"Then, of course, I should buy certain foods that are not perishable," Mrs. Housewife deduced. "Do you have any advice about what canned foods to buy?"

Canned Prices Very Low.

"Nearly all canned foods—vegetables, fruits and fish—are priced so low now that they are very good values," was the answer. "There is only one kind of canned food I'd advise you not to buy in any quantity. That is, any fruit canned with the pits. Canned cherries, French prunes and a few other seeded fruits so canned may germinate a gas from the seed, causing the can to bulge. The food would not be dangerous, but would not be appetizing if kept on the shelves for any length of time before using."

"That's something I've never known and I'll tell my friends about it," Mrs. Housewife responded. Then she wanted to know:

"What foods other than canned goods are good 'buys' right now?"

"Dried fruits," she was told. "But dried fruits bought now must be used before the weather is warm, and should not be kept in too warm a place in the home. In our supply houses we take care that our dried fruits are placed in cool places as soon as the warm weather comes on. But some of the dried fruit bargains shouldn't be passed up now. Prunes, for instance, are four pounds for a quarter and dried apricots are nearly as cheap.

Navy Beans Low in Price.

"And don't overlook the humble navy bean which has the humblest price of all—two pounds for 9 cents," the executive told the housewife.

The grocery official interviewed is thoroughly informed upon the questions asked above, with his information based upon figures on his desk carefully checked daily, prepared for the general offices and the 514 stores operated by the grocery concern in and about Washington.

The decrease in the amount of money spent for food shows vividly in the grocery official's chart, which shows that the average sale to a customer in December, 1930, amounted to 55 cents. The average sale in December, 1931, was 49 cents, or a decrease per customer in a year of more than 10 per cent.

Lamb and Okra.

Cook two pounds shoulder lamb in water until tender. Boil one-half pound of dried okra in hot water for 20 minutes, and brown in butter. Season with a little chopped parsley and garlic. Add 1 cup tomato puree, ½ cup hot water, 2 cups lamb broth and the cooked meat, cut in small pieces. Add a little lemon juice and serve with boiled rice.

Market Meanderings

Brilliant Bitter-Sweet, Alder Berries and Partridge Berry Plants Grace Flower Markets; Honey in Ancestral Role.

Not far south of Washington spring flowers are blooming in the gardens, according to a Washingtonian who visited in lower Virginia a few days ago. That means that gardening time will soon be here. Flower marketers are already offering their early suggestions in the form of tiny potted rock garden plants selling for 20 cents each, three for 50 cents, at stands in the open market. The Meanderer saw several varieties of cactus and seedum plants at this price this week. Pots of pansies with large thrifty blooms sell for 50 cents each. The pretty, pleasant girl in charge of the plants said that the pansies and rock garden plants would keep nicely in the house until transplating time.

One flower marketer, white-bearded, who has welcomed more springs than most of us have seen, went high into the Blue Ridge Mountains, into swamps, and through pine forests for some of the offerings at his stand in one of the District-supported markets. From the mountains he brought the most luxurious and brilliantly colored bittersweet the Meanderer ever saw, and she has seen bittersweet in four States. Black alder berries, which are bright red, not black, are his harvest from the swamps. Carefully gathered partridge berry plants, with their long, graceful tendrils, are what he brought from the pine forest. The partridge berry plants will keep well indoors if kept moist and cool. After they are transplanted into a shady spot in the garden they will have tiny white fragrant blooms, the veteran gardener said.

White clover honey, which its maker boasts is as good as any in the world, is for sale at an outside stand in Washington's oldest open market. Whether the fact that the maker of the honey is a direct descendant of Richard Henry Lee should add to the excellence of the product is not determined, but that knowledge at least adds to the purchaser's interest in the marketer. When the honey merchant is not busy turning honey into money he is almost as busy taking part in patriotic services in the name of his distinguished ancestor. Pints of the strained honey sell for 30 cents, quarts are 50 cents, and honey in the comb is 30 cents a cake.

Camembert cheese from Germany, in little round wooden cartons, makes a choice bit for sale in a corner of a big downtown market in central Washington. The fat little German girl pictured on the cheese box lid supposedly is eating some of the cheese she advertises and at the same time giving the idea that extra weight for ladies is no disgrace in Germany. Camembert cheese originated in the French town of that name, but is made in many places in northwest France and Germany.

Pineapple fanciers should know about pineapple week at an F street pastry shop. Cakes, from big cakes to cup cakes, cookies and tarts, are flavored and decorated with pineapple and offered at special prices. At the same shop one can find generous sized old-fashioned chocolate cake made with yellow batter and thick fudge icing, for as little as 60 cents, to say nothing of cocoanut cakes just as good, at the same price. Those fluffy whipped cream puffs served at parties about Washington probably came from this shop, for such whiffs of deliciousness for the appetite are created there and are only 10 cents each.

Things to do with round steak, such as turning it into a tender, flavorsome Swiss steak, or an impressive mock duck, or grinding it into meat loaf material, should be considered by thrifty housewives this week, for at one market in Northwest Washington, first class round steak is selling for only 25 cents a pound. And only 32 cents is asked at that market for sirloin and 35 cents for porterhouse.

Strawberries demand attention each week, for their January prices grow more surprising as the month gets older. A help-yourself store in a Northwest market featured strawberries at only 33 cents a quart this week.

Onions, unbelievably small, so small that their dealer calls them "cute," are in bottles holding not much more than an ounce, for sale in a corner shop in one of Washington's downtown markets. They are imported, very choice pearl onions, used in cocktails and other dishes where a touch more elusive than that of the ordinary onion is wanted. Mushroom sauce and sauce vinegarette are other desirable items among this corner shop's offerings.

Apricots and plums from Chile are newly arrived at a fancy fruit shop in a downtown open market.

Butter selling from 32 to 35 cents a pound, eggs at 25 to 35 cents, and standard size tomatoes, corn or green beans to choose from at the rate of four cans for 25 cents are some of the cheering things that keep the food costs low in a help-yourself grocery in a Northwest Washington market. Other bargains that thrifty housewives are finding there are navy beans at 2 pounds for 9 cents, and prunes at 4 pounds for 25 cents. And it was there the meanderer found the lowest price this week on fresh tomatoes—2 pounds for 25 cents.

SETTLE THIS BRIDGE PROBLEM NOW—FOREVER!

North was set three vulnerable and doubled last rubber. SHE wants to play a few more rubbers. East is going out to dinner, so she has time to play. West has a maid who is preparing her dinner, so it's all right with her. South has a hungry husband expecting dinner in an hour and a half. How can she finesse that?

She'd hold all the trumps if she had an Electric Range. One lead to that before she came, and she could slough all her cooking worries. You see, if you put your meal in the Electric Range in the morning, it will be all cooked and piping hot when you return. It's all done by an electric timing device that's faithful to the second. There's new flavor in cooking with this split-second accuracy, and it's economical, too, because "Matchless Service" comes to you at exceedingly low rates . . . among the lowest in the whole country.

STOCK PRICES DROP TO NEW LOW LEVELS

Selling Near Close Causes Sharp Reaction; Rails Also Join Decline.

New York, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Stocks stumbled into a squall of selling toward the close today, and retreated so swiftly that the net decline in the averages was the largest of the year.

The reaction coincided with Chicago advices that the railroad conference was likely to be prolonged by labor's demand for priority of action on its employment program. Professional operators, set for a prompt conclusion of the conferences, perhaps over this week-end, promptly sold the market. Profit-taking was an important factor in the decline, but undoubtedly substantial short lines were also put out. It was notable that most active selling was not in the rails, but in other groups.

Rail stocks had been trying vainly to pilot other groups into a rally and had themselves been 1 to 2 points higher without, however, any notable success in attracting support to the industrials or utilities. Trading remained anchored to the recent snail's pace until the late flurry when activity increased. Transactions in all amounted to 1,561,513 shares.

Carrier Issues React.

Carrier issues backed up willingly, although their volume remained moderate. Santa Fe was off nearly 5 points net. New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Pennsylvania, Norfolk & Western and Union Pacific lost 2 to 4. Missouri Pacific preferred, unusually active and strong, gave up much of a 3¾ point advance

U. S. Steel was offered on the theory that however hopeful the market might be regarding the dividend next week, the event itself was a decided uncertainty, and the stock reacted more than 3 points. Similar losses developed in American Telephone, Case, American Can and Allied Chemical. National Biscuit, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Bethlehem, General Motors, Westinghouse, Union Carbide and Sears Roebuck declined 1½ to more than 2 net.

Recent sluggishness of industrial stocks reflects the market's scepticism toward trade improvement. The weekly mercantile reviews, however, said some gains had occurred, even in the heavy industries.

Trade Seen Improving.

"On the whole," reported Bradstreet's, "the trade situation may be said to be slightly improving from the after-holiday lull of the first of the year. There is still lack of any real evidence that demand for merchandise is much above the minimum, but there are unmistakable signs that the process of adjustment is making progress."

There have been fewer bank failures in the past fortnight, and it seemed logical to assume the corporation had helped sound institutions to surmount temporary difficulties imposed by frozen assets. Congressional approval of the reconstruction measure hastened formation of the next remedial organization.

The Chicago grain market had closed by the time stocks were weakening and both wheat and corn showed only nominal losses. Cotton sagged 25 to 30 cents a bale.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Setbacks predominated in grain values today despite evidence of steady accumulation of May delivery of wheat by Eastern financial interests.

Much enlarged outshipments of wheat from Argentina and Australia had a bearish influence, and so also did assertions that for months to come United States millers would be purchasing little or no grain. These assertions were based on reports that domestic stocks of wheat owned by flour mills were the largest since before 1927, and that stocks of flour on hand were likewise a record for the same period.

Wheat closed unsettled, ⅛@½ under yesterday's finish; corn, ⅜@⅝ down; oats unchanged to ¼ off, and provisions unchanged to 7 cents up.

From the outset, bulls were handicapped by word that Argentine and Australian wheat exports this week had jumped to 11,521,000 bushels, compared with 9,274,000 the week previous and 6,100,000 a year ago. In contrast, North American wheat export business today amounted to only 300,000 bushels. Downturns in Wall street securities counted also as a bearish factor. However, on all declines in wheat the market encountered the same kind of support it has had for some time, and was able to score rallies.

Speculative buyers of wheat showed a persistent disposition to make capital of a clause of the reconstruction finance bill permitting the purchase of long time acceptances on exports of farm commodities. It was urged that this may result in overseas sales of farm board wheat on long time credits which the board heretofore was not in a position to accomplish. Abnormal prevailing weather in domestic winter wheat territory was also a sustaining element, there being little apparent desire to press the selling side of the market on breaks, especially in view of likelihood of serious crop damage should temperatures undergo an abrupt fall.

Corn and oats gave way with wheat. Country offerings of corn were not as large as of late, but Eastern shipping demand here was at a standstill.

DAILY GOLD MOVEMENT.

New York, Jan 22 (A.P.).—Today's gold transactions involved a net decrease of $8,703,800 in the country's monetary stock, according to the New York Federal Reserve Bank statement.

There were further large exports to France, amounting to $20,474,000, and a shipment of $230,000 to Switzerland. Gold under earmark for foreign account decreased $12,000,200. There were no imports.

Havre, France, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Two million dollars in gold from New York was unloaded today from the steamer Paris.

Bombay, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—The flow of gold from India to the outside world has fallen off perceptibly since Mahatma Gandhi warned the country that the rupee would fall to zero if the gold shipments continued.

Echoing the Mahatma's warning, Pandit Malaviya, round table conference delegate, issued another appeal to the people urging them to keep their gold, declaring if they did the spread of the ratio between the rupee and the pound would fall and result in higher prices for agricultural products produced by Indian farmers.

REFRIGERATOR FIRM CONDUCTS ELECTION

Wrisley Brown Is Chosen President; Henze Heads Banking Forum.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

At the meeting of the board of directors of the Terminal Refrigerating & Warehouse Corporation held yesterday, the following officers were elected: President, Wrisley Brown; vice presidents, G. W. Forsberg and S. T. Price; treasurer, William M. Hannay; secretary, Jerry P. Johnson; comptroller, Robert D. Marshall; auditor, Morris W. Bennett; cashier, Francis J. Becker; supervising engineer, Walter E. Bernd.

The company enters the year with a large program for extension of its refrigeration pipe line system to serve packing industries and wholesale houses locating in the new Municipal Market area.

Directors of Liberty National Bank, at their annual meeting of organization yesterday, elected W. M. Simmons assistant trust officer to fill one of the vacancies created by the death of the late Edward J. McQuade, who was president and assistant trust officer of the bank. All other officers were reelected as follows: Rolfe E. Bolling, president; M. F. Calnan, vice president and cashier; J. B. Skinner, Charles C. Cranford and J. Hastings O'Neale, assistant cashiers; T. P. Littlepage, general counsel and trust officer.

Forum Committee Named.

Appointment of the forum committee of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, for the current administrative year was announced yesterday by Aubrey O. Dooley, assistant trust officer, Federal-American National Bank & Trust Co. and president of the chapter.

The committee is composed of A. E. Henze, W. B. Hibbs Co., chairman; I. J. Roberts, assistant cashier, Riggs National Bank, and James A. Soper, vice president and cashier, Lincoln National Bank. Mr. Henze, the chairman, is a past president of the chapter and has been one of its most active workers for years.

The committee proposes to hold a number of meetings at which there will be competent speakers who will talk on subjects of general interest to bank officers and senior clerks. The speaker will then lead the discussion that follows.

Meeting Set Thursday.

The first meeting has been scheduled for Thursday and will be held in the tenth floor club room of the American Security Building at 8 o'clock in the evening.

James C. Dulin, jr., assistant treasurer, American Security & Trust Co., recognized as an authority on investments, will be the speaker and his subject will be, "Collateral Loans and Margin Buying."

The committee feels that this is a most important subject and its presentation at this time should develop a great deal of interest. Admission will be by membership card and a special invitation has been extended to chapter graduates.

Reporting on the completion of the first semester examinations of the chapter, Richard A. Norris, Lincoln National Bank official and chairman of the chapter's educational committee, states that Ten subjects were taught in the first half-year. Eight of these were completed and final examinations held. The classes in public speaking and debate will continue until spring in order to meet the institute's requirements as to number of study hours, these classes having met only once a week.

256 Are Enrolled.

There were 256 enrollments in the eight completed courses, and 240 of this number, of 93.75 per cent, qualified for the final tests; 229 students, or 89.46 per cent of those enrolled, actually took the examinations, and it is expected that at least five additional will take special examinations, in which case the percentage of those taking examinations to enrollments, will be about 92 per cent.

This is considered an excellent showing, and should mean a reduction in class mortality when compared with last year's figure of 83.23 per cent of enrollments successfully completing courses in the first semester.

The class in bank management, conducted by Frederick P. H. Siddons, secretary of the American Security & Trust Co., had an enrollment of 22, all of whom qualified for and 21 of whom took the examination.

The class in credit management, conducted by Harold W. Burnside, assistant cashier, Riggs National Bank, had an enrollment of 24 and the entire class qualified and took the examination.

This is a record and is clearly an indication of the gradual improvement taking place in the educational work of the chapter.

FOREIGN MONEY MARKET.

Paris, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Three per cent rentes, 79 francs 65 centimes; 5 per cent loan, 102 francs.

Exchange on London, 87 francs 60 centimes. The dollar was quoted at 25 francs 39½ centimes.

London, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Money, 3¼ per cent. Discount rates, short bills, 3¾@5½ per cent; three-month bills, 5⅛@5⅞ per cent.

New York, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Based upon a compilation from the four quarterly reports, the Howe Sound Co. earned $1.19 a share in 1931, compared with $4.09 in 1930.

Venezuelan crude oil output in 1931 declined 13,824,624 barrels, or approximately 13 per cent from the preceding year, according to figures issued today by O'Shaughnessy's Oil Bulletin. The total production was 115,763,976 barrels.

Film Daily states that a new newsreel is to be placed upon the market by a new independent company, to be known as the American Newsreel Corporation. The publication states that the project is backed by Harry A. McCorry, and that the newsreel will be edited by Lowell Thomas. Formal announcement is expected within a week.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—After holding fairly steady during the forenoon today, cotton weakened in the later trading under Southern and local selling or liquidation.

After selling up from 6.68 to 6.73 during the earlier trading, March contracts broke to 6.64 and closed at that figure, with the general market closing steady at net losses of 5 to 6 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of 1 to 3 points in response to relatively easy Liverpool cables. The comparatively small offerings were quite readily absorbed around the opening prices, and the market steadied up during the morning on continued trade buying which was probably coupled with some covering. The market turned easier later, May declining to 6.80 and July to 6.96, making net losses of 5 to 7 points on the active position, with closing quotations within a point of the lowest.

It was the last day of trading in current January contracts, and notices estimated at about 1,500 bales were issued during the morning. This caused some liquidation of January, which, however, seemed to be without much effect on the general market. That delivery, after advancing from 6.59 to 6.65, sold back to the early low point as trading ended at midday.

There was considerable switching from near to late months, but very little change in differences. The week-end figures showing forwardings to mills of 354,000 bales for the week, against 179,000 last year, and exports of 226,000, against 99,000 last year, came in for some bullish comment, but evidently failed to inspire much buying. Further rains were noted in parts of the Western belt which were thought likely to cause a further delay in the movement; and while a slow demand was reported for spot cotton, the basis was said to be firm.

Liverpool cables reported liquidation absorbed by trade calling in that market. Exports today, 17,521, making 4,649,330 so far this season. Port receipts, 47,733; United States port stocks, 4,882,144.

Curb Review

New York, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—The curb market ran into a mild flurry of selling in the late trading today.

Utilities, easy during the earlier dealings, extended their declines in the last hour and other groups accompanied them lower, although net losses for the most part were moderate. Transactions approximated 270,000 shares, somewhat larger than yesterday's turnover. Trading was very dull until the final reaction, when activity picked up.

Electric Bond & Share's loss of ⅝ on the day was exceeded by the declines in American Gas and Commonwealth Edison, but there were milder recessions in United Light "A," American Superpower and St. Regis Paper. Cities Service touched 5⅞ and closed at 6, off ⅛. American Commonwealths Power issues were steady.

Oils were dull, but shared in the general easiness, small losses appearing in Gulf and Indiana. Pioneer gold mines subsided after a brief forenoon spurt. Aluminum of America lost 4½ net and A. O. Smith was down 8¾ in light trading.

Deere, Mead Johnson, National Sugar and Tobacco Products of Delaware were slightly heavy. In the investment trust group, Insull Utility gave up nearly a point.

BOND MARKET SAGS UNDER HEAVY SALES

New York, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Despite some news considered of a mildly constructive character, the bond market had a slight relapse today and the averages closed a fraction of a point lower.

Announcement that New York City's issue of $100,000,000 corporate stock notes had been oversubscribed, together with the voting of a resolution by the Senate at Washington for the investigation of the feasibility of a six-hour day for railway workers, were viewed optimistically. The Senate inquiry, some observers thought, might remove a point of cleavage from the rail wage negotiations.

These developments, however, were not reflected in listed securities. Low-priced rail liens, after displaying a firm undertone during most of the session, gave way in late trading and the average for 20 principal carriers closed seven-tenths of a point lower. Averages for the utilities and industrials also eased fractionally.

Dealers were of the opinion that the selling today was due, at least partly, to profit taking. It was pointed out that some of the carrier mortgages had advanced from 10 to 40 points since their extreme lows of last month. The decline today, however, was not considered of a serious nature. It was noticeable that offerings diminished on the downturn.

United States Government obligations were easy throughout the session, and all except the Treasury 3⅜s closed fractionally lower.

Foreign loans were generally soft, but Argentines registered moderate gains, and in the Japanese list Oriental developments advanced from 1¾ to 3 points. Buenos Aires 6½s were up 5, but Greek Government 7s dropped 8¾ points. German 7s and 5½s exhibited weakness.

Sales totaled $12,504,000.

Western Drought Cost Red Cross $1,000,000

Chicago, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Drought relief in 87 counties of Montana, Nebraska and the Dakotas has already cost the Red Cross $1,000,000 and the peak lies ahead.

James T. Nicholson, manager of the Chicago Red Cross Chapter, said today the drought disaster would necessitate expenditure of $1,500,000 during the winter and spring months, but that no general appeal for funds outside the States affected has been contemplated. Local resources have been supplemented by national Red Cross funds.

TECH FIVE DEFEATS EASTERN, 32-26, TO TIE SERIES

LOSS ENDS 19-GAME WINNING STREAK OF LINCOLN PARK TEAM

Tech Draws Away in Last Quarter of Thrilling Battle.

Business Five Hands Western 4th Set-back, 36-31.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

IN a game which severely tested the very innards of the players, and left 3,500 high school students throat weary, Tech defeated Eastern in the high school series yesterday, 32-26. The victory deadlocked first place in the series, lowering Eastern's undisputed claims, and completed the first half of the schedule. The defeat ended a nineteen-game winning streak of the Lincoln Park five.

Business High moved into a second place tie with Central by displaying fine offensive near the end to beat Western, 36-31.

Few games ever measured up to the occasion in as thrilling a manner as did yesterday's Tech-Eastern game. Seven times did the lead change during the struggle, but Tech, breaking out on top of the score with half of the fourth quarter gone, raced down the stretch with motors wide open, led by the tremendously potent Everett Russell, the greatest money player the high schools have seen in half a decade.

Reichardt Sinks Shot.

Bernie Reichardt, Tech guard, opened more daylight between the teams by rimming in a one-hand shot from the side, and Russell and Wheeler raised the score to 28 to 21 on shots that rolled the young burghers out of the stands and stood them along the side lines issuing nothing more coherent than shrieks.

Russell, playing with three fouls on him for nearly 30 minutes, was directing his team more ably than it perhaps ever has been directed. He was an unstoppable force and virilized his team into a band of shooting, passing and dribbling dervishes before whom Eastern folded up completely. When Wheeler first put Tech in the lead, at 22 to 21, the team abandoned the zone defense and hung like leeches to Eastern's long shooting stars. Ben Zola's field goal, off a good pass from Bayliss, was Eastern's only goal from the floor in the last five minutes and its second for the half.

Tech relieved many of the worries of its supporters at the start by playing Eastern off its feet, jumping into an 8-to-3 lead on Wheeler's fine shooting and holding an 8-to-4 advantage at the half. Lieb, Zola and Waters combined to overhaul Tech at the half, Zola sinking the evening shot from the foul line as the half gun sounded, rearranging the score at 11 to 11.

Russell Puts Tech Ahead.

Russell sank a foul shot at the start of the third quarter, giving Tech a 12-11 lead, and the teams thereafter alternated sensational shots, each to lead by one point. Fred Thomas, mainstay Tech guard, went out of the game as Courtney sank a long shot to give Eastern a lead of 13-12. He was replaced by Carroll Daly, a virtual beginner, who acquitted himself creditably in a tight situation. It was Daly, in fact, who came through with a goal nobody expected of him when Eastern was leading, 21-18, setting the stage for the actual beginning of Tech's great final march.

The work of the centers was markedly good. Bernie Lieb, of Eastern, was in every play and directed his team well. Jim Reed, Tech center, played himself absolutely out, and had to be assisted to the sidelines after a hectic seven-eighths of the game.

Business Stops Western.

If the Tech and Eastern had not played, the spotlight doubtless would have fastened on the game which opened to day's basket ball thrills, Business' victory over Western. Business jumped into an early lead, and held a 9-5 advantage at the first quarter, on general all around shooting. Latona, backed up by good work on the part of Buscher and two newcomers, McPherson and Molyneaux, overhauled Business at the end of the third quarter, 27-26, but Tipton, Shore and Esenstad put Business back on top again with the resumption of the brawl in the fourth quarter, and kept it there in the face of Western's sketchy defensive play.

Everett Buscher and "Sis" Esenstad played their final high school basket ball games, and Milt Jacobson passed out of the series without seeing action. Buscher, Western forward for three years and a notably all-round athlete at the Georgetown school, graduates at the end of the semester, this month.

CITY DUCKPIN STARS FACE LAST TEST

Blakeney Takes 1-Pin Lead Into Campbell Stakes Tonight.

PRECARIOUSLY perched atop the field in the Howard Campbell Sweepstakes with a grand total of 1,277 pins for the first ten games, Ed Blakeney, of Baltimore, will be put to the acid test in the final block of five games to be rolled tonight at Convention Hall. Eight of Washington's crack bowlers, including Johnny Anderson, who is only one pin behind, are camped on Blakeney's trail, ready to slip into the lead should he falter.

If the dope runs true, the fans will see a brilliant duel between the two leaders with the chances about even. Blakeney, after a mediocre 590 score in the first block, established a new five-game record for the tourney with a score of 687 in the second block at Rendezvous last week, jumping from seventeenth to the leadership. On the other hand Anderson rolled two consistent sets of 622 and 654, and if he finishes out the string with a score between the first two, it will go hard on Blakeney.

Paul Harrison Threat.

If the dope fails to follow along these lines the fans are apt to witness a display of bowling pyrotechnics that occur about once in a lifetime. Not too far behind to be overlooked is Paul Harrison, who holds third place by virtue of his 618 and 632 sets, a total of 1,250. Fourth place is held jointly by Bradley Mandley and Earl McPhilomy, who trail Harirson by a single pin. Lodged in fifth position is Louis Pantos, who startled the good folks with a 666 score in the first block. Four pins further down the list are Ollie Pacini, the people's choice, and Maxie Rosenberg. Five pins behind this pair is "Hokie" Smith, in ninth position, and following him is Hugh Walson, with 1,217.

Stars Improved In 2d Block.

Rosenberg, McPhilomy, Walson and Harrison improved in the second block over their performances in the first, and for this reason there are many who believe that they will be even better in the final. Mandley dropped 27 pins the second time out, Pantos, 93; Pacini, 17, and Smith, 48.

Of all contenders, outside of the two leaders, Earl McPhilomy is regarded as having one of the best chances of winning. The Earl is enjoying one of his best seasons on the mapleways and can easily pick up the 28 pins that lie between him and the top.

Bliss Tossers Down Columbus U., 32 to 22

Led by Casassa, former Central High player, the Bliss School basketers last night scored their third successive victory in the Washington Collegiate Conference race by defeating Columbus University, 32-22, on the Silver Spring Armory floor. The winners were forced to perform at their fastest pace in the first quarter, but thereafter Columbus had little to offer in the way of competition. The score at intermission favored Bliss, 20-7.

Burke, Bliss guard, topped the individual scorers, amassing a total of 11 points.

Dempsey Provided More Sports Thrills Than Any Other Individual, Vote Tells

(This is the last of a series of stories reviewing the results of the Associated Press sports editors' poll of newspaper opinion on topics of national interest. It answers the query: "What were the three most thrilling sports events you ever witnessed or covered?")

By ALAN GOULD.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Taken by and large, college football has furnished more thrills than any other sport for the experts who peer intently from the Nation's press coops. But the individual, who has given them by far the most spine-tingling sensations, is none other than your old friend, William Harrison (Jack) Dempsey.

Of the total of 62 boxing events, recalled by the experts as among their most exciting experiences, 43 involve Dempsey. In the Associated Press poll, Dempsey's spectacular brawl with Luis Angel Firpo at the Polo Grounds, 1923, and his fight with Tunney at Chicago, 1927, are tied, receiving 17 votes each as the most exciting events in memory. The Willard, Carpentier and first Tunney fights also are mentioned.

Other Feats Fade By Comparison.

By comparison, even the golfing feats of Bobby Jones, the tennis triumphs of Bill Tilden, the foot-racing exploits of Paavo Nurmi, the world series feats of Walter Johnson, Grover Alexander and Pepper Martin, as well as the football thrills supplied by Red Grange fade into the background.

Football's thrills top the list as a whole, showing an aggregate of 79 votes in a wide range of coverage.

JACK DEMPSEY.

Boxing's total of 62 is next and baseball is third with 51.

Golf furnished the most thrills for 20 experts, track and field 11, basket ball and horse-racing each 7. Tennis receives five ballots, mainly from those who watched Tilden in his epic duels with little Bill Johnston. Rowing supplied the most excitement for three others, wrestling two, swimming and polo one each.

Notre Dame-Trojan Game Popular.

The Notre Dame-Southern California football game of 1931 gets more votes than any other gridiron thrill producer, with a total of 18. Army-Navy classics, featuring the 21-21 tie in 1926, received 8 votes; the Stanford-California game of 1924 and the Michigan-Illinois game the same year, in which Red Grange ran wild, 4 each.

Grange's exploits against Pennsylvania as well as Michigan were most exciting to seven experts. Two others recall Roy Riegel's famous backward run in the 1929 Rose Bowl game between Georgia Tech and California.

Thrills in the world series of baseball are recalled by 42 observers whose memories range all the way from Eddie Plank's victory over Christy Mathewson in the final game of 1913 to Pepper Martin's sensational work for the Cardinals in 1931.

1929 World Series Most Exciting.

On the basis of the voting the 1929 series was the most exciting, receiving 13 ballots. Its high spots were Howard Ehmke's great pitching comeback for the Athletics against the Cubs and the ten-run rally of the A's in the fifth game.

The next most thrilling series was that of 1931, with 7 votes. Six others named 1926.

Two veterans turn back the baseball pages nearly a quarter century to recall, among their greatest thrills, the 1908 play-off between the Giants and Cubs for the National League pennant, and, in 1909, the unassisted triple play pulled by Neal Ball, of Cleveland, against the Red Sox.

Out of the past, too, in golf is plucked Francis Ouimet's National Open victory in 1913 in the play-off with Vardon and Ray to rank with various of Bobby Jones' achievements and a dazzling eighteen-hole round once shot by Johnny Farrell in 63 strokes.

GULDAHL'S 67 IS BEST IN ARIZONA

5 Others Break Par in $2,500 Open; Tie for Second.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Playing by far the best round of golf the San Marcos course has ever known, Ralph Guldahl, youthful Detroit professional, shot a 67, five under par, to lead after the first round of the Arizona $2,500 open tournament today.

He was one of more than half a dozen entrants to shatter the courses's standard figure, 72, and had two birdies on the out nine for a 34, two under, and four on the home stretch to take a 33.

Tied for second place, two strokes behind but still three blows to the good over par, came Joe Ezar, young St. Louis pro; Frank Walsh, of Chicago, and Craig Wood, of Hollywood, N. J., one of the game's longest drivers, all with cards of 34, 35—69.

Sarazen in Seventh Place Tie.

Finishing in seventh place in the quest of the $600 first prize money to be paid after Sunday's final 36 holes, were Gene Sarazen, New York veteran campaigner; Wiffy Cox, Brooklyn, winner of the San Francisco open, and Oren Love, 17-year-old caddie, of Phoenix, with 71s.

More than 100 starters were in the field.

Guldahl's best shots were made on the finish of the round. He was on the short thirteenth in 1 and dropped his long putt for a birdie 2; the par 4 sixteenth was negotiated in 3, and the long par 5s on the fag end of the journey were burned up with 4s.

Upsets Mark Play In 3-Cushion Event

Chicago, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Young Bud Westhus, former St. Louis University football player, today contributed the biggest upset of the world three-cushion billiards championship tournament and reduced the field of undefeated entrants to three, by defeating Johnny Layton, of Sedalia, Mo.

The St. Louis youngster and the Sedalia veteran battled through 82 innings, the longest championship match since 1920, before Westhus gained a 50 to 46 decision. Layton, previously undefeated, had a 40 to 28 lead at the end of 56 innings, but lost his touch and made only 6 points in the next 26 innings, while Westhus gained confidence.

Another upset of sorts was scored by Len Kenney, a Chicago youngster, who turned back Allen Hall, of Chicago, runner-up to Arthhur Thurnblad for the 1931 championship, 50 to 38, in 54 innings. Kenney's triumph followed his surprising victory over young Jake Schaefer of San Francisco last night.

Otto Reiselt, of Philadelphia, kept his record clear by defeating Tiff Denton, of Kansas City, 50 to 47 in 69 innings.

Schmeling Is Sued for $100,000 By Carnera for Failure to Fight

NEW YORK, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Primo Carnera, Italian heavyweight, today filed in State Supreme Court a $100,000 damage suit against Max Schmeling, heavyweight champion boxer, over their failure to engage in a match Carnera said was agreed more than a year ago would be staged between them under the auspices of the Madison Square Garden Corporation of Illinois.

Through his attorney, Carnera claimed that the agreement was entered into on January 13, 1931, and that, as a further part of the agreement, it was decided on July 8, 1931, that the match would be staged early in the fall of 1931, not later than September 30.

Carnera claimed that he lost many benefits that would have come to him through the fight and that he went to some expense in training for the fight.

Three More Nats Sign Up for 1932

Fischer, Bolton and Gharrity Swing Into Line for Coming Season.

Three more Nationals swung into line for 1932 yesterday, making ten who have returned their signed contracts to President Clark Griffith. The papers, with John Hancocks properly affixed on the dotted lines, which came in yesterday's mail were from Pitcher Carl Fischer, promising young southpaw, Catcher Cliff Bolton and Catcher-Coach Ed (Patsy) Gharrity.

The most important of these, of course, is that of Fischer. This young flinger was almost sent away from the Biloxi training base last spring because of his poor showing, but he suddenly began showing form and, along with Lloyd Brown, practically carried the Nats during the early days of last season. He needs but little more improvement and experience to make him one of the dependables of the staff.

Bolton, too, is considered a player of promise, especially because of his natural ability as a hitter. Gharrity taught the youngster a lot last spring and is expected to take the youngster under his wing again next month. Unless the Nats are successful in picking up an experienced backstopper, Bolton will be Roy Spencer's only understudy during the coming season, although Gharrity, nominally a coach, could fill in if necessary.

Malone Accepts Cut And Signs With Cubs

Sandusky, Ohio, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Pat Malone, Chicago Cubs pitcher, will not be among ballplayers contesting lower pay.

Malone today announced he has signed and returned his 1932 contract. "I took a cut," he said. "We all did. But I am satisfied."

Healy Will Nominate Top Flight for Derby

Miami, Fla., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—C. V. Whitney's Top Flight, leading 2-year-old and money winner of 1931, will be nominated for the Kentucky Derby, Trainer Tom Healy said today.

Healy would not venture an opinion, however, as to whether the filly would start in the $50,000 race at Churchill Downs May 7. He will return to Red Bank, N. J., next week to take active charge of Top Flight and the remainder of Whitney's runners, quartered at the Brockdale Farm.

The entry of Top Flight in the $50,000 Preakness, which will be run May 14 at Pimlico, was announced several days ago.

LOTT BEATEN BY HALL IN CANADA

Chicagoan Troubled by Leg Injury; Bell Other Finalist.

MONTREAL, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—J. Gilbert Hall, veteran tennis star from South Orange, N. J., and Berkeley Bell, former Texan, who now lives in New York, will meet tomorrow in an All-United States final for the Canadian covered court tennis championship.

Hall today scored the major upset of the tournament when he defeated George M. Lott, jr., of Chicago, Davis Cup player and four times holder of the Canadian indoor title in a five-set semifinal. The scores were 12—10, 2—6, 6—3, 3—6, 6—3. Bell defeated Marcel Rainville, of Montreal, top seeded Canadian player, 6—3, 3—6, 9—7, 6—1.

Lott was troubled all through today's match by an injured knee, which kept him from displaying his best court-covering ability, but despite the injury he was in the running right up to the finish. Lott's knee was injured before the tournament began and has given him trouble during his preliminary matches, but up to today he had not met any opposition that he could not overcome even when playing under a handicap. In three preliminary matches he lost only one set.

Bell's terrific drives and aggressive, hard-hitting attack were too much for little Rainville in the second semi-final although the Montreal star played his usual steady game. Rainville weakened rapidly after losing the deuced third set.

Dempsey and Levinsky May Meet in Chicago

Chicago, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Jack Dempsey will make his appearance in a Chicago ring February 18, for the first time since his famous 14-count battle with Gene Tunney, four years ago.

The Manassa mauler was signed today for a four-round exhibition in the Chicago Stadium with the probability that King Levinsky will be his opponent, provided the kingfish will accept the financial inducements. Levinsky, with recent victories over Tommy Loughran and Paolino Uzcudun, is the man Dempsey wants to meet.

Dempsey, regarded as a ring idol in Chicago, figures to draw one of the biggest crowds that ever witnessed a boxing show in the stadium. And, so far as known, Dave Barry will not be the referee.

Registration Limit Nears For D. C. Basket Ball Teams

ONLY nine days remain for the players in the 130-pound, 145-pound and unlimited classes of the A. A. U. to register in order to be eligible for the mammoth District championship tournament to be staged in the big Tech High School gym under the auspices of The Post. The tournament will not begin until March 1, but because of the large number of boys entered it is necessary that those in the three larger classes be registered by February 1.

Registration blanks may be procured at the Boys' Club or at the Sports Department of The Post. They should be filled out and returned to Charles M. Fyfe, chairman of the registration committee, at the Boys' Club immediately.

Managers of teams in these three classes are also reminded that it will be necessary for them to use all of their players in at least two games before this date if they have not done so already. Failure to do this may result in the barring of certain players from the tournament.

Competition this year promises to be keener than it has been for several years. The history of past tournaments shows that the favorite teams have rough roads to travel. The records of previous tournaments contain the story of the downfall of various pretournament favorites who fell before inspired weaker teams.

Players in the 100-pound, 115-pound and women's classes must be registered before February 23, and must have played in one game with their team before that date. Entries for teams in all classes will close at midnight, February 23, at The Post Sports Department.

SCHMELING-SHARKEY SIGN FOR JUNE BOUT AFTER LONG PARLEY

By HENRY M'LEMORE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22 (U.P.).—With enough cameramen to photograph the whole of Australia in attendance, Max Schmeling, heavyweight champion of the world, and Jack Sharkey, the bad sailor man from Boston, today signed contracts calling for them to meet in a 15-round title bout sometime in June, somewhere in New York.

The formal signing ceremony was preceded by one of the most magnificent conferences of all time. Sharply at 9:30 p. m. tonight, Jimmy Johnston, general manager of Madison Square Garden; Schmeling's manager, Joe Jacobs; Sharkey, his managera, Johnny Buckley and Jack Conway, and enough lawyers to outfit a supreme court, strode into Johnston's office and the doors were locked.

Then the boys took off their coats and went at it. Outside in a smoky anteroom huddled the gentlemen of the press. Off and on, at hour intervals say, one of the gentlemen engaged in the conference would come out for air.

This sort of thing went on until Johnston stuck his head out of the door and said, "Come in, boys. I have something to give you."

Schmeling, or rather Jacobs, representing the champion, who was at his hotel busily engaged in packing for his departure on the Europa tonight, made a similar promise, only he didn't make his in writing.

Jacobs-Sharkey Almost Come To Blows.

Between the time the conference adjourned and the contracts were signed, both parties repaired to a quiet place to study the papers.

This deep study was necessitated, Johnston said, because of the clause involving moving picture and radio rights. Apparently this problem was worked out to everybody's satisfaction.

Johnston also revealed that Jacobs and Sharkey came close to physical combat at one point in the meeting. During the discussion of terms, Jacobs told Sharkey that unless his memory was up to some tricks, he recalled the sailor saying he'd fight for nothing, just for another chance at Schmeling.

"Being as you said that, Jack," Jacobs said, "we'll just take your 12½ per cent, too."

"Where did you see any such statement by me?" asked Sharkey.

"In the papers," came back Jacobs.

"Well, Joe," Sharkey replied, "ain't you old enough not to believe all you read in the papers?"

One thing led to another, and soon the gentlemen were calling each other "liar." Jacobs refused to fight on the grounds that he had heard it said—where he couldn't remember—that Sharkey was a pretty fair sort of fighter. This well-turned bit of sarcasm was missed by Sharkey, he accepting it as an apology.

Lewis and Sandow End Long Alliance

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—A rumor of the severance of the 20-year-old partnership between Ed "Strangler" Lewis and his manager, Billy Sandow, was confirmed today by Sandow, who is visiting his mother here.

Sandow refused to discuss the reason for the break, but it was rumored that Lewis had been offered $50,000 to join the Curley sporting interests in New York.

Lewis was discovered by Sandow while he was working his way through the University of Kentucky and acting as assistant wrestling coach.

Charity Will Benefit $299,278 From Army-Navy Football Game

WEST POINT, N. Y., Jan. 22 (A. P.).—Net receipts of the Army-Navy football game for the benefit of the unemployed played in New York City December 12, were $299,278.42. Maj. Philip B. Fleming, graduate manager of athletics at the Military Academy, announced today. The money was divided equally between the two service schools.

Maj. Gen. William R. Smith gave $100,000 of Army's total to the New York City unemployment fund, $30,000 to the Army Relief Society, which provides for needy widows and orphans of Regular Army men, and the remainder to West Point unemployment relief.

Gross receipts were $363,595.40. The costs of the game included transportation of the Midshipmen and the Cadets to Yankee Stadium from West

RAN STOPPED IN 6TH BY PETROLLE

Veteran Ends Bout Suddenly After Hard Beating.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

After flooring the youngster three times in the first round, Billy eased up for a moment and the first thing he knew Ran was bursting right-hand bombshells on his chin and driving a crowd of 17,000, almost a capacity turnout, into frenzies of excitement.

Petrolle Dizzy From Punches to Head.

He nailed Billy flush on the chin in the second, and the Fargo, N. Dak., veteran, a grizzled, black-browed warrior, almost lost his footing. Again in the third, Ran kept flinging his right straight into Petrolle's jaw. Seven times the hawk-faced youngster whaled Billy on the head and Petrolle was dizzy and shaken and he wobbled to his corner.

They fought each other to the point of exhaustion, first one, then the other, reeling as Ran found Petrolle's chin repeatedly with his right and Billy, forcing the fight every inch of the way, doubled the youngster repeatedly with left-hand smashes to the stomach.

Three times in the fifth Ran caught the veteran, staggering him with terrific crosses. But he couldn't floor the ancient one. Steadily Petrolle bore Eddie down. Thudding short left hooks to his ribs, but taking fearful head punishment to do so.

Finishing Punch Is Sudden.

Out of a clear sky in the sixth, after 1 minute 58 seconds of fighting, Petrolle suddenly lifted a right-hand punch from his heels and laid it with all the power of outraged superiority on the chin of the young upstart. Ran crumpled and he crumpled to the floor, wearily shaking his head as Referee Patsy Haley counted him out.

Florida East Coast Golf Title to Tom Goodwin

St. Augustine, Fla., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Tommy Goodwin, Monroe (N. Y.) youth, today won the annual Florida East Coast men's golf championship, defeating E. G. Livesay, 45-year-old Columbus (Ohio) southpaw, 2 and 1, in the eighteen-hole final.

Oregon State Eleven Plays Fordham in '33

Corvallis, Oreg., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—A football game with Fordham University, to be played in New York, November 18, 1933, was announced here today by Carl Lodell, graduate manager of Oregon State College. A game with the Rams on the Polo Grounds, in New York City, previously has been scheduled for this fall.

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

BASKETBALL attendance records fell in Washington this week when more than 6,000 fans saw college games on two successive nights. The Maryland-Navy crowd of 5,000 constituted a new individual game record while more than 1,000 were able to jam themselves into the George Washington band box for the Duquesne contest Thursday night.

The New York Celtics and Palace Pros, playing an American League game at the Arcadia in 1926, drew 3,000 paid admissions, which was the former record.

Coach Jim Pixlee, of George Washington, who hails from Missouri, hot bed of basket ball and scene of the national A. A. U. tournaments, declares that Washington is potentially one of the greatest basket ball cities in the country.

Pixlee attributes the encouraging indications here to the fact that five major college teams operate in this section in addition to the score of scholastic quintets and hundreds of independent amateur teams.

Basket ball in Washington took several long strides forward during the two years that the city was represented by the Palace Pros in the American Professional Basket Ball League.

The city's youths had ample opportunity to observe in action such renowned teams as the New York Celtics, Fort Wayne Hoosiers, Cleveland Rosenblums, Rochester Centrals, Chicago Bruins and Brooklyn Visitations.

Lack of facilities in Washington has been offset somewhat by the availability of the Tech High gymnasium, which has housed the Georgetown University home games for the past two years.

George Washington, however, with a seating capacity of only 700, is able to take care of only one-tenth of its student body of 7,000 in a year in which basket ball spirit and enthusiasm among the Colonials has reached an unprecedented height.

◆

So intense was the interest at the G. W.-Duquesne game of Thursday night that approximately 150 of the 400 who were refused admission were content to mill about the entrance and listen to the play-by-play broadcast by one of the students who was lucky enough to gain admittance and took up a post near the door that enabled him to watch the game and transmit its progress to the crowd outside.

◆

George Washington can anticipate a warm reception when the return game with Duquesne is played at Pittsburgh on February 15, according to one of the Duquesne coaches, who might not have been so loquacious or so vitriolic had he known that his listener was a member of the George Washington coaching staff.

◆

A pleasing commentary on the power of the basket ball team at the University of Maryland is noted with the presence of two sophomores on the squad who were able to oust from the line-up two members of the team which carried the Terrapins to the Southern Conference championship last season.

Bucky Buscher, former Western High star, has supplanted Charley May at guard, his height giving him a tremendous advantage over May, who was an important cog in the Maryland machine last year. Rufus Vincent, a landmark in basket ball at Hyattsville before his college days, has outstripped Jack Norris, former regular, in the battle for the center position.

The basket ball court in Maryland's new Ritchie Coliseum is generally accepted to be the ideal size in college ranks. It measures 89 feet by 45 feet, the regulation size being 94 feet by 50 feet, which, in the opinion of most coaches, is too large for the present-day game. It is estimated that not 10 per cent of the college courts are of regulation size.

◆

Four successive defeats for the Georgetown team under Freddy Mesmer is hardly a reflection on the power of the Hilltop quintet. The consecutive losses were suffered at the hands of the Crescent Club of Brooklyn, New York U., St. Johns' of Brooklyn, and Duquesne, all of which are reckoned among the leaders in Eastern basket ball ranks.

◆

There appears no surcease for Georgetown this week with Temple University of Philadelphia, scheduled to be met tonight in Philadelphia. Temple assumed ranking position in the East recently by beating City College of New York, coached by Nat Holman, of the Celtics, and a perennial leader in basket ball in the metropolitan section.

◆

The crowning event of the basket ball season in Washington will be the District of Columbia A. A. U. championships, staged by The Post for the past five years, which start on March 1 at Tech High School. More than 100 teams annually compete for the various titles in five weight classes.

MERIDIAN QUEEN ONE OF FIVE CHOICES TO COP AT HIALEAH

John F. Loses In Duel in Feature

Is Half Length Back at Finish With The Heathen Third.

HIALEAH PARK, Fla., Jan. 22 (A. P.).—C. H. Miller's Meridian Queen, an improving 6-year-old mare, flashed a high-class effort to win the Suwanee River Claiming Handicap, 7-furlong feature, before another large crowd here today. The daughter of Meridian stood a long, hard drive gamely to score by a half length over John F., while the latter was a length before The Heathen. Meridian Queen was the third of five straight choices to register and paid $4.40. She covered the distance in 1:24 3-5.

Peto, which has shown disappointing form in his Florida efforts, pulled up lame. He forced the early pace cut out by The Heathen, but dropped entirely out of contention at the head of the stretch. The Heathen was a half length in the van around the bend, but Meridian Queen turned on full steam after straightening out and, after wearing down the pacemaker, withstood a strong challenge from John F., a Havana performer, in the drive to the wire.

Sunfire, the fourth horse, might have won the whole pot under more judicious handling from Jockey Garner. The horse, a trailer half way home, rushed up very fast around the bend and was running over the leaders through the final furlong, but was on the inside in a pocket and unable to run freely.

Click Cops Jefferson Feature.

Jefferson Park, New Orleans, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Click, a consistent winner over the small-time tracks last season, made his initial start over the winter turf today and won the Charlie Trimble purse of 6 furlongs for the Carleton Stable. It was Click's first race since failing to win at Laurel, following a successful season at Thistledown and Bainbridge Park.

J. Hernandez again was in the saddle and he sent the 6-year-old son of High Time over the six panels in 1:12 3-5 to beat A. Pelleteri's Fiddler by two lengths. John Goff's Minesweeper was third, while back among the also rans were Frank Seremba's Nyack, E. R. Bradley's highly regarded B'ar Hunter and J. J. Coughlin's Who Win.

Buddy Ensor Rides Two Havana Winners.

Havana, Cuba, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—The Pinetree Stable, with the aid of Lavelle ("Buddy") Ensor, dominated the program at Oriental Park today.

With Ensor again riding in great form, two horses from the stable showed the way past the judges' stand. Newsreel, rated as the best juvenile at the track, hung up his second consecutive victory after finishing second the first time out. Broken Stone, which ran second in his three starts over the Cuban racing strip, accounted for the 6-furlong feature in the good time of 1:12 3-5. Previous to his Havana debut, Broken Stone had finished second and third in his two 1931 races.

In addition to winning with the Pinetree horses, Ensor was second with C. Troutt's Herb Ashby in the sixth race. Both of his winning mounts were well backed, Newsreel paying 8 to 5, and Broken Stone 2 to 1.

GIANTS SIGN HOGAN.

New York, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—The Giants' contract troubles were further reduced today with the signing of Frank Hogan, first string catcher. Hogan, like most of the Giants, was offered a salary cut. He has been in the city several days conferring with Secretary Jim Tierney.

She ran straight the entire trip. ROYAL PURCHASE met with no mishaps. EDITH A. and JESEMOLA, fractious at the barrier, were taken to the extreme outside and broke from the outside of stalls.

DON TASKER, carried very wide at top of home stretch, finished full of courage. WESTY'S FOX broke slowly. PRINCE DALE slipped through next the rail at top of home stretch. BANKER SAM showed flash of early speed. He was eased up when he tired. BILL SOUTHAM was hustled along from the start.

SINGLE STAR, slow to begin, was outrun for the first quarter, slipped through next the inside rail rounding the far turn and went to the front at top of home stretch. She drew away last furlong. MEMORIES DEAR, showing good turn of speed, had lot taken out of her racing PRIORESS into submission. She bore out at top of home stretch and carried PRIORESS out with her. KENSINGTON saved ground at stretch turn. HAZEL GUMBERTS finished strong on the outside.

FIFTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $1,500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:24. Off at 4:28. Winner, C. H. Miller's b. m. MERIDIAN QUEEN, a keen factor from the start, moved up in resolute fashion entering home stretch and outlasted JOHN F. in final drive. Latter hung after getting to the leaders at furlong pole. THE HEATHEN, sore going to the post, showed lot of early speed, but weakened when put to a drive. SUNFIRE, a trailer in early stages, closed a big gap and was closing full of run when Garner raced him into a blind switch and had to snatch up a sixteenth from the finish. PETO pulled up very lame.

SIXTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $1,000, claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:59½. Off at 5:03. Winner, Rudolph Spreckles' b. h. Two-dollar mutuels paid—JACK CAMPBELL, $7.40, $3.90, $4.00; KNOWLTON, $8.60, $5.40; CLEAN PLAY, $15.10.

JACK CAMPBELL was taken back and rated off the leaders. Kelsay swung to outside entering home stretch and JACK CAMPBELL responded full of courage in final drive. KNOWLTON had lot taken out of him racing WAR SAINT into submission. He hung right at end. CLEAN PLAY finished very strong and was gaining on the leaders at every stride. WAR SAINT quit last sixteenth. BREEZING THRU pulled up lame.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 5:28. Off at 5:29. Winner, Mrs. Grace Denny's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SPANFAIR, $3.50, $2.50, $2.20; DISCOBOLUS, $4.10, $2.50; MAKE SPEED, $3.00.

SPANFAIR was much the best. He was in close quarters in run for positions, tried to go through on inside at far turn and was blocked, closed fast on outside of leaders and wore down DISCOBOLUS in final stages to win going away. DISCOBOLUS raced forwardly from the start, shook off MAKE SPEED in stretch, but could not withstand winner's closing bid. MAKE SPEED had plenty of speed, but faltered in final furlong. FLYING BOY closed some ground in last furlong.

Boots and Saddle's
(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)
—Hialeah Selections—
By J. B. SNODGRASS

HIALEAH PARK, Miami, Fla., Jan. 22.—Hialeah Park offers its first stake tomorrow, the Miami Beach Handicap, $2,500 added, at one mile. Eighteen horses have been listed for this fixture, but as several appear on the entry list of other races, several scratches will be in order, especially among those which find a shorter route to their advantage.

FLYING HEELS is to top weight with 126 pounds and, as he seems to be the champion among the handicap horses at Hialeah, he is selected to win. He can go a mile and the impost is not unusual for him. LADY BROADCAST, which won her only start here in a canter, has up 117 pounds. She made her first start since last June on January 16, and won in 1.37 4-5.

FLYING HEEL'S inaugural handicap was won at 6 furlongs in 1:11 2-5. It appears he should repeat, with LADY BROADCAST, the contender, which, however, adds on nine pounds. DON LEON, second in the Inaugural, should be as good as third. It is probable that JUDGE SCHILLING and MABLA will start in the fourth race instead of in the feature.

FIRST RACE — RABBLE should make it three straight. Nothing in this race is better than he vanquished in his last two starts. SLASH, third to RABBLE last out, is rated the contender. ELPUMA can do better than recent races show and should hold the others safe.

SECOND RACE — CHILTENNY is chosen to win, but the second is regarded as almost an even guess, for WISE ANNE, winner last out, is good, but her last race was in the mud. LUCILLE K should best BILLIE'S ORPHAN for third money.

THIRD RACE—WORKLESS should win. He came from far back to finish fifth to Tack Thursday, and he can improve on that effort. LION HEARTED will be the contender and may land the place. TANCRED has a chance in this field on Maryland form.

FOURTH RACE—This secondary feature looks like a duel between HELIANTHUS and JUDGE SCHILLING, if the latter chooses to start in this sprint, at his own distance, instead of the headliner. HELIANTHUS showed real class at Bowie. ULUNIU, winner last out, should beat the others for third.

SIXTH RACE—DR. SYNTAX, showing a return to good form by winning his last start, looks best at the weights. He will have the fast FREDERICK to beat, and is in receipt of 6 pounds as an aid. REGULA BADDUN, winner over a strong field last out, is expected to take third from PLAYFOLE.

SEVENTH RACE — BATTLING ON has a good chance. SUN MASK, in best form, will be chief contender FAIR BILL likes the route and will be a dangerous factor. BATTLING ON'S winning race at Tropical Park, if repeated, will win this one.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

CHANG and Eng, the original "Siamese twins," were born in Siam, but they were mostly of Chinese blood. Their father and their mother's father were both Chinese. Born at Maklong, 60 miles from Bangkok, in 1811, they were part of a family of 14, which included several twins.

Because he believed they were possessed of evil spirits, the King of Siam wanted to have the twins put to death, but was finally persuaded to spare them. In 1829 they were taken to Boston, where they created much interest. Two months later, they visited England, and eventually all the principal cities of Europe. Returning to America, they adopted the name of Bunker, and settled down as farmers in North Carolina.

At the age of 44, the twins married two English sisters, 26 and 28 years of age. Domestic troubles soon compelled them to keep their wives in houses a mile and a half apart. They visited each wife for 3 days at a time, that wife's husband being the boss for that period.

The twins were five feet two inches tall, and weighed 180 pounds. The band that united them was remarkably strong, and with it one could lift the other without pain.

In 1869, Chang and Eng again visited Europe. It was said that they were seeking advice of eminent surgeons as to the advisability of being separated. If such was the case, they decided against it, and again returned to America.

They were never known to have had a serious quarrel, and lived together with their wives and 22 children until 1874, when they were 63 years old. One morning Eng was unable to awaken his brother and a son discovered that he had died. Eng then expressed the wish to go also, and two hours later, he died.

Vics Add Big Center For Game Tomorrow

A new center, Jim Hayes, who hails from the wide open spaces of Texas and stands 6 feet 5 inches in his socks, will be in the line-up for Vic's Sport Shop when the local quintet meets the Parksburg, Pa., team, Sunday at 3 p. m. in the Silver Spring gymnasium. Hayes worked out with the team during the past week and readily fell in line with the style of play employed by Dave Keppel's charges.

A preliminary game, featuring the Census and Fort Myer teams, has been aranged for 2 p. m. The teams are undefeated in the Government League, and Sunday's game will not only settle the leadership, but will also have an important bearing on the future stages of the race.

EPISCOPAL JUNIORS WIN.

'FIVES' LOSE TO CENTRAL TOSSERS

Burke Gets 30 Points as Charlottesville Five Bows, 59-22.

BILLY BURKE, forward for Central High, scored more points for Central yesterday than the entire Charlottesville Fives Team was able to, and the Blue and White consequently had little trouble disposing of the visiting Virginians by a count of 59-to-22. Burke found the middle of the rim 15 times from the floor.

Central was off to a lead and never headed. Coach Bert Coggins withdrew the first team at the end of the half, when they led 33-14, and supplanted them with reserve material, where held its own against the Five's combination. The welter of the Fives' scoring came from Roberts and Little, forwards.

Central's first combination of Burke, Smith, Keyser, Swift and Nau played the fourth quarter and showed some of its greatest power of the year in turning back the high touted Virginia crew.

TEST ON MAT LISTED FOR PINETZKI

Giant Pole to Meet Freeman Thursday in Feature.

LEO PINETZKI, the most mammoth man in sports, heads next week's wrestling show at the Washington Auditorium, it was announced yesterday by matchmaker Joe Turner, who has pitted the gigantic Pole against Herbie Freeman, perhaps the most seasoned grappler the North Pole has met since being imported to this country.

Pinetzki created a young sensation here two weeks ago, when he made his initial appearance here against Don DeLaun, a 220-pound husky, whom the 285-pound 6-foot-8 Goliath handled like a toy before sitting on him after two and one half minutes of milling.

Szabo Matched With MacDougal.

The secondary feature Thursday night mates Sandor Szabo, perhaps the most popular wrestler appearing here, and Scotty MacDougal, who has never shown here but who is rated highly in Baltimore, where he met Jim Londos not long ago. Both features will be finish affairs.

Many local fans are expected to travel to Baltimore next Tuesday night to see Jim Londos defend that crown of his against Ray Steele, the first time this perennial tableau has been enacted south of New York. The two hefties drew a $100,000 gate in their Milk Fund affair last summer.

D. C. School Fives In Four Games Today

Western High, victims yesterday of its fourth consecutive high school series loss, meets stern competition today in the Navy Plebes at Annapolis. It is the feature of four games involving high school fives.

The local games will be a tussle between Gonzaga and the George Washington University Freshmen, at G. W.; St. Alban's entertainment of the fast young Camp Chesapeake five, and Devitt's tilt with the Catholic University freshmen.

G. U. Preps Smother Rockville High Five

Holding its opponent to a pair of field goals, Georgetown Prep School defeated Rockville High School by a score of 39-7 in a dull, uninteresting game played at Rockville yesterday. It was the Prepmen's ninth victory in eleven games.

Lawson Due Real Battle By Strickler on Tuesday

District Boy Out to Avenge "Home-Town" Decision Lost to Lawson in Alexandria Ring Next Week.

By JACK ESPEY.

BOB LAWSON, the cocky kid from Newport News, who joked with the crowd while pounding Billy Schwartz into submission last week, will find no willing subject for similar treatment when he faces Billy Strickler next Tuesday night in one of the four eight-round bouts on the Day Nursery's all-star card at Portner's Arena. None other than Strickler, who has had dealings before with Lawson, is authority for this statement, and Billy goes further to predict that he will whip the cocky Virginia light-heavyweight.

Strickler, who has not fought since July, when he dropped a decision to Reds Barry at Fort Washington after giving away 20 pounds, has been training diligently for the past month in Mann's Gym. He finished a strenuous workout yesterday in a talkative mood and unburdened himself of a few thoughts, not in the least respectful, of his next foe.

Lawson Likes to Make Foes Look Bad.

"This Lawson likes to make a fellow look bad, once he gets out in front," stated Strickler, "but I am going to see that he doesn't get out there against me. I know him and his style of fighting, and I am sure I can handle him, even though he did win a decision over me last summer in his home town.

"Lawson won the decision after I had put him down for nine in the third round. It was a home-town decision and nothing more. He didn't hurt me, didn't even give me a scratch, and if it hadn't been for the bell saving him on that knockdown, I would have won.

"I realize that Lawson is a good boxer but I can outpunch him and outlast him. I intend to give him so much trouble with my own attack that he won't have any time to clown like he did against Schwartz. If he just wants to fight, that's all to my advantage. I was glad the promoters gave me this chance to meet him again."

Strickler Impressive In Workout.

Strickler was impressive in yesterday's workout. He boxed four rounds with Jimmy (Sailor) McKenna, and one round each with Jesse Belt and Jack Perry. After this he skipped rope for four rounds and banged the big bag for two. In addition he went through the boxer's routine exercise.

The management announced that Charlie Short will return as referee and sole judge next Tuesday. In addition to the Lawson-Strickler clash, Short will officiate the following bouts: Nick Antonelli vs. Kid Cosden, featherweights; Tommy Bashara vs. Charley Gomer, lightweights; Stumpy Jacobs vs. Bobby Burns, lightweights, and Bingo Brodie vs. Young Perry, middleweights. All but the last mentioned are scheduled for eight rounds. Brodie and Perry are down for four.

Hitting the Head Pin

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON

THE second annual Suburban Sweepstakes will open Saturday, January 30, with the rolling of the first block of five games at the Bethesda alleys. The second block will be contested a week later at College Park and the final five games will be rolled at Clarendon.

The event is open to all residents of Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties, Md., and Alexandria and Arlington County, Va., and members of leagues in this jurisdiction and Georgetown who have rolled in such leagues prior to January 1. Prizes will be awarded the four men with the highest pinfall for the fifteen games, and also to the contestants rolling high game and set on each of the three nights. Contestants are eligible to receive only one prize. K. A. Gaither, Ray Huffman, Milton Crutchley and Tom Belt are in charge of arrangements.

D. C. Butcher's boys assumed the lead in the second half of the Building Contractors League by winning all three from Moyer at Arcadia. George Honey's 401 set was the big score of the evening. Minte Paint juggled the bottles for a game of 614 and set of 1,705, but had to be satisfied with a 2-1 victory over Southern Asbestos. Todd and Standard Art Marble took the decisive games from Massapomax Sand and George Fuller, but A. W. Lee went them one better with a clean sweep victory over Fuller Stone Plant. Evans finished one up on Smoot and Rosslyn Steel defeated Heffron, 2-1. "Whitey" Rader helped the Todd crew along with his game of 148.

Manor and Chevy Chase whitewashed Congressional and Argyle, and Columbia took the odd game from Beaver Dam in the Golf Club's loop at Silver Spring. Beaver Dam lost despite its game of 575 and total of 1,595, both high for the evening. Gus Frailey is seriously considering the abandonment of golf in favor of bowling after rolling a game of 135 and set of 365 for Chevy Chase.

A trio of National Capital League matches were rolled at Lucky Strike and two resulted in clean sweeps for the winners, while Temple was able to win only two games from Young and Simon. Farnan's Bowling Shoes, with games of 592, 558, and 562, lost all three to Lucky Strike, which team rolled games of 645, 612, and 595. Frank Mischou was high for the Shoemen, with a game of 155, and Al Fisher's 419 set, and Earl McPhilomy's 145 game and 402 set topped the home gang.

Barnes Used Autos put Judd and Detweiler under the hay with games of 631, 618, and 555. Cox had a game of 131 and set of 362 for the Printers, and Shanklin, a gas-buggy salesman, mauled the maples for a game of 151 and set of 427, highest of the night. Chester Bild's 142 game and 379 set was best for Temple.

Another "Steve" Brodie became prominent last night, only this time the gentleman confined his activities to bowling, and not to jumping off bridges. The Limon team, of the Jewelers' loop benefited by Brodie's 354 set, winning all three from Gault No. 2. May, of Steiner-Baum, helped out with a game of 143 as Pearson-Crain was turned back by one game. In the other matches Blustein, Jewel Shop, and Heller Plating won odd-game decisions over Art Metal Works, R. Harris No. 2 and Castleburgs. Goldsmith and Pirrone white-washed A. Kahn and R. Harris. Steiner-Baum's 552 game and Pirrone's 1,582 set were high.

Moreland's set and Plugger's 130 game took the cash in the Quartermaster Men's circuit at Columbia. Transportation rolled a game of 522 and set of 1,518 in winning two from Design, Depot and Construction took the odd games from Mechanical and Engineers, while Power lived up to its name in supplying Supply with a big goose egg.

Miss Ross, with a 314 set, and Mrs. Albaugh, with a game of 109, topped the scoring in the Quartermaster Ladies' loop at Columbia. Personnel jolted the maples for a game of 472 and set of 1,362 in handing Supply a 2-1 setback. Construction put a goose egg in Real Estate's basket and the Engineers figured their way into a 2-game victory over Executives.

In addition to the Washington Original Junior-Howard Campbell All-Star match at Convention Hall, there will also be a match between the Bill Woods and Sapp's Regent Girls team of Baltimore at Lucky Strike to entertain the fans. Lorraine Gulli and Billie Butler will meet a doubles team in the afternoon at 2 o'clock.

A pair of queens took all of the tricks in the C. & P. Telephone Girls loop at Lucky Strike. Miss Green rolled a set of 315, and Miss King a game of 135. Columbia, No. 1, outscored the teams with its 482-game and 1,387 total.

Anderson's 144 game and Bill Xanten's 355 set were the highest individual scores recorded in the District Government League at Arcadia. Highway banged the wood for a game of 566 and set of 1,610.

Bell, and his Mail and Files teammates, ruled the Interstate loop at the same alleys. Bell rolled a game of 138 and set of 350, and the team belted the bottles for a game of 568 and 1,615.

St. John's Five Wins Easily From Landons

Amassing a lead of 12 points in the first half, St. John's coasted in to an easy 37-to-17 victory over Landon School in a one-sided basket ball game, played on the Cadets' floor yesterday. It was the seventh victory of the season for the Johnnies.

Passons Real Test For Skinker Quintet

Although their record is dotted with sensational victories, probably the brightest showing ever compiled by Passon professionals, who encounter Skinker Brothers' Eagles at Bolling Field Gymnasium tomorrow, eventuated in defeat.

Shortly after casting their lot with the professionals, the Quaker City independent champions locked up in an exhibition with the nationally known Philadelphia Sphas, one of the country's outstanding basket ball clubs. To the surprise of all concerned, the odds-on favorites were given a terrific battle, and only after the hottest mixing imaginable were they able to land a 5-point decision.

A Government League game involving G. P. O. and Bolling Field and beginning at 2 o'clock rings up the curtain tomorrow.

2 D. C. GAMES ON COLLEGE COURTS

C. U., Gallaudet Play DePaul, Baltimore U., Respectively.

LOCAL basket ball fans have two collegiate games between which to choose for their patronage tonight, with Catholic University entertaining DePaul University, from Chicago, at the big Brookland gym, starting at 8:30 o'clock, and Gallaudet engaging the strong Baltimore University five at Kendall Green at the same time. Georgetown, American and Maryland invade foreign courts, while George Washington idles.

The Catholic-DePaul contest, which is to be preceded by a clash between the C. U. Freshmen and Devitt Prep, beginning at 7:15, is expected to furnish lively competition from whistle to whistle. The visiting team is regarded highly in Midwestern court circles, and for that reason rates plenty of respect in this neighborhood. Catholic in recent games has shown definite traces of improvement and, despite the loss of its last two games, faces the Chicago outfit confidently. A victory will balance the Cardinal ledger of wins and losses at six apiece.

Gallaudet Host to Baltimoreans.

Gallaudet will be striving to boost its winning percentage above the .500 mark against Baltimore. The Kendall Green quintet has broken even in six games played thus far. It should offer the fast Baltimore five a strenuous argument, especially in view of the fact that it will be playing on a familiar floor.

Georgetown goes up to Philadelphia to try conclusions with Temple University's basketers, ranked in the thick of the Eastern championship struggle by virtue of a defeat of City College, of New York. Coach Freddy Mesmer's boys have dropped their last four starts, but in so doing have acquitted themselves creditably. They may be expected to extend Temple to the limit.

American carries an undefeated record to Annapolis for its set-to with Navy, which defeated the local team by 30-25, last year. The Methodists, who have won six in a row, feel that their chances of winning are far better than a year ago and they nurse hopes of duplicating the recent success of Maryland University against the Midshipmen.

Maryland-Hopkins Play At Baltimore.

Maryland journeys to Baltimore to engage its ancient rival, Johns Hopkins, seeking its fifth straight victory. The Southern champion team, however, faces one of its hardest assignments of the season, for Hopkins this year boasts the strongest floor aggregation of the past ten years of its history.

Bliss, of the Washington Collegiate Conference, also performs tonight, meeting the Army Medicos at Walter Reed Hospital.

Wilson Teachers Beat Md. State Normal Five

Wilson Teachers College chalked up its third victory of the season last night, winning over the Maryland State Normal quintet by a score of 33-18 in the Tech High School Gym.

BLAST PLOT SIFTED; CHILD IS NEAR DEATH

Rocky Mount, Va., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—While Garnet Hodgess, 9, remained in a serious condition tonight in a Roanoke hospital, county authorities held W. S. (Strawberry) Harrison, 50, and his son, Howard, 22, on a charge of assault with intent to maim and kill in connection with the dynamite explosion which occurred at their chicken house door on Wednesday, causing severe injuries to the little girl. The father was arrested Wednesday and the son was taken into custody tonight.

Carter Lee, Commonwealth's attorney, returned here today from Richmond and immediately took up the investigation. One of his first moves was to seize the wiring and switches that formed the electrical circuit by means of which the charge was set off with a dry battery. He said he believed that there was more sinster purpose behind the "trap" than the protection of chickens.

The son was said to have explained that he constructed the outfit, with the aid of his father. The older man was reported to have admitted having purchased dynamite to blast stumps, and that his son had been given the custody of the explosives.

The child's right leg was amputated just below the knee, and her left leg and both arms were badly injured.

Mr. Lee said today that Harrison may not be Harrison at all, but Henry H. Freeman. The prosecutor said that the man had been convicted several times of violating the prohibition law, and during one of these trials, the son testified that his father was a fugitive from justice.

Frederick Revives Early War Claim

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., Jan. 22.—Hope that the Federal Government will reimburse Frederick for the $200,000 demanded by Gen. Jubal Early when his army passed through Frederick 69 years ago, was revived today upon receipt of a letter from Representative David J. Lewis, Sixth Maryland District, stating that he would make Frederick's claim an amendment to the claim of Baltimore, for $171,034.31, introduced in the Senate last week by Senator Tydings. During the Civil War, Government warehouses here contained vast amounts of stores and medical supplies. A few days before Gen. Early's Confederate Army invaded Frederick, on July 9, 1864, the stores were removed. Disappointed, Gen. Early demanded $200,000 in cash under threat of burning the city.

The money was taken from banks and delivered in large baskets, for which was given a receipt, now in the possession of the city authorities. The debt has never been paid and the city has paid interest on the money at regular intervals. Efforts have been made several times to have the Government recognize the debt without success.

McCoy, Manassas; M. S. Hindman, Purcellville; J. W. Birkett, Fairfax; L. C. Carr, Leesburg, and C. B. Roland, of Hay Market. Mr. Roland presided at the meeting yesterday.

When Washington Was Younger—No. 172

THE above picture shows one of the first buildings erected in Southwest Washington. It was built more than a hundred years ago, mainly to accommodate passengers for the old Washington-Alexandria ferry.

The two upper stories were used as a hotel and the lower floor as a saloon. The front of the building faced Water street and the side was on M street. It was bought some years ago by Christopher Heurich, whose name may be seen on the sign advertising his famous lager, and is still owned by him. It was torn down in recent months, but part of the foundation is still standing.

In the right-hand corner an earnest "crap game" seems to be in progress, which in those days was not an unusual sight there, according to the old-timers who have spent practically their whole lives in that section. Many a misty eye was dried as the wreckers started tearing down this old reminder of their younger days, when a man could walk in and quench his thirst for a nickel and get a free lunch besides.

SUSPECT ARRESTED IN CHASE FOLLOWING ROUND OF ROBBERIES

PRISONER IS IDENTIFIED BY 5 HOLDUP VICTIMS

One of two men who allegedly had executed two armed holdups and terrorized three taxi drivers who were forced to carry them on their tour of banditry, was captured by a Third Precinct policeman with the aid of one of the hackmen last night, according to police.

The other bandit escaped when the taxi driver, despite a pistol held menacingly in his ribs, pulled his cab to a halt in front of a policeman at Eighteenth and S streets northwest.

Shortly after the arrest, the man was identified by two storekeepers held up last night, by two of the taxicab drivers he had forced to ride him, and by a clerk for the Liberty Food Shop which was held up and robbed of $50 early yesterday, police declared.

Fire From Taxicab.

As in the Liberty Food Shop holdup, the two men fired shots into the floor at one place to impress the owner that they meant business. When they returned to their awaiting taxicab they fired another shot from the window of the cab to urge the driver to make greater speed.

The first holdup was reported shortly after 6 o'clock last night at 2133 Ward place northwest, where David Turshinsky was robbed of more than $30 from his cash register.

They told him to park near the corner of Ward place and Twenty-first street, he related, "while we see whether she is there."

A short time later the two men ran to his cab, one with cartons of cigarettes in his hands. One of the men held a pistol, he asserted.

Threatened With Gun.

"Make it snappy," one of the men ordered as he hesitated, "or I'll let you have it," Greenfield told police. He said the man punctuated his command by firing a shot from the window of the cab.

Turshinsky told police that after the men had entered the store and demanded his money, one of them fired a bullet into the floor.

Greenfield said that the men presented him with a carton of the stolen cigarettes, made him take them, then "sold" him one for $1. They later gave him 25 cents change. The men leaped from Greenfield's cab at Fourteenth street and Rhode Island avenue northwest, and got into another cab.

The next holdup was reported about half an hour later at the store of Mrs. Lena Katz, 1259 Twenty-third street northwest. Only one of the men came into the store, Mrs. Katz told police, and the cab driver, Edward G. Dungan, told police that the other man was in his cab. The man forced Mrs. Katz to turn over $30 Dungan said the men picked him up at Twenty-first and K streets northwest and told him to drive to Twenty-third and N streets northwest. When the cab stopped near the store, he said, one of the men got out and the other waited. When his companion returned, the man waiting in the cab pulled a pistol and jammed it in his ribs, Dungan declared, and ordered him to drive fast.

The taxi driver said the men told him which turns to make and the ride continued until he spied Pvt. W. E. Scott, of the Third Precinct, standing at the corner of Eighteenth and S streets northwest.

One Caught in Chase.

"I made up my mind, if I was going to get shot, I may as well try to get the guy that shot me arrested," Dungan said later.

He jammed on the brakes and stopped in front of Scott. "Arrest 'em!" he yelled at the policeman. "They are holding me up."

Instead of shooting, the two men piled out of the cab and started to run. One of the men was captured by Scott, after a chase of about a block. At the Third Precinct Station he gave the name of James F. "Buz" Donovan, 33 years old, of 2140 N street northwest.

Three other armed robberies were reported to police last night. Three men held up Parker's drug store at North Capitol street and Rhode Island avenue about 10:45 o'clock and escaped with $60 from two cash registers. Norman Parker, operator of the store, told police that one of the men covered him and Mrs. L. B. Edwards, of 34 Rhode Island avenue northwest, with a blue-steel automatic while the others cleaned out the fills. The men escaped in an awaiting taxicab.

Mother Sends S O S On Report of Gas

Fire Rescue Squad Finds "Victim" Calmly Up and Talking.

The fire rescue squad called to 1101 Fifteenth street northwest yesterday afternoon to treat a gas poisoning case, found the "victim" calmly talking to her husband and unaware that she was supposed to have been overcome, according to police.

Donald Crowder returned to his home from work about 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, according to police, and smelled gas. He did not see Mrs. Crowder and called her mother's home, telling her about the gas fumes. Mr. Crowder later found his wife in the pantry making lemonade.

The window was open and she did not know the gas was turned on. Then the rescue squad arrived. Mr. Crowder told police his mother-in-law had become excited when he told her about the gas and had called for aid.

VETERANS HONOR TWO MEMBERS

Court to Name Attorney to Defend Man Indicted as "Poker Murderer."

Warden Lowe Tilburg, indicted as the "poker murderer," yesterday pleaded not guilty to the indictment charging him with the murder of Jeanette Herman, also known as Jeanette Hendricks, of 2318 Eighteenth street northwest, on January 8.

Tilburg was brought from the District Jail, where he has been held since his arrest on the morning following the discovery of the woman's body in the basement of her rooming house. He appeared without an attorney, and when he was asked to plead he said, "I have no lawyer."

"How do you plead," he was asked.

"I would prefer to wait until I can get an attorney," Tilburg said.

After he had intimated that he could not get an attorney he was told that a plea of not guilty—compulsory in first-degree murder cases—would be entered and that the court would assign an attorney to defend him.

Tilburg's address, given in court records as 605 Massachusetts avenue northwest, was said by persons living there to be incorrect.

Garden Work Planned By Civitan Boys Club

Seventy boys, members of the Civitan Boys Garden Club, met at the Central Y. M. C. A. last night in their first meeting of the year to make plans for the gardens they operate under the auspices of the Civitan Club on the Potomac flats. An entertainment program was provided by the club. Members conveyed the boys to and from their homes for the gathering.

All of the youths are picked from needy families and the produce from their garden plots is reaped for their own use. Entertainment in form of songs, dances and humorous skits was furnished by Miss Edith Reed last night, followed by a long swim in the "Y" pool. A buffet supper was served the boys to top off the evening.

Hicks Is Guarded Heavily in Court

Held Under $5,000 Bail for Grand Jury at Hearing.

The United States Marshal's office yesterday paid tribute to the slipperiness of one George E. Hicks, 36 years old, when he was escorted into Police Court to be arraigned on a charge of housebreaking.

There were at least six deputies around Hicks when he was brought before Judge Gus A. Schuldt, and they stuck closer than the proverbial shadow.

The reason was that Hicks has thrice escaped from custody here and finally had been caught when he allegedly attempted to enter the apartment of Miss Ann Robinson, 2310 Ashmead place northwest. He was held in $5,000 bail for grand jury action.

VETERAN RECRUITS INITIATED BY RADIO

Taking the obligation of their order administered through the invisible gangli:s of the ether, radio, nearly 20,000 recruits last night were initiated in the Veterans of Foreign Wars by Darold D. De Coe, commander in chief, while he was the guest of honor at a banquet in the National Press Club.

After a veritable galaxy of notables, legislators and military officers had paid their respects to Commander De Coe, and Representative Wright Patman had spoken over the air on his plan for the issuance of Treasury notes to defray the cost of cash payment of the soldier's bonus, the commander gave the obligations to the recruits in 2,500 posts throughout the Nation.

Representative William P. Connery was toastmaster and introduced the guests of honor, included among whom were Gen. Frank T. Hines, Admiral Robert E. Coontz, Maj. Gen. Benjamin H. Fuller, Brig. Gen. Henry J. Riley, Thomas E. Campbell and Representatives Lamar Jeffers, Paul Kvale, John J. Cochran, Wilbur White, Ralph Horr and several others.

Entertainment was provided by Les Stevens and his Diplomats, and several other performers from the Fox Theater. The dinner came to a climax with the broadcasting of music from several sections of the country through a Nation-wide hook-up. Maj. James W. Boyer was chairman of the committee in charge of the affair.

Statement Clears Up Cassell Case

President of Howard Denies Architect Was Ousted From His Post.

Considerable credence given to a widely circulated story that Albert I. Cassell, university architect at Howard University, had been separated from his post, and the position given to the son of Dr. John Pope, president of Atlanta University and benefactor of Dr. Mordecai W. Johnson, Howard president, caused Johnson to issue a statement last night calculated to clear up the situation.

The university architect, one of the foremost colored men of his profession, who built the university medical school and girls' dormitories, as well as the new gymnasium, was assigned the duties of superintendent of buildings and grounds last year in addition to his architectural work. The university administration regarded this appointment as an overload, and set about to establish a department of maintenance. Concerning this, Dr. Johnson said:

"The pending establishment of the department of maintenance of buildings and grounds at Howard University in a separate division and under a full time head is a long planned and purely objective administration measure, designed to increase efficiency through division of labor, and in no wise is to be construed as a reflection upon the work of the university architect."

HEARINGS IN HOUSE ON TROLLEY MERGER SLATED NEXT WEEK

Black, Subcommittee Head, Sees Rapid Approval for Proposal.

SAYS PLAN MAY REACH FLOOR IN TWO WEEKS

Cites District Recognition of Savings Which Combine Would Effect.

Merger of Washington's traction facilities, for years a civic issue here, will be the subject of special congressional hearings ordered next week by Representative Loring M. Black, Jr. (Democrat), New York, chairman of the public utilities subcommittee of the House District committee.

He declared himself in favor of the legislation.

Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, will be the first witness called at the hearings, which probably will be held at night, Black said, predicting early passage of the bill now before the House.

Brief Hearings Expected.

Although representatives of the traction companies, citizens' organizations and civic boards will be given an opportunity to testify, hearings will not be protracted, in the opinion of the subcommittee chairman.

It is his idea that they will open Tuesday or Wednesday, and be concluded the same week. Should this prove possible, the committee should have the bill ready to be taken on the House floor early in February, he said.

Despite the crowded legislative calender, he sees no reason why the measure should not receive favorable congressional action at an early date.

Cites Long Discussion.

"Street car merger in Washington has been talked about for the last 20 or 25 years, and nobody appears to be in disagreement on the principle of the merger and the economies of operation and the better service to the public that would result. The ground has been gone over repeatedly at hearings in the House and in the Senate.

"Legislation before Congress authorizes street railway mergers, and lays down the broad terms under which it is to be effective. I understand that it has the approval of the Public Utilities Commission, and the actual merger agreement is to be left to this body. So I do not see why the hearings should last very long."

Virginia Society Honors Heroes at Annual Ball

The annual Robert E. Lee and Stonewall Jackson birthday ball of the Virginia Society was held last night in the Willard Hotel. With Confederate Veterans as guests the Virginians honored their indomitable leaders in the War between the States.

New Trial for Trio In Slaying Studied

Justice F. D. Letts last night took under advisement a motion for a new trial for Leonard Layton, Charles Washington and William R. Robinson, colored youths who were convicted several weeks ago of the slaying of Mannie Solomon, taxicab driver, at Union and O streets southwest, July 29, of last year.

A motion for a new trial for the three was filed by Attorney E. Russell Kelly on the ground that in admitting confessions of the three, Justice Letts erred, in that the confessions admitted participation in other crimes that same evening.

Attorney Kelly contended that the trio was being tried only for murder, and the evidence of other crimes the same evening was not admissable. Justice Letts took under advisement the request for a new trial.

BARBERS FAVOR BILL FOR SUNDAY CLOSING AS OTHERS SCORE IT

ADVOCATES TERM IDEA AS HEALTH SAFEGUARD

No Action Taken by Senate District Committee at Heated Hearing.

Denounced as "the opening wedge for District blue laws," the Copeland barber Sunday closing bill met with heated opposition from everyone but union labor and the barbers themselves at hearings before the Senate District committee yesterday.

Seventh Day Adventists, the Association Opposed to Blue Laws, Journeymen and Master Barbers and representatives of a half a dozen other organizations packed the large committeeroom to overflowing for the nearly three hours the battle raged. Action was deferred by the committee.

Barbers and spokesmen for the American Federation of Labor contended the bill has no religious element, that it is merely a health measure designed to give wielders of the shears one day's rest in seven.

Termed as Blue Law.

But C. S. Longacre, representing the Religious Liberty Association and others, denounced the proposal as a mild appearing measure that would end in "an inferno of evil consequences." He said the Copeland proposal is not a health bill, but a blue law "dressed up."

Appearing for Journey and Master Barbers, Attorney Joseph C. Suraci cited decision of District Court of Appeals upholding legality of Sunday closing where no religious principle is involved. He disclosed that Washington once had a barber's Sunday closing law invalidated years ago by extension of the city limits.

Mrs. Charles Kingsley, who said her husband operates the Carlton Hotel barber shop, testified that "in 38 years he has not had a Sunday he could call his own," while Charles J. Bovello, barber, stated that virtually every member of his trade favored the move.

Representing the American Federation of Labor, W. C. Hushing, national legislative representative, argued that "every day is the Sabbath for somebody." He urged that barbers have one day set aside purely as a health safeguard.

Substitute Bill Proposed.

A similar stand was taken by Edward Keating, editor of Labor, who introduced the same bill when he was in Congress.

John E. Bradley, who appeared for the American Rationalistic Association and the Freethinkers of America, said the bill was not only a blue law in principle, but class legislation as well. Lynn A. E. Gale, of the association, opposed to blue laws, proposed a substitute bill that would substitute "one day in seven" for the word "Sunday." A substitute bill of similar import was offered by Mr. Longacre.

After Corporation Counsel W. W. Bride made known that a bill already introduced to increase the powers of the Commissioners would give them authority to impose such an ordinance, Senator William H. King (Democrat), Utah, and Senator Thomas P. Gore (Democrat), Oklahoma, indicated they favored this method of taking care of the matter.

Senator Gore Urges "Mask" for Barbers

Senator Thomas P. Gore (Democrat), Oklahoma, revealed rare inventive genius and a subtle sense of humor when he proposed "short-hair masks for barbers" at Senate hearings yesterday on the barber Sunday closing bill.

Witnesses testified to the health hazard barbers run from inhaling short hairs shorn from patrons' scalp. "It seems to me a mask could be invented to take care of that," volunteered Senator Gore.

Aims of Chest Outlined.

The aims and needs of the Community Chest were outlined yesterday by Dr. Allen A. Stockdale to the Washington Round Table at a luncheon at the University Club. Dr. Stockdale is pastor of the First Congregational Church.

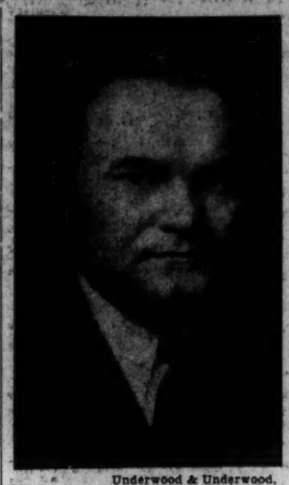
Marine, Once Island's King, Tells of Weird Tribal Rites

Faustin Wirkus Describes La Gonave Customs to Capital Group.

An isolated island where orchids could be gathered by the armful, where tins of sardines could buy anything the natives had to offer, where Congo dances and strange religious ceremonials harkened back to darkest Africa—such was La Gonave, off Haiti, which Faustin Wirkus, a sergeant in the U. S. Marine Corps, described to members of the National Geographic Society last night at the Washington Auditorium.

For three years Sergt. Wirkus ruled the island being assigned there by the Haitian government to head its constabulary, and being unofficially proclaimed as their king by the natives, who staged their elaborate ceremonials in his honor when he arrived and departed. Sergt. Wirkus took motion pictures of the dances and rites—many of them never before recorded by the camera. One of particular interest was their construction of a primitive drum, believed to have been one of the earliest musical instruments, and photographed by him for the first time. The drum consisted of palm bark, fastened over a hole dug in the ground, by sticks. Attached to the drum was a cord, fastened to the bent twig of a tree. Both by strumming on the cord and beating the drum, an "orchestral effect" is produced as an accompaniment to native dances.

Beautiful motion pictures showed the falls in Haiti, where hundreds of natives gather for religious rites. From time to time they grow delirious in the estacy of the ceremony and have to be carried away lest they dash their heads against the rocks below the falls. A Marine commander has many curious problems, the speaker said, such as acting as a court of domestice relations, especially when a native man finds a younger wife and deserts the older one. He was even asked about the care of babies, and acquired a book on the subject in order to advise the mothers who came to consult him on their infants' ills.



Underwood & Underwood.
FAUSTIN WIRKUS.

Sergt. Wirkus showed scenes in Port au Prince, on the main island, including the market where, he said, foodstuffs are sold in infinitesimal quantities. For example, it is quite customary to dispense a spoonful of butter or lard. He also showed pictures of the making of sugar from cane and other native industries.

CIVIC BODY INDORSES REFUND ON SALARIES

Federation Approves Bills in Senate and House for $52,635 Payment.

Provisions of a bill offered by Senator Capper in the upper House of Congress, and by Representative Oscar DePriest in the House of Representatives, to refund a portion of salaries allegedly erroneously and illegally deducted from certain colored school directors over a period of years, in the sum of $52,635, were indorsed last night by the Federation of Civic Associations at a meeting held in the board room at the District Building.

The measure proposed to award to Emma F. G. Merritt, $11,330; Anita J. Turner, $7,360; Oliver W. McDonald, $7,185; to the widow of T. W. Hunster, $6,460; Julia W. Shaw, $5,810; Eva W. Clair, $4,210; N. T. J. Mayer, $3,560; Corinne E. Martin, $2,860; Josephine E. Wormley, $2,360, and Imogene Wormley, $1,500. Its passage failed in the legislative jam at the close of the last session of Congress.

Resolutions in opposition to provisions of the Mapes bill and the manner in which the bill was expedited through the House of Representatives were referred to the committee on legislation of the federation. Constituent associations were requested to amend their constitutions so that federation delegates may be elected previous to federation elections.

Col. West A. Hamilton spoke on behalf of the Community Chest. A marker for the grave of the late John E. Bowles, former executive secretary of the federation, was authorized, and resolutions spread on the minutes with reference to the death of the late E. J. Morton, first secretary of the federation. The question of bus service for Northeast suburban communities, submitted by the Capital View Civic Association, was referred to the committee on public utilities. The Eastland Gardens Civic Association was admitted to membership.

Senator and Mrs. Lewis Illinois Society Guests

Senator and Mrs. J. Hamilton Lewis were last night guests of the Illinois Society at a reception and dance given in their honor at the Willard Hotel.

The senator was presented by Judge Theodore Risley, president of the society.

INQUIRY INTO RILEY CASE STILL IS OPEN

Palmisano Announces That Quiz of Welfare Board Will Continue.

The case of Congress versus the Public Welfare Board is still open, Representative Vincent L. Palmisano (Democrat), Maryland, disclosed yesterday following conference with Chairman Mary T. Norton, of the House District Committee.

Earlier Mr. Palmisano, who is chairman of the investigating subcommittee, had announced he found nothing wrong with the board's handling of the Edith Riley case. Unless other members of his subcommittee insisted, he had said, hearings would not go forward.

Representative Frank L. Bowman (Republican), West Virginia, who instigated the Riley inquiry, made known bright and early yesterday he would insist on continuance of the inquiry.

Mr. Bowman has plenty of evidence outside of the Riley case that should receive a thorough airing, he made known.

Chairman Norton, also a critic of welfare methods in the Riley case, indicated she was in no mood to see the matter dropped. It was following her conference with Mr. Palmisano that he announced hearings have not been concluded.

He will set a date for resuming the inquiry after he talks with Mr. Bowman and Representative Loring M. Black, jr. (Democrat), New York, also on his special subcommittee.

King Introduces Bill for Lawyers

Senator Would Require Passing Before District Supreme Court.

Senator William H. King (Democrat), Utah, yesterday introduced a bill that would require practitioners of law in the District to belong to the bar of the District Supreme Court before they could refer to themselves as "attorneys" or "lawyers."

The bill would prohibit nonmembers of the District Supreme Court bar from pursuing a legal calling in the District, maintaining a "law office," or describing themselves as lawyers or counselors in the mails.

THEATER SEAT BILL GIVEN APPROVAL BY SENATE COMMITTEE

Would Require Displaying of Signs When Only Standing Room Is Available.

PENALTY FOR SELLING ADMISSIONS STRICKEN

The Senate District committee yesterday voted to favorably report the Carey bill requiring Washington theater owners to post full house signs when all available seats have been taken.

A provision making it a law violation to sell more tickets than there are seats was stricken from the modified bill, which was drawn up with the assistance of Corporation Counsel W. W. Bride after hearings were held on the measure Tuesday.

Under the proposed legislation theater owners making "false and misleading statements" concerning availability of seats would be fined $100.

Signs in Ticket Booths.

When all seats are filled, signs with letters two inches high, making known this fact, must be displayed in ticket booths. Where capacity is more than 1,000, an attendant, every five minutes in the lobby, must announce that the house is full.

Anticipating this action, motion picture owners of Washington met Tuesday evening in the office of A. Julian Brylawski and drafted a resolution calling on members to comply with the rule. The sign proposal was put forward by Harry Crull, manager of the Fox Theater.

Austin Blocks Franchise Bill.

Action on the Swanson bill, to revoke the franchise of the Mount Vernon, Alexandria & Washington Railroad, permitting it to sue for damages, was deferred when Senator Warren R. Austin (Republican), Vermont, declared that the Attorney General should be consulted before the committee agreed to the suit.

Echoing views expressed by Representative Allard H. Gasque (Democrat), South Carolina, Senator Thomas P. Gore (Democrat), Oklahoma, opposed awarding the company any damages. E. R. Whitman, assistant chief of the supervising architect's office, Treasury Department, asked early passage of the bill. Corporation Counsel Bride requested that the bill be revised to exclude the District government from liability for damages.

Carter Is Opposed To Salary Slash

Public Printer's Report to Congress Cites High Efficiency.

Public Printer George Carter has informed Congress of his firm opposition to any pay cut for employes of the Government Printing Office.

The declaration was made in his annual report to Congress. Mr. Carter also expressed opposition to the placing of employes of the Federal printing establishment under the jurisdiction of the classification board which he said "has little practical knowledge of any industrial wage problems."

Mr. Carter said in his report that due to reduction in overtime work at the printing office in order that more employes may be taken on, the average earning of Government Printing Office employes have been reduced about $116.17. "Any decrease in the present rates of pay," said the report, "would result in a corresponding loss to the Government by lessening the efficiency and morale of the most energetic organization in the Federal service."

Four Plead Guilty In Rum Conspiracy

Total of 16 Out of 36 in Same Indictment Seek Mercy.

Four men, indicted in an alleged conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law, yesterday pleaded guilty to the charge, making 16 out of a total of 36 in the same indictment who have now thrown themselves on the mercy of the court.

Prior to the pleading of the four, twelve of the defendants had entered guilty pleas. The four who yesterday asked Justice F. D. Letts to accept withdrawals of their not guilty pleas and change the plea to guilty were Solomon Zimberg, Malcolm Scott McGeehee, Joseph Andrews and Charles C. Maggio.

Their request for a withdrawal of their pleas of not guilty was accepted. All the cases have been referred to Probation Officer Amos A. Steele for a report.

Bond Case Suspect Posts $15,000 Bail

Man Will Not Be Tried Until His Partner, Fugitive, Is Found.

David N. Chadwick yesterday posted a $15,000 bond for his appearance when he is wanted here to face trial on a charge of conspiring to bring into the District Liberty bonds that were allegedly stolen in a $91,000 robbery of a Philadelphia Bank some months ago.

Chadwick and Frank Selinsky, who is a fugitive, are alleged to have appeared at a bank in Richmond in October, where they cashed a $10,000 Liberty bond that had been stolen in the Philadelphia robbery. The pair are accused of having taken the two $5,000 bonds they got and brought them to the District.

Assistant United States Attorney William A. Gallagher yesterday asked Justice F. D. Letts to require a heavy bond because of the size of the robbery in Philadelphia. Until Selinsky is apprehended, Chadwick will not be tried, the court was informed.

2 Policemen May Fight Sudden Pension Slash

Plemmons and Messer, Retiring, Are First Victims of Change Whereby Association Members Get $250 Instead of $1,000.

Overburdened by drains on its funds, caused by an unprecedented increase in the number of retiring policemen during the last two and a half years, the Policemen's Retirement Association has acted to curtail sharply the amount paid beneficiaries until the finances of the organization are bolstered.

At a meeting last week the association voted to cut from $1,000 to $250 the amount paid beneficiaries retiring from then until March 11, 1932, when the organization will be three years old.

Capt. C. L. Plemmons and Detective Sergt. William Messer, both of whom retire at the end of this month and are the only ones so far affected by the decision of the association, have indicated they may contest the action of the group of which they were initial members.

Inspector Charles G. Stott, president of the association, last night said that $89,800 had been paid out by the organization since its inception on March 11, 1929, as against an income from dues of $76,000. The deficit has been covered, he said, by the giving of notes, a number of which have been paid, and the remainder of which are being paid out of incoming dues.

Faced with the problem of remaining solvent, the association president said, the action affecting Messer and Plemmons was taken. He said that under normal retirement conditions of the police personnel, the association would steadily recover.

Eighty-seven policemen have retired in the period since payments began on March 11, 1930, Inspector Stott said. The majority of these, he said, received the full amount guaranteed under the by-laws of the mutual association. Those that did not, Inspector Stott continued, were cases covered in the by-laws and received the proper amount due them.

With regard to Messer and Plemmons, Inspector Stott said he regarded their cases as unfortunate, but that the action was for the good of the 1,170 members of the association. Speaking unofficially, and not as an official of the organization, he said:

"I believe that steps may be taken in the future to do something for Capt. Plemmons and Sergt. Messer. However, I say that merely as an individual and am not speaking officially for the association."

Capt. Plemmons retired because of the age limitation of 64. Detective Sergeant Messer's retirement was ordered by the police retirement board because of physical disability incurred in the line of duty.

Lecture on National Parks Is "Heard" by Deaf Mutes

An illustrated lecture on the national parks was presented to the students of Gallaudet College in three media last night. First, Randall Jones, of Cedar City, Utah, presented his colored slides on the screen at Chapel Hall and explained them. Then Dr. Percival Hall, president of the college, interpreted the lecture for the audience by means of the sign language.

Dr. Hall said this was the first attempt to present an illustrated lecture in a hall necessarily darkened to allow effective presentation of slides. It was accomplished by a method of diffused lighting, which threw Dr. Hall's figure into relief, so that he could be seen by the students, and which did not interfere with the darkness required for the presentation of the slides.

That the students followed the lecture perfectly was shown by the fact that they commented on the pictures animatedly among themselves, and for once an audience at a theater talked throughout the performance without disturbing neighbors.

Mr. Jones had several sets of slides portraying changes in color, particularly in the Grand Canyon at various hours of the day.
